NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The florists' industry, like many others, has in its ranks of business men many who are thoughtless in the various little obligations which lie without the pale of actual turnover in productions. The national publicity campaign has entailed on many good florists obligations to pay certain amounts within their means into a fund which is to finance the campaign for publicity for flowers, with which the publicity committee of the society has been entrusted, and which it is nobly trying to prosecute in the best interests of all concerned.

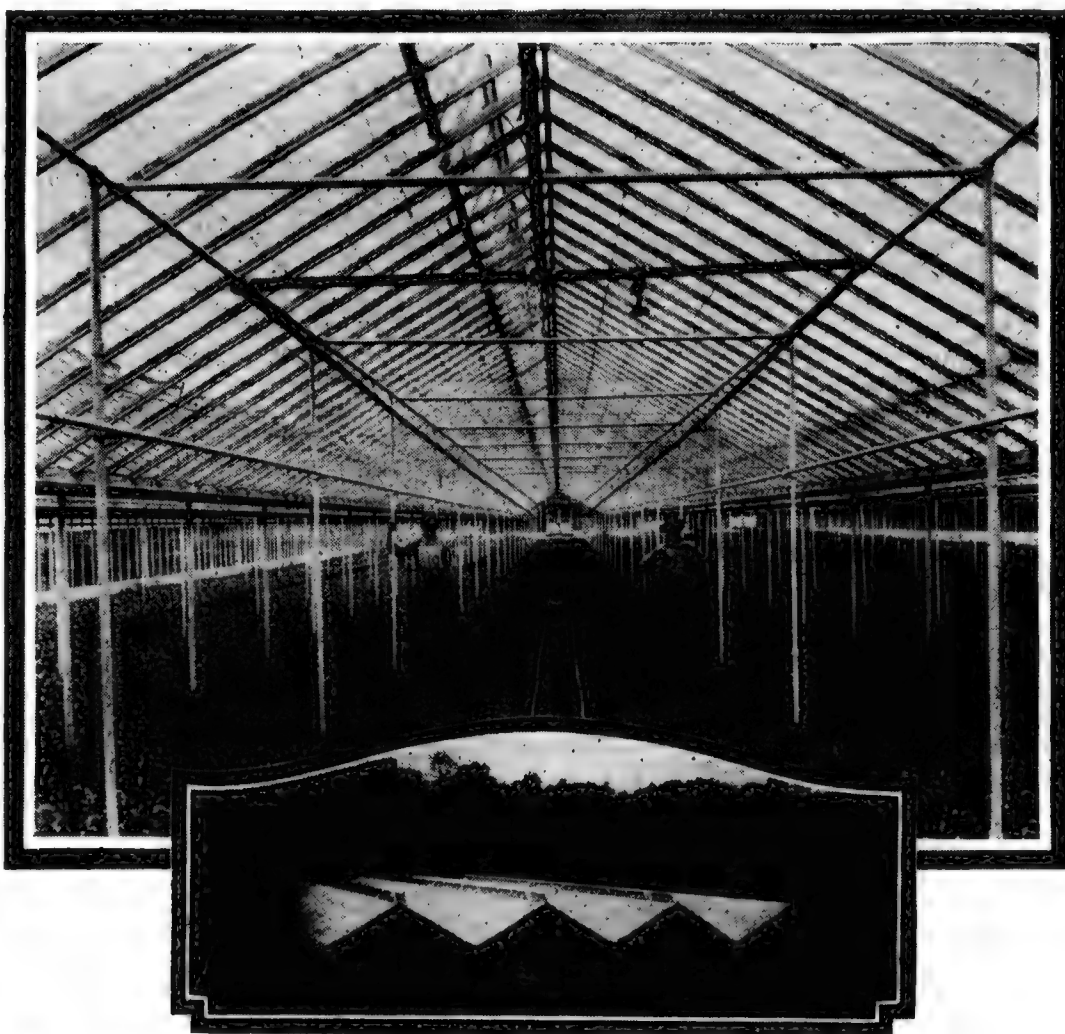

Through thoughtlessness—we perhaps could more truthfully say negligence—a considerable number of subscribers to the fund pledged support in various amounts, but, even after repeated approach, have failed to make good their pledges. As the standing of these delinquents is beyond question, the committee is more than surprised that they do not at once take heed of their thoughtlessness and repair their negligence.

The committee is in urgent need of this pledged money; in fact, the use of it is of material importance to the committee in plans for publicity based upon its collection. Bills for the sums due have been sent out several times, and delinquents are expected to make immediate remittance to the secretary, so that there need be no hitch in the arrangements which the committee hopes to complete.

MUM SHOW AT URBANA.

The eleventh annual chrysanthemum show of the University of Illinois will be held at the floriculture greenhouses, at Urbana, November 12 to 15. Each fall this mum show is looked forward to by an increasingly large number of people. Last year over 7,000 visitors viewed the exhibition.

None "Just as Good"

Charles Lutterbei is one of several go-getter vegetable growers and florists in Cincinnati who will "accept no substitutes" when it comes to greenhouses. He has four Type C Callahan houses on Winton Road, each 25 feet x 225 feet. "They don't make 'em any better," he says, and it's safe to take his word for it.

The mum collection at the university is a large and interesting one. Probably of greatest interest to the commercial man, especially the grower, is the collection of seedling varieties which have been raised by the students in floriculture. In the past the division of floriculture has named and sent out to the florists of the state the best of these seedling varieties. In all, twenty-nine varieties have been disseminated. Among these the following have proved to be popular commercially: Varsity, Bronze Queen, Chestnut, Coed, Maple Leaf, Redbird, The Chief, Laelia, Old Gold, The Belle and Dazzle. Many of the varieties which have proved good commercially will be found listed in the catalogues of firms, such as Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., and Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago. Last year five varieties were sent out under the names of Bo-peep, Kewpie, Welcome, Primrose and Puritan.

The show this year will include 210 named commercial varieties in all the different types, 230 varieties of seedlings which are still under trial, and 260 seedling plants, the results of the student class work last year. The Caprice group and Japanese varieties are included in the collection. There are 1,800 bench-grown plants in the show and 2,400 plants in 6-inch pots. A special feature will be three large specimen plants which were grown for the show by Jerre Kohout, a student in floriculture.

A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the trade, and it is hoped that a goodly number will visit the institution at this time.

GARLANITE, the New Putty-Colored Glazing Compound, is the result of years of experience and untiring effort to produce a PERFECT Glazing Cement.

GARLANITE, made in putty consistency for bedding and semi-liquid consistency for bulbing over the top, assures you of the utmost in Glazing Service. The beautiful Putty color, its elasticity and the ease with which it can be applied or removed when necessary to replace broken glass makes GARLANITE the most desirable of all glazing materials for both new and old work.

PERMANITE, of course, still leads the field of black materials.

Jump on the Garfield Park Elevated train when down on the market, nestle yourself comfortably in a seat, and ride out to see "Foley's New Factory."

You'll ride through beautiful Oak Park, to Desplaines Avenue, Forest Park, where you will get off, then walk north about 50 feet, then west one block, where you will find PHIL FOLEY, Waiting to Greet You.

He will personally conduct you through our model new plant. He will show you our large office with fireproof vault, the steel shop with its modern equipment, the fireproof boiler room, the wood shop with perfect daylight, our mammoth warehouse, the lumber yard with its level driveways, our railroad switch with room for 15 cars. See for yourself the perfectly planned layout, and you will acknowledge and say to yourself

"They must know how to design greenhouses when they have built such a wonderful factory."

We will indeed be pleased to drive down to the market, or to your hotel when you are in Chicago and motor out the boulevards with you to our plant.

We will be expecting that visit. When will we hear from you?

WOULD YOU LIKE $200 TO $500 EXTRA PROFIT?

Then read this letter from one of America's leading rose growers:*

'During last winter, which was a most severe one, we had no difficulty in keeping the houses warm and the amount of coal used was less than your representative told me would be required in an ordinary winter.'

A saving in operating expense paid this grower an additional profit.

There are two big profits for the owners of

King GREENHOUSES

The first profit is a direct result of the sale of flowers or vegetables from your range; the second profit is the result of lower operating and maintenance costs. You can't afford to overlook either of these if you want to get the most from your greenhouses.

King greenhouses are built stronger, last longer and grow more and better flowers and vegetables than ordinary houses, and the purchase price is no more than for an ordinary house. Send a postal card today for complete information, which will be sent to you without obligation on your part.

Repeaters—

There are several kinds of "repeaters"—good, bad and indifferent. There are repeating rifles, guns and pistols, salesmen who use a repeating hammer and knock, knock, knock, the gossip who repeats what's said and done. History, that repeats itself, parrots, the champion repeaters, "booze artists", always taking another drink, the phonograph next door playing the Wabash Blues, etc., etc.

But there's one repeater we like—the customer who repeats his order. Some famous AGMCO repeaters are the following:

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

A JOURNAL for FLORISTS, SEEDSMEN and NURSEYMEN

AUTUMN NUMBER

Now Let's Talk About the Rafters and Trussing In Our Number One Construction

One man on the ground pulls up the assembled rafters and truss, and the man at the columns guides it in place and bolts it fast.

A while ago you and I talked about the way we frame the sides of our Number One Iron Frame Houses. If agreeable to you, this chat together will be about putting up the rafter and truss from the eaves to the column. After which we will start dropping the two rafters and truss in place to form the backbone of the roof.

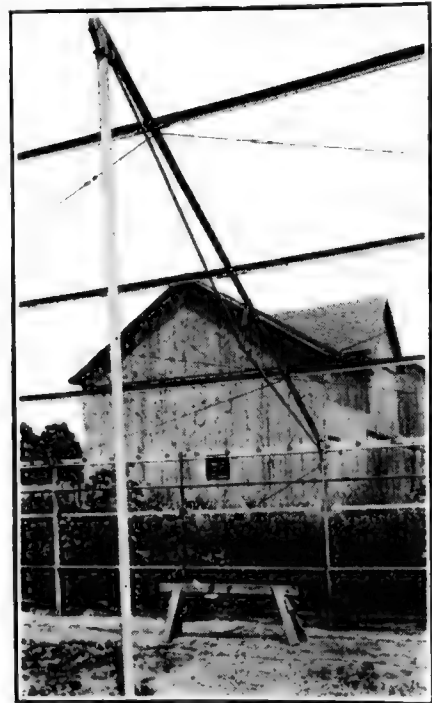

First, we'll lay the eave-to-column short part of the rafter on the ground, and bolt on the strut of the truss. Then with a simple gin-pole we'll raise the rafter up, and while one man standing on a horse scaffold, guides it into place between the column cap; another man will see that the other end drops in between the gusset plates attached to posts on side of house.

Then in go the bolts. After which the trusses are bolted to the post and column cap, and to the strut in the middle. Next comes the gable with its one piece rafters running from ridge to eave; and the necessary gable posts with their angle iron purlins.

Now with the two rafters and truss extending from columns to ridge, assembled and laid out on the ground, we will again use the gin-pole and hoist them up and bolt to the malleable iron column cap fitting and ridge plate.

Next we bolt on the purlins, and before you know it, we have our gable and three complete sections each 12 feet 6 inches long all framed.

So suppose we stop at this point and call it a day's work. What do you say if next time we have a talk it is about the connecting passages and how they are framed?

A close-up view of the first half of the rafter with its truss.

GRAFTED ROSES

It may seem early to talk Roses for next spring, but we have been booking a lot of spring orders and you, who may be wanting a big lot early, may feel disappointed if we are not able to give you what you want when you want it.

Take up the question of spring requirements early!

A. B. C. "SUPREME" QUALITY

Lilium Giganteum

We have completed advance orders and are in position to supply nominal quantities of the following:

| | | Price per case |
|----------|-------------------------------|----------------|
| Regular | 6 to 8-inch—400 to case..... | $52.50 |
| Standard | 7 to 9-inch—300 to case..... | 55.00 |
| Packing | 8 to 9-inch—280 to case..... | 62.50 |
| | 8 to 10-inch—250 to case..... | 65.00 |

Later on we expect to have Giganteum in 8 to 10-inch size which has not been packed "REGULAR STANDARD," cases containing 225 Bulbs, price $60.00 per case.

When comparing prices please note the number of bulbs as contained in our "regular packed" cases. Lower offers usually mean higher cost because of comparatively smaller number of bulbs as packed in cases.

DENVER, COLO.

Only Wholesaler between the Mississippi River and Pacific Coast carrying a full line of Florists' Supplies.

Quality is the brains of a product—it enables it to make good and do the things you expect of it. A cheap article, priced at a low figure, may seem tempting, and if bought, it will naturally give a joyous sensation at the time of the purchase. But use it, and what happens? There is a continuous headache thereafter.

People who are keen on seeking low prices can usually find them; but they seem to forget that quality can be cut and cut and cut down to such a low point that the use of the article becomes nothing short of an extravagance, due to the penalties that cheapness imposes upon the user.

McCRA Y

REFRIGERATORS for ALL PURPOSES

The Shop of George C. Shaffer, Washington, D. C.

THE exacting needs of the florist, whose profits are so largely dependent upon efficient refrigeration, are met in every detail by the McCray. In appearance, the McCray harmonizes with the most artistic surroundings; it lends an air of distinction to an exclusive shop like that of George Shaffer, in Washington, pictured above.

But the quality of the McCray refrigerator goes far deeper than appearance. The McCray patented cooling system provides a constant circulation of cold, dry air through every compartment, thus assuring thorough refrigeration. The best of all materials and the skill developed in a third of a century of refrigerator building guarantees lasting service.

Various styles and sizes of florists' refrigerators are carried in stock for prompt shipment. Besides, we build equipment to order; send us a rough sketch of your requirements and our service department will prepare plans to meet your particular needs, without obligation to you.

SEND FOR YOUR FREE BOOK. In it the refrigeration needs of the florist are thoroughly discussed, the complete McCray line is illustrated and described. No obligation; drop us a card today.

ILLUSTRATING THE USE OF BUCHBINDER EQUIPMENT
IN NEW STORE OF COFFMAN FLOWERS, PORTSMOUTH, OHIO

Buchbinder's Refrigerators

BEST BY TEST

T. HAROLD COFFMAN writes:

"As you well know, when we bought the display box of you at the flower show at Indianapolis last spring, we told you that we had another box in our main store from another firm and, after comparison, would give the next order to whichever one gave the best service. We soon found that yours was the best and, upon arriving in Chicago in July, called you without seeing anyone else in regard to the fixtures for our new Portsmouth store."

The Buchbinder Refrigerator was awarded the S. A. F. Certificate of Merit at the National Flower Show, Indianapolis, March, 1922, the Judges being Geo. V. Wienhoeber, of Chicago; C. E. Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, and W. Atlee Burpee, the famous Philadelphian.

The installation of modern, up-to-the-minute Flower Shops with small initial investment, is an opportunity which the Buchbinder service offers. Write us about it.

ANNIE LAURIE

This new rose is best described by saying it is really

A DOUBLE BUTTERFLY

With a deeper pink color that gradually fades into a tinge of gold at the base of each petal.

It has twice the petalage of its parents and is more productive.

SUPER-SUPREME

Visit our place and have a look at the improvement on Enchantress Supreme, from which it sported.

You will want to grow it after comparing the two varieties. The Color is what will catch your eye, the same as it does every other visitor here. Super-Supreme should displace the parent variety as rapidly as stock becomes available. Order yours now.

You Who Look For Something Better!

Commonwealth is better than existing roses. Montgomery's dark pink seedling will please you. We have confidence in Commonwealth and have shown our faith by placing plants of this new rose with the following firms for trial. These men have our full permission to tell the truth. We have not asked them to be charitable as regards any faults that the rose may have. We have placed the rose with these growers that the story of Commonwealth may be the story of honest endeavor to give the rose growers of America something better than we have had before. See Commonwealth with your nearest neighbor; or, better still, come to Cromwell and see it here. These men are growing it:

Got Yours Ordered?

Our stock is very good, the best ever. The recent hot spell has ripened the wood. They should force easily and give plenty of flowers. Others succeeded and so can you. And they ARE profitable—5-inch plants will average 6 flowers.

Our collection is the most complete; your favorite variety IS HERE in all sizes from from 5, 6, 7-inch pots and larger at 40c, 60c, 75c and up to $3.00; 4-inch sizes at 25c are very few—they grew too big this season. List on request.

TERMS:

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

TALKING FLOWERS AT TURKEY TIME

Admittedly, the trade, in developing a demand for flowers at Thanksgiving time, cannot hope to displace the time-honored turkey. But, certainly, we can make flowers an important auxiliary in adding to the joy of the occasion. They are an aesthetic side dish to go with the festal bird.

THANKSGIVING, it has been said, is characterized by two main functions: First, eating; second, expression of gratitude for benefits received; some place one first, some, the other. The giving of thanks is characterized by sincere gratitude offered up in the church or in the home, or in both places. Eating at Thanksgiving is characterized mostly by turkey. Generations of literature, custom and instruction have made it so; we, ourselves, are convinced of the fact. It is unlikely we can ever succeed in establishing flowers as the conspicuous symbol of this festive occasion. Turkey continues the symbol of the day, though most eat chicken or pot roast.

The Optimistic Conjunction.

But—and here is a conjunction important to us—we can establish flowers as the foremost auxiliary of the accepted Thanksgiving conventions—with the turkey and with the prayers. In the church flowers will help in the services of devotion. At the turkey-laden table they will add to the general good cheer as the "gray-haired New Englander sees 'round his board the old, broken links of affection restored."

And to the mother whose especial task it is to prepare the huge repast in the home, what could be more indicative of thankfulness than a huge bouquet of mums or roses from father, son or guest, to repay her for the lame back and tired arms sustained in basting and wrestling with the great turkey in the oven?

Sentiment Can Sell.

Then, there are so many hotels where great crowds of people each year enjoy their Thanksgiving meal. Here flowers can enhance the occasion, and it is a thoughtless chief steward who will not have plenty of flowers on the tables, if the argument in their behalf is rightly presented to him.

And in the hospitals, where there are so many who will not be able to partake of physical food this Thanksgiving, the æsthetic sustenance offered in a vase of flowers will go a long way in making the hours lose their tediousness. There are organizations in every town that can be appealed to along this line. Hospitals are well populated with soldiers of the world war. Does not the public owe them gratitude? Why not teach the public the point?

Thanksgiving day is primarily a day born of sentiment. And on Thanksgiving day people are full of sentiment. This opens an approach for our business. Here is an occasion ignorant of quotations of prices and technical descriptions. Let the mums be long-stemmed; let them be short-stemmed; let them cost 5 cents or a dollar; it makes but little difference. The point is that we must base our business-developing campaign on the spirit of the day, expressing ourselves in a quiet, dignified language, rather than in flaring words, as though the demand were already established and we were just simply announcing our ability to fill innumerable orders better than Jones the Florist, next door. At Mothers' day we must use one kind of ammunition; at Memorial day, another, and on this occasion the conditions require a still different approach.

The method of campaign decided upon, there are various agents to further the attack. Some choose newspapers, some direct-mail communication; some prefer the telephone; some select window display; some favor placing advertisements on the movie screens, and others have still other ideas.

Individuals as Such.

On this occasion, as on most others, the types of advertising are two—individual and coöperative. Both aim to be constructive. A fine example of individual advertising last year was that of George Wienhoeber, Chicago. A reproduction of one of his advertisements is shown on the following page. It is in the main a constructive type, aiming to develop business for all, rather than an opposition-to-the-florist-next-door kind. The keynote of the advertisement is shown in these words: "The spiritual side of this great American holiday expresses itself more and more in flowers that are appropriate." Note also how the telegraph delivery idea is emphasized in the final words: "Orders to points outside Chicago are handled through our dispatch service."

Ideas Produce Methods.

There are other ways in which tradesmen advertise as individuals. For instance, last year Clody's Flower Shop, Chicago, sent out to its customers a folder the size of a postcard when folded. On this was shown a family at dinner, with a huge vase of mums adorning the table. Under this was inscribed the following:

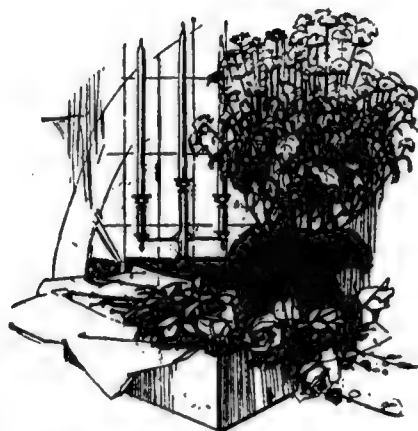

FLOWERS FOR THANKSGIVING.

Your hostess will appreciate a gift of flowers—it will be the truest token of your thoughtfulness.

If you are to entertain guests, they will sense it as a compliment to them if flowers adorn the table and are placed here and there about the house.

This advertisement appeals to both the entertainer and the entertained; it emphasizes flowers in general—not only this firm's flowers—as purveyors of good thoughts, and it exemplifies the Thanksgiving attitude.

Many advertising as individuals aim to impress the telegraph delivery idea on their customers. Max Schling, of New York, last year at Thanksgiving

"Say it with Flowers" Thanksgiving

YOUR HOSTESS, whether relative or friend, will appreciate a gift of Flowers—it will be the truest token of your appreciation.

IF YOU ARE TO ENTERTAIN, your guests will sense it as a compliment to them if Flowers adorn the table, and are placed here and there about the house.

THE FOLKS BACK HOME—Send them a Thanksgiving Flower Greeting. Place your order with any florist. He will transmit the order by Telegraph to a reliable Florist in the city or town where the HOME FOLKS LIVE. The flowers can be delivered within a few hours' time.

Say "Thanksgiving" With Flowers

Let flowers complete the Thanksgiving festivities

If you are to entertain this Thanksgiving, let flowers, especially Chrysanthemums, radiate that cheer and brilliancy which always completes a finished setting.

If you are to be a guest, a gift of flowers will please your hostess and express your grateful appreciation of her hospitality.

The gorgeous blossoms of the Chrysanthemums carry, as do Lilies at Easter, the spirit of the season time sent folders on the order of that above mentioned to a considerable number of retailers, in which he quoted prices on everything for Thanksgiving, thus developing telegraph business within the trade.

Penn the Florist, of Boston, in his usual way, last year presented to the public a series of advertisements several days in advance of Thanksgiving and in this manner assured his customers of active service on his part. He emphasized the telegraph idea in almost every instance; in most cases he supported his statements with quotations of prices, generally on mums, which he was featuring especially for Thanksgiving. One of his advertisements is shown on the following page.

Down South.

Sections all over the country have found that pulling together is the preferable business-getter for Thanksgiving. Down in Knoxville, Tenn., for instance, last year Crouch the Florist, Baum's Home of Flowers, the McNutt Floral Co. and Dailey's contracted for a whole page in a local paper. Here they ran an illustration of a huge turkey and right across its body placed in large type their services at the command of the public.

Out West.

And out in Los Angeles, Cal., last year the Alexandria Florist, the Athletic Club Florist, Walter Armacost & Co., the Broadway Florist, Darling's Shop, Paul J. Howard, Howard & Smith, D. S. Purdie & Co., the Redondo Floral Co., Roy F. Wilcox & Co., Wolf-skill's & Morris Goldenson and Wright's Flower Shop featured Thanksgiving on a full page of the Los Angeles Examiner, surrounded by a wreath of flowers. These firms emphasized the following thought, besides instilling the telegraph idea with a picture of flying Mercury, the symbol of telegraph business:

THANKSGIVING.

This day has been proclaimed and set apart for thanksgiving and praise to God for the mercies of the past year.

"Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, drink and to be merry." Eccl. 8:15.

But as families meet everywhere in our fair land at the festive board, no table will be complete without the beauty and art that can only be acquired by the final touch—the floral decorations.

The sweetest sentiments are always, and only, expressed through the gift of beautiful flowers.

Hence, too, let us not overlook those of our beloved ones who may be far away, and cannot return to the festive board; or those who have no homes where they may gather, and gladden their days by "saying it with flowers."

Florists represented on this page have anticipated your requirements, and will help you by filling your orders—in the proper celebrating of Thanksgiving day.

The Seattle Florists' Organization, of Seattle, Wash., always up to the times, made its appeal with the coöperative effort shown on this page. This, like almost all other advertisements employed last year, is dignified in its bearing and speaks to the Thanksgiving state of mind.

The Central States.

The Allied Florists' Association, of Chicago, not to be outdone by any in the country, made its appeal through the advertisement which is shown on the preceding page. This specimen is a real business-builder and has a three-fold appeal in these words:

ON THANKSGIVING.

YOUR HOSTESS, whether relative or friend, will appreciate a gift of Flowers—it will be the truest token of your appreciation.

IF YOU ARE TO ENTERTAIN, your guests will sense it as a compliment to them if Flowers adorn the table, and are placed here and there about the house.

THE FOLKS BACK HOME—Send them a Thanksgiving Flower Greeting. Place your order with any florist. He will transmit the order by Telegraph to a reliable Florist in the city or town where the HOME FOLKS LIVE. The flowers can be delivered within a few hours' time.

Allied Florists' Association.

All this effort throughout the United States on the part of the trade to enliven the Thanksgiving demand shows that there are wonderful possibilities in the occasion. This is a constructive campaign, a battle of ability to produce a great fire from a tiny coal that glows for the eyes of those who possess the initiative to look forward for greater fields in which to carry the beauty of flowers. Let us all pull together for the common good of the trade.

MISSOURIANS MEET.

Make Tour at St. Louis.

The annual meeting of the Missouri State Florists' Association was held in the coliseum, St. Louis, Mo., Friday, November 10, in connection with the St. Louis fall flower show and the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America.

About twenty-five members met at 10 a. m. and, under the direction of President W. A. Rowe, were taken in automobiles on a tour of inspection of various greenhouses in the county. At noon the party was treated to an enjoyable lunch at the Kirkwood Country Club.

Among the greenhouses visited were those of A. Jablonsky, John Steidle and Otto Bruenig, at Clayton, Mo.

Mr. Jablonsky has over 40,000 square feet devoted exclusively to carnations. He is the originator of the famous Carnation Betty Jane.

Mr. Steidle's range is devoted principally to potted plants and carnations. Chatelaine Supreme, Mrs. Patten and other begonias were conspicuous in the kinds of potted plants grown.

Mr. Bruenig has over 25,000 square feet devoted exclusively to roses, such as Columbia, Premier, Butterfly and Sunburst, all of which are in excellent condition.

The party was next shown through the W. A. Rowe place, at Kirkwood, Mo. Here there are 165,000 square feet of glass, devoted principally to chrysanthemums and carnations, there being 140,000 carnation plants and several of the late and interesting varieties of chrysanthemums and pompons. Mr. Rowe has originated a new double golden calendula, which has not yet been given a name. He is cutting about 2,000 of these blooms per day for the St. Louis market.

was called to order at 8 p. m. at the Coliseum by President Rowe. About twenty-five members were in attendance. President Rowe's address followed; he outlined the work accomplished by the association during the past year and explained the objects of the association, which are mainly to watch legislation and promote in all possible ways the art of floriculture and ornamental horticulture.

The report of Secretary William Wade showed total receipts for the year of $225.49; expenditures, $88.33. There is a balance of $137.16 on hand.

Under the head of new business, there were many interesting discussions on various subjects, principally on what one should do and what one should not do for the good of the association; also, concerning the advisability of amalgamating the state horticultural, the nursery and the florists' societies into one organization. Among those who gave talks on the subject were S. Brynion Ayres, of Independence, Mo.; Fred H. Weber, Frank A. Windler and A. M. Vard, of St. Louis; Prof. H. C. Irish, of Webster Groves; Dr. J. E. Cannady, of Sedalia, and A. J. Butterfield, of Farmington. At the conclusion, a motion was made by Mr. Butterfield and carried that the society authorize the executive committee to take up all matters of legislation of interest to these societies with them and cooperate with them in every way for results.

In discussing where the next meeting of the association should be held, Dr. J. E. Cannady extended a cordial invitation for it to be held in Sedalia and, upon motion of Prof. H. C. Irish, it was so decided; the time of the meeting is to be left to the executive committee.

The election of officers resulted in the unanimous selection of the following: President, W. A. Rowe; vice-president, T. J. Noll, Kansas City, Mo.; secretary, A. J. Butterfield, Farmington, Mo.; treasurer, William Wade, Kansas City. J. J. B.

For 200 blooms of single violets, H. Meyer, Webster Groves, Mo., received first and William Meyer, second.

For 100 spikes of valley with natural foliage, G. B. Windler received first prize.

For novelty arrangements in water, F. H. Weber was awarded first; Newman Flower Shoppe, second, and Fred C. Weber, third.

The following received honorable mention: Jensen, Inc., for the best novelty at the show; University of Illinois, floriculture department, for a collection of seedling pompon chrysanthemums.

Certificates of merit were given the Stuppy Floral Co., for Rose Annie Laurie, and to A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., for Rose Commonwealth.

The $50 silver cup offered by the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., of St. Louis, for the sweepstake prize in the retail exhibit, was awarded Joseph Witek, who won seven first prizes.

Friday, November 10, in the retailers' exhibits, Joseph Witek won first for a table decoration; F. H. Weber won second and the Sanders Nursery Co., third.

For Non-Competition.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., exhibited a magnificent vase of Hill's America, which won the admiration of all who attended the show.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed a large vase of the firm's Commonwealth rose.

A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington,

Ill., had two splendid vases, one each of Premier and Columbia.

The Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., exhibited a large vase of its new rose, Annie Laurie.

A. Jablonsky, Olivette, Mo., showed a magnificent vase of Betty Jane carnations. Mr. Jablonsky also staged a vase of his new Carnation Olivette, which was much admired.

Banquet a Dandy.

The banquet in connection with the fall flower show at the Claridge hotel Thursday evening, November 9, was a wonderful affair from a social standpoint. About 300 St. Louis florists and out-of-town guests, with their ladies, attended. The tables were tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums, and the center of the banquet hall, where the musicians were stationed, was banked with palms.

The evening's fun started with high-class singing and dancing by professional talent. An impromptu fake argument was staged between one of the guests and one of the entertainers disguised as a waiter and, after the other guests realized it as a joke, it tended to make everyone congenial and sociable.

Chairman J. F. Ammann, of the St. Louis Flower Show Association, was called on for a few remarks, and in view of the fact that speeches were taboo, he confined himself to thanking everyone connected with the show for their splendid cooperation. Secretary Johnson, of the mum society, responded for that organization in a few well chosen remarks.

Throughout the banquet the entire assemblage joined at intervals in community singing.

The floor was cleared for dancing, and it was a most successful party. One of the visitors remarked, "I have attended many florists' affairs throughout the country, but this is the most congenial and sociable I have ever attended."

ST. LOUIS FLORISTS' CLUB.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held November 9, in the Coliseum building, where the fall flower show was held.

The meeting was called to order by President Frank Windler. The attendance numbered 100. The roll call of officers showed all present.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been approved and all bills paid, the trustees reported that everything was in readiness for the banquet for the visiting florists, to be held at the Claridge hotel. Also it was reported that the December meeting of the club would be held at the new headquarters of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

S. C. Taylor, of Webster Groves, Mo., filed application for membership. The following were elected to membership: Erwin Dotzman, Edward H. Harvey, Ernest Mackle, Otto Gokenbach and William Figge.

The prize drawing resulted as follows: Miss Gussie Mallery won first; as she was present, she claimed the prize. The second was won by Herman Gross, but the gentleman was not present and could not claim the prize.

For the good of the club the chair called upon W. A. Amling, of Pana, Ill., who responded with a fine talk on the flower show and present business conditions. He was followed by R. J. Windler, of Chicago, ex-president of the Florists' Club, with remarks to fit the occasion. Herbert Amling, of Pana, Ill.; E. C. Stammerjohn, of Boonville, Mo.; L. J. Bourdet, W. A. Rowe and Claude Wisely, of Murphysboro, Ill., all made talks on the flower show.

Other usual business was dispensed with and the meeting adjourned. After this all inspected the best fall flower show ever held in St. Louis.

Saginaw, Mich.—Carl L. Roethke has purchased the stock of the William Roethke Floral Co. held by his brother, Otto T. Roethke, who is retiring from active interest in the firm. This action makes the remaining brother almost the sole owner of the firm. The firm has two stores, which are supplied by the greenhouses on Gratiot avenue.

OPEN LETTERS FROM READERS

WHAT ARE YOUR EARNINGS?

The florist is often confronted with problems relative to the gross earnings of greenhouses; for example, he may be asked to state what gross earnings a range of 25,000 square feet of glass should produce, taking into consideration that there are four acres of land connected with the range. Relative to the stock grown, I should say that this varies with each individual grower; some growers specialize in roses, others in carnations, while still others produce a general line of miscellaneous stock, and do a little retailing in connection with their wholesaling whenever conditions warrant. Some ranges are nearer the city than others, which fact enables them to get the required amount of help more easily than others who are not so conveniently situated. But, in general, the problem is: What will a range of 25,000 square feet of glass, with four acres of land, growing pot plants, seedlings and cut flowers, produce in the way of gross earnings?

In addition to the above-mentioned variations in different establishments, there are others; namely, taxes, labor, water, coal and insurance. These are items which vary in each range, but in the case of the problem mentioned above, the retail element need not be considered, as this end of the business is done at the greenhouses.

The net earnings are a factor in themselves, as conditions vary here also. Some men are better adapted to the work which they are doing than others; some are more experienced and more conscientious than others; but by no means can it be said that the veteran in the business is better than the younger talent. It has been proved in other occupations than floriculture that the student is sometimes better than the master. The matter of how old the range is and how extensively it is equipped with latest labor-saving devices will make a big difference in the gross and, consequently, in the net earnings of the range.

Gross earnings, net earnings, depreciation of range, expenses—all of these items have to be enumerated carefully these days, and if they are not you will soon hear from Uncle Sam.

One could also write on the market conditions. It seems that if a grower has a good crop and meets the market well, he is exceedingly well paid if his products sell for enough to enable him to meet all of his expenses in these times. The question is, are we getting our share? Are we getting value received for the amount of money invested? It is a hard statement, but statistics and facts are available in all other lines of endeavor; why not in ours? The florists' business requires as much capital to enter and operate as any other business, and it is looked upon with favor by the public. When we go to the bank and ask for money, does not the banker ask for a statement of your business and collateral? I should like to hear from other florists on this question, in order to make comparisons and find out where we stand.

MUMS AT MINNEAPOLIS

TWIN CITIES STAGE BIG SHOW.

Well Finished Exhibition.

No finer display of flowers, from the public's point of view, has been made this fall than that which occupied the Kenwood armory at Minneapolis this week. At other shows there may have been more flowers, but at none was the arrangement better. The armory was laid out in the plan of a formal garden, and the annex was as if planted with growing stock. This latter feature won unstinted praise from the trade and unfailing "oh's" and "ah's" from the public.

Both the armory and annex were decorated with southern smilax and evergreen trees as a background for the exhibits. In the main hall, southern smilax formed a canopy, streamers of which ran from a central point in the ceiling to points along the balcony. Electric lights were placed among the streamers. Smilax was also used about the walls of the armory, on top of panels, which had been used to cover the unsightly wall.

The floor of the armory was laid out as a formal garden. Potted chrysanthemums, ferns, palms, begonias, cyclamens and other plants were grouped in the four large beds of this garden, about a central circular one of potted mums. Outside these beds, a pergola was erected, which was covered with smilax. Vases of large-flowered chrysanthemums and specimen plants were placed in the irregular beds on either side of the pergolas. Tables were arranged along the walls to accommodate cut flowers, such as roses, carnations, spray chrysanthemums and miscellaneous flowers. A great deal of money and effort was expended in making the setting for the exhibits artistic, a feature much appreciated by both trade and public.

Sunken Garden.

In the annex the ground had been excavated, and the space laid out in the form of a sunken garden. The walls were covered with exhibits of nursery stock, principally evergreens, bright-colored shrubs and small trees. The nurseries placing these exhibits were the Hoyt Landscape Nursery and Holm & Olson, St. Paul, and C. N. Ruedlinger, C. C. Hunter & Co., Harry Franklin Baker and the Rose Hill Nursery, Minneapolis. These exhibits were all nicely arranged in the form of irregular plantings, with open spaces representing lawn. The lawn effect throughout the annex and armory was obtained by using green sawdust. Harry Franklin Baker, the Rose Hill Nursery and Holm & Olson used lawn furniture in their exhibits. Holm & Olson and the Rose Hill Nursery also entered in the class for miniature home grounds, placing their exhibits as a part of their nursery displays. Holm & Olson won first place and Rose Hill, second, both having most attractive exhibits. The nursery exhibits were not in competition.

The sunken garden was designed and planted by Louis Boeglin, city horticulturist for the park board. Chrysanthemums, geraniums, begonias, celosias and alternantheras were used in the beds and as specimen plants. As a center for the garden, an electric fountain similar to that at the national flower show was loaned by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. A bedded walk circled the garden, separating it from the nursery exhibits on the sides. Overhead were baskets of plants. An electric piano and a phonograph furnished music while visitors toured the garden.

Music in the armory was furnished by an orchestra of fourteen pieces every afternoon and evening. The only booth in the hall was that arranged by the Garden and Flower Society, in which were sold candy and flowers, the proceeds from which will be used in furnishing the hospitals of the Twin Cities, in which there are disabled soldiers, with flowers during the winter. During each of the first two days of the show this booth took in over $200.

For Exhibition.

The Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., put up a noteworthy collection of blooms for exhibition only, filling fifty vases with stock of the sort it ships to customers. There were large-flowered mums, pompons and singles, roses, carnations and valley, all of excellent quality.

Blooms of the white carnation, Harvester, grown by Kirscht Bros., Morton Grove, Ill., were displayed by A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.

Two large vases of Rose Annie Laurie, from the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., showed this new variety in excellent form.

E. G. Hill's new rose, America, was given the platform in the center of the hall upon its arrival Monday afternoon, after the christening ceremonies were over.

showed signs of their long journey from Cromwell, Conn., but northwesterners were grateful for the opportunity to see this new variety of A. N. Pierson, Inc.

The exhibit of the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, was staged for display only. It indicated the quality of the cut stock available for the trade of the northwest out of the great central market. Among the roses were Premier and Milady, from the Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood; Mrs. Harding, Crusader and Golden Ophelia, from the Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst; Sunburst, from Wehrman & Wehrman; Golden Rule, from the Dramm Greenhouse Co., Elmhurst; Columbia, from the Weiss & Meyer Co., Maywood; Butterfly and White Killarney, from the Batavia Greenhouse Co., Batavia, and long-stemmed Butterfly, from F. W. Kuhlmann, Maywood. Carnations included Maine Sunshine, from V. Bezdek, and White Matchless, Laddie, Topsy, Ethel Fisher and Happy Day, from the Richmond Greenhouse Co., Richmond, Ind. H. N. Bruns' valley was shown. The large-flowered mums included Bonnaffon, grown by Charles Paulson, Arlington Heights, and Celebration, Zola and Muskoka, by Henry Wehrman, Maywood. Mr. Wehrman also grew most of the numerous varieties of pompons sent, a highly interesting and excellent assortment, including Flora, Juliana, Little Tot, Bright Eyes, Kewpie, White Midget, Baby Doll, Puritan, Anna L. The varieties, Buckingham and Mensa, were shown, of Peter Hierems' growing. Winterberries and coontie leaves completed the array.

Mazey filled a space at the far end of the hall with specimens of the retailer's art in large baskets of cut blooms and corsages. The public showed great interest in this display, admiring the quality of the work.

A group of unnamed seedlings of pompon mums raised at the University of Illinois and grown in the park greenhouses were looked over interestedly by florists.

John Sten, Red Wing, Minn., put up an especially fine large vase of mums.

Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad Co., showed an excellent group of chrysanthemums, some cut flowers and potted plants. These were of an especially fine quality and won prizes in the non-professional classes.

Plant Classes.

The classes for foliage plants included a great quantity of excellent stock. It is noteworthy, however, that out of the eighteen classes, Holm & Olson captured first prize in sixteen and second in the other two, first being taken by Swanson's, Inc. The awards were as follows:

Decorative plants covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; H. F. Baker, third.

Specimen foliage plants other than those named in preceding classes—Holm & Olson, first.

Blooming Plants.

Among the plants in the group of blooming plants covering fifty square feet with which the Merriam Park Floral Co. captured first prize were lilies, cyclamens, begonias and rambler roses. The last-named aroused the interest of trade visitors, who questioned Max Kaiser as to how he got them in such perfect bloom at this time of year. He explained that these plants, 2-year-old stock left over last Easter, were plunged outdoors, dried off for four weeks in July and then forced in the usual way, requiring seven weeks in the greenhouse. All the plants were Mme. Levavasseur except two of Echo.

The group of orchid plants displayed by Holm & Olson was one of the most attractive features of the show. About a waterfall, orchids and other closely related plants were grouped. The group occupied a space about twenty-five feet long, to a height of about fifteen feet, on the wall opposite the entrance, affording an attractive view to those entering the hall.

The awards were:

Group of blooming plants to cover fifty square feet; foliage plants may be used as an accessory, but not to predominate; palms and chrysanthemums barred—Merriam Park Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

Group display of orchid plants, not less than twenty-five orchid plants in bloom to be shown; any accessories for effect may be used—Holm & Olson, first.

Twelve cyclamen plants—Swanson's, Inc., first; Holm & Olson, second; Merriam Park Floral Co., third.

Twelve primulas, any variety—Lester Park Greenhouse, Duluth, first.

Six begonias, Lorraine type—Holm & Olson, first; Merriam Park Floral Co., second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

Six begonias, semperflorens type—Holm & Olson, first.

Twelve berried plants—H. F. Baker, first; Holm & Olson, second; Merriam Park Floral Co., third.

Chrysanthemum Plants.

Ceremonies.

The formal opening of the show took place Saturday, November 11. Mayor George E. Leach spoke briefly on the civic value of a flower show. Admiral W. S. Benson gave a brief address.

showed signs of their long journey from Cromwell, Conn., but northwesterners were grateful for the opportunity to see this new variety of A. N. Pierson, Inc.

The exhibit of the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, was staged for display only. It indicated the quality of the cut stock available for the trade of the north-west out of the great central market. Among the roses were Premier and Milady, from the Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood; Mrs. Harding, Crusader and Golden Ophelia, from the Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst; Sunburst, from Wehrman & Wehrman; Golden Rule, from the Drumm Greenhouse Co., Elmhurst; Columbia, from the Weiss & Meyer Co., Maywood; Butterfly and White Killarney, from the Batavia Greenhouse Co., Batavia, and long-stemmed Butterfly, from F. W. Kuhlmann, Maywood. Carnations included Maine Sunshine, from V. Bezdek, and White Matchless, Laddie, Topsy, Ethel Fisher and Happy Day, from the Richmond Greenhouse Co., Richmond, Ind. H. N. Bruns' valley was shown. The large-flowered mums included Bonaffon, grown by Charles Paulson, Arlington Heights, and Celebration, Zola and Muskoka, by Henry Wehrman, Maywood. Mr. Wehrman also grew most of the numerous varieties of pompons sent, a highly interesting and excellent assortment, including Flora, Juliana, Little Tot, Bright Eyes, Kewpie, White Midget, Baby Doll, Puritan, Anna L. Moran, Varsity, Mrs. Chester Robinson, Nelma Putnam, Mrs. H. F. Vincent, Frances Huckvale, Golden Feather, Laura Davenport, Adelaide, Illona, Baby, Vivian Martin, Golden Queen, Elizabeth McDowell, November Gold, Susquehanna, Bopeep, Maple Leaf, Clara Jameson, New York, Welcome, Paulina Wilcox, Nellie Irwin, The Chief and Mary Pickford. The varieties, Buckingham and Mensa, were shown, of Peter Hierems' growing. Winterberries and coontie leaves completed the array.

Ceremonies.

The formal opening of the show took place Saturday, November 11. Mayor George E. Leach spoke briefly on the civic value of a flower show. Admiral W. S. Benson gave a brief address.

Mrs. Leach was presented a bouquet via F. T. D. Downtown pedestrians were showered with flowers from an aeroplane.

Monday afternoon, rose day on the program, a ceremony of christening was held. On the platform in the center of the hall were the judges of the show, J. J. Hess, Omaha; W. J. Smyth, Chicago, and Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit. The chairman of the show activities, Theodore Wirth, introduced Mr. Breitmeyer, who spoke entertainingly to the audience of visitors. Then two society buds performed the rites of christening—with water. The pink commercial chrysanthemum from Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., was named Cho-cho-san, for the heroine of the opera, "Madame Butterfly." The yellow sport of Rose Columbia, from A. N. Kinsman, Inc., Austin, Minn., was named Galli-Curci. Then each of the eight young ladies on the platform was presented a corsage made by Mazey.

A banquet was arranged for Monday evening, November 13, for which a number of out-of-town florists came. O. J. Olson shot seventy-five mallards for the occasion. J. J. West was toastmaster.

Publicity.

Much advertising was done to make the show a success. Posters were in nearly every store window. Nicollet and Hennepin avenues were lined with evergreens, covering the lamp posts, marked with arrows pointing in the direction of the flower festival. The local newspapers gave much reading space to the affair, and Sunday, November 12, the Minneapolis Journal published a 12-page flower festival section. In it was news of the show, articles about flowers, shrubs and trees, and advertisements of the following members of the trade:

The Workers.

The splendid coöperation of the park board and the local trade was productive of notable results. Theodore Wirth's energy will be remembered from the occasion of the S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis in 1913, when he established the convention gardens—which remain today alongside the Kenwood armory, where the convention was held. The park board, under his direction, spent thousands of dollars in preparing stock for the show, in excavating for and planting the sunken garden and in providing material for the main hall.

The trade of the Twin Cities worked equally hard. No guarantee fund was established; tickets were sold at face value, 50 cents each, to members of the trade, who resold or distributed them to the public. Of these, 22,000 had been sold before the show opened, providing $11,000 toward expenses. The attendance was restricted on opening day by Armistice day festivities; 1,780 were the official figures. Sunday was better, 3,346 being present. Monday a good attendance was registered despite rain.

In providing exhibits, the local trade came strongly to the fore also. Holm & Olson, for example, made no fewer than seventy-nine entries, some of them calling for a considerable quantity of stock.

The members of the trade who assisted in the promotion of the show were Theodore Wirth, general chairman; Hugh Will, chairman of finance committee; O. J. Olson, chairman of premium committee; C. F. Rice, chairman of publicity committee; Louis Boeglin, superintendent of show; Le Roy Cady, secretary; Hans Rosacker, A. Lauritzen, R. A. Latham, C. F. Kimmey, F. W. Topel, A. Forehas, C. N. GLADIOLUS BLACK-ROT.

I have mailed you a package of Francis King gladiolus bulbs which are affected with some kind of disease. Kindly inform me what this disease is, and mention a remedy for it if there is any. Is it safe to use corrosive sublimate? How long can the bulbs be submerged without injury? C. S. B.—III.

These bulbs are affected with the disease commonly known as black-rot.

— Cut Blooms Staged at Minneapolis by Holton & Hunkel Co. for Exhibition Only.

Section of Minneapolis Show Occupied by Some of the Prize-Winning Exhibits of Swanson's, Inc.

This disease is caused by planting in too heavy a soil, probably containing a largest white and the largest yellow one remedy. Plant them next season in a sandy soil, and the disease will disappear.

Regarding a chemical treatment, we can offer no advice. We have never resorted to a chemical treatment of any kind and should not advise this method of treatment. P. Vos & Son.

SCRANTON'S SECOND SHOW.

Maintains High Standard.

The Scranton flower show closed Friday night, November 10, after a most successful exhibition in every sense of the word. The overhead and side wall decorations had been made for the recent automobile show at an expense of about $1,500. The Scranton Florists' Club was able to secure these decorations of H. B. Andrews, director of the automobile show, at a quite reasonable price. The spaces between the trusses, twenty feet each, were spanned with white. The trusses were covered with the national colors, hanging three feet below. The side walls were covered with navy blue, studded with gold stars.

The large mound of plants displayed by Anton Schultheis, nephew of A. Schultheis, College Point, N. Y., won first prize. T. B. McClintock won second prize. These were in the growers' class. Robert Stobo, gardener for M. B. Fuller, won the prize for gardeners. Mr. Stobo also took many prizes for chrysanthemums of different types and sizes, also for groups and specimen plants. G. R. Clark took first prize on both the largest white and the largest yellow chrysanthemum on a 12-inch stem. First prize on a bridal bouquet was also won by him.

Many Fine Exhibits.

Beautiful roses came from the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., taking some of the first prizes. E. J. LeDuc, A.

Underwood, the Bloomsburg Floral Co., J. L. Dillon and the S. S. Pennock Co. all had large exhibits and carried off their share of the honors. Rain fell two days of the show, but Friday, November 10, was a beautiful day and brought out a large attendance.

On the left side of the armory were the booths of A. L. Besancon & Co., Chas. O'Boyle, G. R. Clark, A. R. Muir, Schultheis, Florist, Vanston & Moran and J. W. Beagle. On the opposite side were those of the Hyde Park Florist, the West Side Floral Shop, the New York Floral Co., D. W. Evans and Blickens, Florist. The city had a large exhibit from Nay Aug park greenhouses, under the supervision of Thomas H. Phillips, park superintendent, and William Holcome, gardener. The baskets of outdoor flowers and berries arranged by school children attracted a great deal of attention and proved to be an important feature of the show. Mrs. J. B. Dimmick had a most attractive booth. An oil painting of a rugged stream, dressed on either side with evergreens and autumn foliage and with a window bow of adiantum at the base, was illuminated with a spot light, giving a most beautiful effect.

William MacDonald & Sons had a number of groups of plants, as well as a number of vases of choice chrysanthemums in various colors. Mrs. J. J. Wade, of Carbondale, took first prize on a vase of the largest chrysanthemums.

The table decorations were changed and accordingly judged each day. This created great interest and consequently great anticipation for next year's show, which will be largely increased in this particular line.

Trade Display.

Trade firms occupied the space at the farther end of the armory. B. E. & J. T. Cokely had a large display. The H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, represented by A. L. Goudy, had a fine display. The M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, represented by M. L. Ruch, had a large display of baskets, ribbons, wreaths and general florists' supplies. H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, represented by Messrs. Royer and Thor-some, had a fine-looking booth. The S. S. Pennock Co., represented by Mr. Zipperer, had a large supply of ribbons, chiffons and other necessities.

Visitors.

There was a large attendance of florists from northeastern Pennsylvania, lower New York and upper New Jersey. Among these visitors were noted the following:

Perkins, G. W., Fulton, N. Y.
Arnold, J. J., Homer, N. Y.
Savidge, P. M., Lewisburg, Pa.

Templeton, J., Plymouth, Pa.

Those in Charge.

B. E. Cokely, president of the Scranton Florists' Club, with the assistance of William MacDonald, had com-

Mrs. Leach was presented a bouquet via F. T. D. Downtown pedestrians were showered with flowers from an aeroplane.

Monday afternoon, rose day on the program, a ceremony of christening was held. On the platform in the center of the hall were the judges of the show, J. J. Hess, Omaha; W. J. Smyth, Chicago, and Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit. The chairman of the show activities, Theodore Wirth, introduced Mr. Breitmeyer, who spoke entertainingly to the audience of visitors. Then two society buds performed the rites of christening with water. The pink commercial chrysanthemum from Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., was named Cho-cho-san, for the heroine of the opera, "Madame Butterfly." The yellow sport of Rose Columbia, from A. N. Kinsman, Inc., Austin, Minn., was named Galli-Curci. Then each of the eight young ladies on the platform was presented a corsage made by Mazey.

A banquet was arranged for Monday evening, November 13, for which a number of out of town florists came. O. J. Olson shot seventy-five mallards for the occasion. J. J. West was toastmaster.

Publicity.

Much advertising was done to make the show a success. Posters were in nearly every store window. Nicotlet and Hennepin avenues were lined with evergreens, covering the lamp posts, marked with arrows pointing in the direction of the flower festival. The local newspapers gave much reading space to the affair, and Sunday, November 12, the Minneapolis Journal published a 12 page flower festival section. In it was news of the show, articles about flowers, shrubs and trees, and advertisements of the following members of the trade:

The Workers.

The splendid coöperation of the park board and the local trade was productive of notable results. Theodore Wirth's energy will be remembered from the occasion of the S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis in 1913, when he established the convention gardens which remain today alongside the Kenwood armory, where the convention was held. The park board, under his direction, spent thousands of dollars in preparing stock for the show, in excavating for and planting the sunken garden and in providing material for the main hall.

The trade of the Twin Cities worked equally hard. No guarantee fund was established; tickets were sold at face value, 50 cents each, to members of the trade, who resold or distributed them to the public. Of these, 22,000 had been sold before the show opened, providing $11,000 toward expenses. The attendance was restricted on opening day by Armistice day festivities; 1,780 were the official figures. Sunday was better, 3,346 being present. Monday a good attendance was registered despite rain.

In providing exhibits, the local trade came strongly to the fore also. Holm & Olson, for example, made no fewer than seventy-nine entries, some of them calling for a considerable quantity of stock.

The members of the trade who assisted in the promotion of the show were Theodore Wirth, general chairman; Hugh Will, chairman of finance committee; O. J. Olson, chairman of premium committee; C. F. Rice, chairman of publicity committee; Louis Boeglin, superintendent of show; Le Roy Cady, secretary; Hans Rosacker, A. Lauritzen, R. A. Latham, C. F. Kimmey, F. W. Topel, A. Forchas, C. N. Ruedlinger, O. H. Carlson, C. I. Lindskoog, Otto Vasatka, F. Nussbaumer, John P. Peterson, James Souden, Max Kaiser, John Rovik, J. J. West, H. E. Philpott, A. S. Rice and Mrs. E. H. Mazey.

B. E. Cokely, president of the Scranton Florists' Club, with the assistance of William MacDonald, had conplete charge of the floor space. Both gentlemen were constantly on hand to see that every detail was carried out. On the executive committee, besides the two mentioned, were J. T. Cokely, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. McClintock, A. Schultheis, Gertrude Schultheis, A. L. Besancon, Charles H. Dillon, A. R. Muir, J. Beagle, Robert Stobo and G. R. Clark. This committee gave a dinner at the Hotel Jermyn to the judges, who were A. Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, president of the S. A. F., and C. F. Baker, ex-mayor and present florist of Utica, N. Y. Mrs. Baker accompanied Mr. Baker to the show and dinner. They are on an extended trip to Philadelphia and other points of interest.

APHIS ON BLOOMING MUMS.

We should like to have your advice about fumigating greenhouses with nicotine paper for aphids on mums when they are nearly open enough for cutting.

W. B.—D. C.

Your greenhouses should not be fumigated after the color shows on your chrysanthemum buds. By the time the blooms are approaching readiness for cutting, aphids should have been cleaned out. Should it appear upon the buds or opening blooms, however, it must be routed, or the flowers will be spoiled. The method which is sometimes used at this stage is to tie a sheet of prepared tobacco paper around the stem, under, but close up to, the bud or bloom. The fumes of nicotine, slowly evaporating, will kill aphids and so save a flower that otherwise would be ruined.

CLEANING OLD GLASS.

How can we clean old glass? We are moving some greenhouses which have been standing for eighteen years.

O. K. G. & N. C.—O.

The cleaning of old glass is a rather difficult proposition. A method that gives fairly good results is to soak the glass in kerosene until the putty has been softened, and then cut the oil in a solution of caustic soda containing five pounds of caustic soda in ten gallons of water. After this treatment is completed, the putty can be readily scraped off. The glass should then be rinsed and dried.

THRIPS ON CALLAS.

In the greenhouses I have just taken over I have found several hundred callas in ground beds. I began letting them dry off about two weeks ago, but have just found out that they are badly infested with thrips, which were spreading to the new stock in the other houses. Although the plants were still partly green, I lifted them and laid them outside on the ground to finish drying off. I placed some of the tubers in a far corner of the houses, but do not like to put many there, for fear of the thrips. Outside, of course, they will get wet with each rain. Can you give me any advice in this matter?

C. T. H.—Ill.

Thrips are a dangerous pest on all roots and even on seeds. It would be advisable to give the tubers a soaking in a mixture of nicotine sulphate, one part, and water, 400 parts, allowing the tubers to soak for an hour. Add a little soap to make the liquid more pungent and adhesive; then spread the tubers out to dry. If you prefer, put the tubers in a small compartment and give them a dose of hydrocyanic acid gas. Probably, however, you will find the dipping to be less trouble and more effective.

C. W.

PROPAGATING POLYGONUM.

How should I propagate Polygonum Aubertii? I have made over 2,000 cuttings this season and tried to grow them in sand, but have only six plants.

P. W. S.—Kan.

The polygonums, particularly the perennial varieties such as Aubertii, are propagated by root division, though some of them are grown from seed.

NEWS NOTES

Collegeville, Pa.—George H. Rimby has taken over the business of his father, the late Horace Rimby.

West Plains, Mo.—Alfred Engelmann, of Marysville, Kan., in company with his son, will operate a business here. Mr. Englemann has purchased the Ozark Pansy Gardens.

Muncie, Ind.—Eric Buchholz, who operates the Flower Shop, at Main and Walnut streets, returned recently from Germany. Mr. Buchholz returned to Muncie full of new ideas, and his patrons are sure to receive the benefit of these.

Titusville, Pa.—L. J. Rowe has placed a repeat order with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago, for two more steel-frame greenhouses, one 30x299 and one 36x299. The first order Mr. Rowe gave the manufacturer, early in the season, also was for two houses of similar construction, one 36x299 and one 38x299. These are up and planted. Mr. Rowe's addition this season will cover 143x299 feet.

Niles, Mich.—The Hansen Nursery & Floral Co. is proud of the trade-mark it has adopted and has duly registered in the United States patent office at Washington, D. C. The trade-mark appears on the upper left-hand corner of the stationery used by the firm and may be described as an evergreen in a tube. Across the body of the tube appear the words "Nurserymen and Florists," while the center of the tree contains a disk, stamped around the edge with the name and address of the firm, and in the center of the disk appear the words "Grown in America."

Fairchance, Pa.—A reorganization of the Fairchance Greenhouse Co. has taken place. Wade H. Mahoney, who had been associated with A. M. Frederick, Sr., for the last three years, sold his interest in the company, which consisted of one-half the stock of plants and pots, supplies for design work, etc., to F. A. Morse. A new show room has been fitted out for both wholesale and retail trade, together with landscape jobs of all kinds. The firm reports the loss of its Christmas stock of poinsettias and a large quantity of Oconto mums, due to the fumes from boiler cement.

Dallas, Tex.—The board of appeals recently refused to grant permission to the Lang Floral & Nursery Co. to erect a 2-story brick building at McKinney and Haskell avenues, opposite the North Dallas high school. The attorney for the protestants argued that the building would provide a loafing place for the students, and that it would also be detrimental to the property values in that section. The attorney for the applicant stated that no loafing would be permitted in the drug or flower stores which were to occupy the proposed building. Otto H. Lang, president of the firm, stated that the refusal of the board to grant permission to erect the building was a virtual confiscation of the property of the firm. The case will be carried into court, to seek a reversal of the ruling.

NEW YORK MUM SHOWS

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY SHOW.

At New York.

The annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York was held in the American Museum of Natural History, November 9 to 12.

The show was larger this year than for some years previous. The foyer of the building presented a fine appearance. A large collection of plants exhibited by W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., took up nearly a quarter of the available space and was of great interest to the public.

This year the orchid section was taken from its usual place in the eastern aisle and the exhibits added to those in the foyer. Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., won first prize for a collection of twenty-five species and varieties, the exhibit also winning the sweepstake cup for the best exhibit in the show. The Julius Roehrs Co., Ruthersford, N. J., secured second.

The Joseph Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., was awarded first for a splendid collection of cut orchids.

Orchid Awards.

Lager & Hurrell gained firsts in the classes for six plants, six varieties, and three plants, three varieties. Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., won first for a collection of hybrids, not less than twenty plants, with the Julius Roehrs Co. second. Mr. Moore also won first for a new meritorious variety not in commerce. George Baldwin & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., were awarded a gold medal for the best hybrid orchid of recent origin.

The chrysanthemums shown were of good quality, but there was little in the way of novelty to be seen, excepting Princess Nagako, a Japanese yellow, named for the princess who is to marry the crown prince of Japan. The naming of the variety furnished an interesting ceremony. Henry W. Taft, president of the Japan Society, made an address in honor of the occasion, and K. Kumasaki, consul general of New York, accepted the flowers in behalf of the princess. The seedling was exhibited by the C. H. Totty Co. in a group setting and was awarded a silver medal.

Prize-winners in the commercial and open classes were:

Vase of twenty chrysanthemums—C. H. Totty Co., first.

Collection of twenty varieties chrysanthemums, one of each variety, five terminal sprays to a vase, not less than five flowers to a spray—C. H. Totty Co., first.

Collection of pompons, twelve varieties—C. H. Totty Co., first.

Collection of singles, twelve varieties—C. H. Totty Co., first.

Fifty roses, white—F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., first.

Fifty roses, red—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

Fifty roses, pink, Columbia shade—L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., first; F. R. Pierson Co., second.

Fifty roses, light pink, Ophelia shade—F. R. Pierson Co., first; L. B. Coddington, second.

Fifty roses, dark pink, Premier shade—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

Roses, new meritorious variety, not in commerce—C. H. Totty Co., silver medal.

Carnations—Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., silver medal.

Collection of Nephrolepis exaltata and its varieties, to cover 100 square feet—F. R. Pierson Co., first; W. A. Manda, second.

J. Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., special prize, silver medal, for Yellow Doty chrysanthemum.

W. A. Manda, special prize for twenty-five varieties Hedera helix.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., special prize for a collection of pompon chrysanthemums.

The C. H. Totty Co., special prize for a collection of pompon and single chrysanthemums.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE SHOW.

At New York.

The annual show, or ninety-first annual fair of the American Institute of New York was held in the Engineering Societies' building, New York, November 8 to 10.

While the display was not as large as last year, the stock staged was most creditable. There was little in point of novelty, unless one excepts a collection of Japanese anemone chrysanthemums staged by R. H. Schaeffer, gardener for Mrs. Richard Mortimer, Tuxedo Park, New York; these were most interesting, their difference from other types of chrysanthemums being remarkable, although only one variety showed commercial promise.

The C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., staged a splendid group at the head of the hall, chiefly of chrysanthemums, but including some excellent vases of roses, Premier, Yellow Ophelia, and the new yellow Souvenir de Claudius Pernet. The display was awarded a special prize. The same exhibitor also staged in vase and basket display the new rose, America, which was given a special award.

Few Commercial Exhibits.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., gained a special prize for five vases of pompons of the newer varieties, embracing Pauline Wilcox, bronze; New York, bronze; Louise Davenport, bronze; Western Beauty, pink, and November Gold.

In the commercial class for twenty blooms, one variety, long stems, the C. H. Totty Co., won first with the variety Wm. H. Waite. The same exhibitor carried off first in the commercial class for twenty-four blooms, twenty-four distinct varieties, one bloom of each. The C. H. Totty Co. also won first in the commercial class for a collection of twenty vases of pompons, ten sprays to a vase, among the named varieties being Bronze Doty, Golden Climax, Doris, Little Pet, Pink Pons, Snow Bird, Sarah Townsend, Captain Cook, Indian Hill, Yellow Gem, Rena and Adelaide H. Flint. Firsts in the classes for seedlings, sports and undistributed importations also went to the C. H. Totty Co. for white, yellow, pink and a vase of singles.

The commercial rose classes were poorly filled. W. W. Vert, Madison, N. J., scored first in the class for yellow.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., gained a special award for a vase of the new rose, Commonwealth, not staged for competition.

There were no entries in the commercial classes for carnations, but there were some good exhibits in the private classes.

Bush chrysanthemums were not prominent, Samuel Untermyer getting a first for a yellow plant of small size, and the Brooklyn department of parks receiving special awards for three fair-sized plants, staged at the entrance to the building and not entered for competition.

The private classes generally were filled, but competition was anything but keen. J. H. P.

BOSTON GROWER AT NEW YORK.

Simultaneous and Conflicting.

Chrysanthemums may be waning in interest and popular esteem in many cities, and it is true that specimen plants are now comparatively few in number and that especially big blooms are less abundant, the craze for each of these having temporarily subsided, but in New York at two exhibitions the same week there was a truly remarkable display of cut blooms and a fair sprinkling of trained specimen plants, showing that on many private estates large blooms are still favored. It seems a pity that two shows of mums should come together, even in so big a city as New York. Surely an amalgamation should be possible. If not, better space them a week apart, for to outsiders it seems absurd to have the same exhibitors contributing material to both shows in classes not at all dissimilar.

At the Institute Show.

The American Institute show is probably the older, but is the less important and interesting of the two. The show this year is poorly staged, the exhibits being badly arranged and crowded. This hall is a poor place to hold such a show, and it seems strange that, while an admission charge of 50 cents is made here, the much larger and more important show at the Museum of Natural History is absolutely free and attracts tremendous crowds of visitors.

At the Institute show C. H. Totty, the only commercial competitor with chrysanthemums, had in his collection of twenty-four varieties well finished flowers of pink, white and yellow Turner, Elberon, William H. Waite, Louisa Pockett, reflexed form; Earl Kitchener, Meudon, Percy A. Dore, Pockett's Crimson, Mrs. H. Lloyd Wigg, Sergeant Young, Yellow Pockett, Firestone, Godfrey's Perfection, Nagirroc, Orange Queen, Vermont and some good seedlings under number. In this collection of small-flowered varieties, the writer especially admired Floryanna, Excelsior and Mrs. Skiff, among the singles. Vases of roses, Souvenir de Claudius Pernet and Hill's America, attracted much attention.

Pompons Featured.

Cromwell Gardens featured such pompons as Western Beauty, Louise

plete charge of the floor space. Both gentlemen were constantly on hand to see that every detail was carried out. On the executive committee, besides the two mentioned, were J. T. Cokely, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. McClintock, A. Schultheis, Gertrude Schultheis, A. L. Besancon, Charles H. Dillon, A. R. Muir, J. Beagle, Robert Stobo and G. R. Clark. This committee gave a dinner at the Hotel Jermyn to the judges, who were A. Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.; S. S. Pennoek, Philadelphia, president of the S. A. F., and C. F. Baker, ex-mayor and present florist of Utica, N. Y. Mrs. Baker accompanied Mr. Baker to the show and dinner. They are on an extended trip to Philadelphia and other points of interest.

APHIS ON BLOOMING MUMS.

We should like to have your advice about fumigating greenhouses with nicotine paper for aphids on mums when they are nearly open enough for cutting.

W. B.—D. C.

Your greenhouses should not be fumigated after the color shows on your chrysanthemum buds. By the time the blooms are approaching readiness for cutting, aphids should have been cleaned out. Should it appear upon the buds or opening blooms, however, it must be routed, or the flowers will be spoiled. The method which is sometimes used at this stage is to tie a sheet of prepared tobacco paper around the stem, under, but close up to, the bud or bloom. The fumes of nicotine, slowly evaporating, will kill aphids and so save a flower that otherwise would be ruined.

CLEANING OLD GLASS.

How can we clean old glass? We are moving some greenhouses which have been standing for eighteen years.

O. K. G. & N. C.—O

The cleaning of old glass is a rather difficult proposition. A method that gives fairly good results is to soak the glass in kerosene until the putty has been softened, and then cut the oil in a solution of caustic soda containing five pounds of caustic soda in ten gallons of water. After this treatment is completed, the putty can be readily scraped off. The glass should then be rinsed and dried.

THRIPS ON CALLAS.

In the greenhouses I have just taken over I have found several hundred callas in ground beds. I began letting them dry off about two weeks ago, but have just found out that they are badly infested with thrips, which were spreading to the new stock in the other houses. Although the plants were still partly green, I lifted them and laid them outside on the ground to finish drying off. I placed some of the tubers in a far corner of the houses, but do not like to put many there, for fear of the thrips. Outside, of course, they will get wet with each rain. Can you give me any advice in this matter? C. T. H.—Ill.

Thrips are a dangerous pest on all roots and even on seeds. It would be advisable to give the tubers a soaking in a mixture of nicotine sulphate, one part, and water, 400 parts, allowing the tubers to soak for an hour. Add a little soap to make the liquid more pungent and adhesive; then spread the tubers out to dry. If you prefer, put the tubers in a small compartment and give them a dose of hydrocyanic acid gas. Probably, however, you will find the dipping to be less trouble and more effective.

C. W.

PROPAGATING POLYGONUM.

How should I propagate Polygonum Aubertii? I have made over 2,000 cuttings this season and tried to grow them in sand, but have only six plants.

P. W. S. Kan.

The polygonums, particularly the perennial varieties such as Aubertii, are propagated by root division, though some of them are grown from seed.

NEWS NOTES

Collegeville, Pa.—George H. Rimby has taken over the business of his father, the late Horace Rimby.

West Plains, Mo.—Alfred Engelmann, of Marysville, Kan., in company with his son, will operate a business here. Mr. Englemann has purchased the Ozark Pansy Gardens.

Muncie, Ind.—Eric Buchholz, who operates the Flower Shop, at Main and Walnut streets, returned recently from Germany. Mr. Buchholz returned to Muncie full of new ideas, and his patrons are sure to receive the benefit of these.

Titusville, Pa.—L. J. Rowe has placed a repeat order with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago, for two more steel-frame greenhouses, one 30x299 and one 36x299. The first order Mr. Rowe gave the manufacturer, early in the season, also was for two houses of similar construction, one 36x299 and one 38x299. These are up and planted. Mr. Rowe's addition this season will cover 143x299 feet.

Niles, Mich.—The Hansen Nursery & Floral Co. is proud of the trade-mark it has adopted and has duly registered in the United States patent office at Washington, D. C. The trade-mark appears on the upper left-hand corner of the stationery used by the firm and may be described as an evergreen in a tube. Across the body of the tube appear the words "Nurserymen and Florists," while the center of the tree contains a disk, stamped around the edge with the name and address of the firm, and in the center of the disk appear the words "Grown in America."

Fairchance, Pa.—A reorganization of the Fairchance Greenhouse Co. has taken place. Wade H. Mahoney, who had been associated with A. M. Fredrick, Sr., for the last three years, sold his interest in the company, which consisted of one-half the stock of plants and pots, supplies for design work, etc., to F. A. Morse. A new show room has been fitted out for both wholesale and retail trade, together with landscape jobs of all kinds. The firm reports the loss of its Christmas stock of poinsettias and a large quantity of Oeonto mums, due to the fumes from boiler accident.

Dallas, Tex.—The board of appeals recently refused to grant permission to the Lang Floral & Nursery Co. to erect a 2-story brick building at McKinney and Haskell avenues, opposite the North Dallas high school. The attorney for the protestants argued that the building would provide a loafing place for the students, and that it would also be detrimental to the property values in that section. The attorney for the applicant stated that no loafing would be permitted in the drug or flower stores which were to occupy the proposed building. Otto H. Lang, president of the firm, stated that the refusal of the board to grant permission to erect the building was a virtual confiscation of the property of the firm. The case will be carried into court, to seek a reversal of the ruling.

NEW YORK MUM SHOWS

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY SHOW.

At New York.

The annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York was held in the American Museum of Natural History, November 9 to 12.

The show was larger this year than for some years previous. The foyer of the building presented a fine appearance. A large collection of plants exhibited by W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., took up nearly a quarter of the available space and was of great interest to the public.

This year the orchid section was taken from its usual place in the eastern aisle and the exhibits added to those in the foyer. Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., won first prize for a collection of twenty-five species and varieties, the exhibit also winning the sweepstake cup for the best exhibit in the show. The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., secured second.

The Joseph Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., was awarded first for a splendid collection of cut orchids.

Orchid Awards.

Lager & Hurrell gained firsts in the classes for six plants, six varieties, and three plants, three varieties. Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., won first for a collection of hybrids, not less than twenty plants, with the Julius Roehrs Co. second. Mr. Moore also won first for a new meritorious variety not in commerce. George Baldwin & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., were awarded a gold medal for the best hybrid orchid of recent origin.

The chrysanthemums shown were of good quality, but there was little in the way of novelty to be seen, excepting Princess Nagako, a Japanese yellow, named for the princess who is to marry the crown prince of Japan. The naming of the variety furnished an interesting ceremony. Henry W. Taft, president of the Japan Society, made an address in honor of the occasion, and K. In this collection of small-flowered varieties, the writer especially admired Floryanna, Excelsior and Mrs. Skiff, among the singles. Vases of roses, Souvenir de Claudius Pernet and Hill's America, attracted much attention.

Pompons Featured.

Cromwell Gardens featured such pompons as Western Beauty, Louise

Davenport, New York, Paulina Wilcox and November Gold, as well as the fine new rose, Commonwealth.

The large vases of pompons, arranged for effect by W. J. Sealey, Portchester, N. Y., deserve a special word of commendation. Pompons, singles and anemones were numerous shown, but they were so badly crowded that they did not show off well. Iva, Doris and White Doty seemed to be most in favor among pompons, while Yellow Mensa, Mildred, Presby, pink; Mensa, white; and Nellie Havelle, white, were among the favorite singles. Of the large specimen blooms, white and yellow Turner, Firestone, Louisa Pockett, Pockett's Crimson, Elberon, Glenview, Nagirroe, Odessa, Rosanda, Mrs. J. Wells, W. Rigby and Yellow Drabble were particularly prominent.

Specimen plants were few. Three large trained specimens from Prospect park, Brooklyn, staged outside the exhibition hall near the entrance, were the best. Medium-sized plants were not of good quality.

Roses were good, but carnations lacked stem. Vegetables in the main were not well staged; exceptions were the displays from Robert Tyson, superintendent to Mrs. H. McKay Twombly, Madison, N. J., of roots for stock feeding and a good collection of twelve varieties of vegetables from F. O. Johnson, superintendent to Mrs. H. S. Pratt, Glen Cove.

Exhibition at Museum.

The exhibition at the Museum of Natural History by the Horticultural Society of New York was a really superb one and splendidly arranged. Not for years has the writer seen as fine an all-around fall show. Ferns, groups, chrysanthemums, orchids, roses, carnations, vegetables were all splendidly shown. Specimen blooms were keenly competed for, there being as many as six to ten entries in some classes, and the quality was unbeatable. There was a remarkable display of pompons, singles and anemones, all showing high culture, and these attracted even more attention from visitors than the big blooms.

Groups were quite numerous and extremely good. George Ferguson, superintendent for Mrs. Payne Whitney, had a charming group arranged with autumn foliage, using brown, bronze and reddish shades mainly. The same exhibitor had a splendid group of chrysanthemums in pots; ferns, crotons and other foliage plants; each of these secured first prizes worthily. The second-prize group in the latter class, from Andrew Strachan, superintendent for W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, was also excellent. Mr. Strachan also had some fine specimen plants, well trained, as had James McManus, superintendent for Miss A. De La Mar, Glen Cove, L. I.

Carnations were much better in quality than at the Institute show and roses also were numerous and well grown. There were nice displays of Melior and Cincinnati begonias of moderate size, but the writer was disappointed in not seeing a solitary plant of the much showier and more imposing English varieties, which are such a feature at Boston fall shows.

Orchids Exhibition in Themselves.

The orchids made a whole exhibition in themselves and were as numerous as at some spring shows at the Grand Central Palace. They were all well arranged. In the first-prize group of Lager & Hurrell were well-flowered plants of Calanthe Veitchii and the pure white C. veratrifolia; Vanda teres, V. carulea and V. Sanderiana; the graceful and sweet Platylinis Cobbiana; Brassocattleya Ilene; also, saccolabiums, oncidiums, cattleyas, cypripediums and many other good things. Julius Roehrs Co. had a group of good things; included were some fine brassocattleyas, læliocattleyas, cattleyas and cypripediums.

Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., had a group of choice and well flowered hybrids. Joseph Manda & Son, East Orange, N. J., showed some fine things. Cypripediums were particularly good. George E. Baldwin & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., won the gold medal offered for the best new American hybrid orchid, with Cattleya Maggie Raphael x C. Fabia, a fine thing. For a lovely pure white there was C. Phoebe Snow [C.

Asters on 3-foot Stems.

speciosissima Empress x C. Cowperi alba].

The George E. Baldwin Co. showed a splendid collection of rare varieties. Some of the best were Cattleya Maggie Raphael alba, Octave Doin, Moire, Roehrsiana, Sylvia, Princess Royal, veriflora, Trianae x aurea, Mendelii x Dowiana, Mendelii x Fabia, Fabia x Dowiana, Trianae x Empress Frederick, labiata x Peetersii, and Hardyana x Mendelii; Brassocattleyas Mars, Mariae, Thorn-tonii, Ruby, Leemaniae x C. Maggie Raphael alba; Læliocattleyas fulva, the Charming Nella var. Mrs. H. S. Redmond, Dr. R. Schiffman, Alex, fulva, labiosa, luminosa, Walton Grange var. G. S. Ball and also such unnamed hybrids as C. Dowiana x L. C. Tunis, C. Fabia x C. Hardyana and C. aurea x C. Phrya.

Much in Miscellaneous Class.

W. A. Manda had a fine collection of ivies and many interesting foliage plants, as well as grand specimens of Cibotium Schiedeii, dicksonias and nephrolepis. F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., had a collection of about twenty-five specimens of nephrolepis in variety, showing splendid culture. A grand specimen of Davallia fijiensis plumosa, eight feet across, from W. D. Robertson, Portchester, N. Y., showed extremely high culture.

A group of Celosia Pride of Castle Gould, clerodendrons, galax, Begonia Haageana, crotons and ferns from Miss A. De La Mar, was attractive and the large prize-winning basket of chrysanthemums, autumn foliage and grasses from A. E. Sailer, superintendent to Mrs. Redmond Ross, also deserved special mention. Chrysanthemum Yellow Doty, from John Lewis Childs, adds one more color to the popular Doty family. Mary Pickford and La Purité, as shown here, are exceedingly desirable small white pompons.

Vegetables Well Shown.

Vegetables were well shown at this show and the two collections from James McCarthy, gardener for Mrs. H. L. Pratt, were beautifully staged and the produce of the highest quality. If asked to name one of the outstanding features of a beautiful show, it would be these collections. Splendid peas, string beans, cucumbers, tomatoes, eggplants, celery, beets, Brussels sprouts, onions, cauliflowers and many other vegetables were included.

Dinner to Exhibitors.

At the formal opening of the show by the Japanese ambassador, there was a large attendance and attendances grew as the week progressed, the outpouring November 12 being tremendous. A dinner was given to about fifty of the leading exhibitors, judges and visitors the first evening. F. R. Pierson presided and in a brief speech of welcome thanked all the exhibitors for the loyal manner in which they had supported the show. He mentioned that the Horticultural Society of New York now had 1,350 members and a balance of $50,000 invested.

LONG-STEMMED ASTERS.

Improvement in the length of stem on asters has been made to a marked degree by the J. W. Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis. To give visible evidence of what he is doing, J. W. Jung sends the photograph reproduced on this page. In explanation he writes:

"We do not hesitate to state that they probably are the longest-stemmed asters that were ever shown. The little girl is our daughter, Betty, 2½ years old. She is three feet tall, and you can see that the asters stand above her head. The color of the flowers is a rich rose pink, and one of the most remarkable things is that they come into flower fairly early."

Greenwood, Miss.—The Biddle Flower Shop, on Market street, opened its doors for business October 12. The new store is artistically furnished and is located in an ideal situation to do a good business.

Saginaw, Mich.—Pads of telephone call memoranda were mailed out by J. B. Goetz Sons to their friends, with the statement of Henry Goetz that he hoped to see them at the third annual convention of the Michigan State Florists' Association at Ann Arbor. Post cards were thoughtfully inserted in each pad printed to request additional pads.

AMONG THE TRADE ABROAD

McCALLUM IN EUROPE.

Floral Customs and Practices.

As my business in Europe took me along different lines than horticulture, I cannot say much on this subject; so, as I am personally acquainted with you all, I shall just talk of things in general, as though we were out to lunch together. To start with, I was astonished at the number of flowers sent aboard the steamer at New York, and I want to say right here that the New York florists can still make this business larger by persuading people to send flowers rather than fruit and candies, since, on a modern liner, the food is so good and plentiful that most people never touch their baskets of fruit. The stewards know this so well that they manage to tell you that if you do not care for your fruit, they will take it to their families when they land. The flowers are generally put on the dining table and, with a little care, last out the voyage. I took a 12-day boat coming back, and many of the flowers were still presentable on landing.

One of the first things I saw when landing at Cherbourg was a Frenchman at the dock with a large bouquet of flowers, unwrapped, awaiting a lady friend. It looked just like a cartoon of a Johnny waiting at the stage entrance. However, I found it a common practice in Europe to take flowers out unwrapped, be they bouquets or funeral designs, and, so far as I could see, the buyer always delivered the flowers himself. I often saw a well dressed man or woman carrying a large wreath to a funeral. When flowers are wrapped, especially in Germany, it is generally in newspapers, as is almost everything else. This is because Germans are great readers, and paper is extremely high in price right now. In a bakery shop I saw a sign asking people to bring their own paper to wrap their bread.

In France.

The wild flowers in France were quite new to me, but in Germany they were practically the same as we see here. In France I was surprised at the appearance of the flower stores, as I expected to see something fine; however, with only two exceptions, I found their flower stores poor affairs; they make little attempt to show the decorator's art, and, on the average, cannot compare with American shops. Their outdoor summer roses, though, were much better than ours, the best ones being Majesty, a large pink resembling Columbia; Basle, a double and deeper pink; Euclair, a fine double red that would delight an American rose grower if he could produce it as well under glass; Marechal Niel, the old yellow, which showed up wonderfully; Eroit, a good bronze, and Juliett, a variegated bronze, which is quite popular with Parisians.

I found many shops handling only artificial flowers, especially those made of beads. In some of the other cities I observed trees of different kinds, but especially bay trees, arranged on the public squares, all planted in immense plant tubs, far larger than any I have ever seen in this country. I visited the tomb of the unknown soldier in Paris and found it covered with fresh flowers from different patriotic societies, as well as from individuals, and was told it is always thus.

In Germany.

In going from France to Germany, I spent two days at Geneva, Switzerland, which I thought was the most beautifully situated city that I saw. This city seemed to consist of hotels and fine apartment houses, as it is filled with wealthy political exiles from all countries. These places were almost covered with window boxes, giving the entire town an appearance of being covered with flowering vines. It is a sight a florist will long remember. While there, I was up in the Alps and had the pleasure of digging some edelweiss out of the snow.

In Germany I was again surprised at the flower stores I found. I had thought that they would not amount to much, but instead found them of fine appearance, and many of them. In fact, they were on a par with American stores, but there seemed to be more of them. One thing that makes their windows so attractive is that they display made-up wreaths and crosses in them, the designs being large and the flowers of bright colors. One could buy a well made and artistic 20-inch wreath for 25 own purchases. The city built the building for this purpose, and it is, indeed, a busy place from 6 to 9 o'clock in the morning. In the yard outside is the pot plant market, where, I noticed, carnations in pots were big sellers.

Flower Stores in Berlin.

Berlin and Dresden had really fine flower stores, with Dresden in the lead. I noticed that the towns having the finest stores were the ones that had the most street stands, a fact which bears out the argument that street flower stands create business for the larger stores. One of Berlin's leading florists, Theodore Hubner, with whom I took lunch one day, remarked during the conversation that the flower stands were a constant reminder to his good customers to purchase flowers; thus he was getting the benefit. In Berlin one sees dozens and dozens of flower stands, one right against another in the squares where there is the most traffic. All stands have all the flowers exposed and are attended by women. Often the stands are on wagons, so that they can be moved around with the crowd, and, when the day is over, wagon, flowers and all are hauled home for the night.

The German florists have lately adopted a slogan copied after our "Say It with Flowers." It is "Lasst Blumen Sprechen" or "Let the Flowers Speak." As with all slogans, different persons are claiming the origination of it, and a merry controversy is now going on.

cents in American money, and when I would tell a florist what we would get for it in America, he simply thought I was kidding him. Of course, no ribbon is used at all on them, and the frame is made of raw willows instead of wire. There is little chiffon used with flowers. Many baskets are used, but always of a somber shade, such as Japan brown, which is generally used. I saw brightly colored baskets in only one retail store over there. Fruit is a side line that florists often carry. In Hamburg I visited the wholesale flower market, where every grower sold his own goods and every customer carried away his lavender statice, such as is grown in California, and it seems to me that florists in this country could make greater use of this article. Window boxes are plentiful there, especially in Berlin, where many tomatoes are grown in them. A common sign on a florist's window is "Flowers for joy and sorrow," which strikes me better than the way so many of our florists advertise wedding bouquets and funeral designs in the same breath.

I visited the kaiser's old home, at Potsdam, and saw my finest bit of landscape work. One of the palaces (built by Frederick the Great, or "Old Fritz," Davenport, New York, Paulina Wilcox and November Gold, as well as the fine new rose, Commonwealth.

The large vases of pompons, arranged for effect by W. J. Sealey, Portchester, N. Y., deserve a special word of commendation. Pompons, singles and anemones were numerous shown, but they were so badly crowded that they did not show off well. Iva, Doris and White Doty seemed to be most in favor among pompons, while Yellow Mensa, Mildred, Presby, pink; Mensa, white; and Nellie Havelle, white, were among the favorite singles. Of the large specimen blooms, white and yellow Turner, Firestone, Louisa Pickett, Pickett's Crimson, Elberon, Glenview, Nagirroe, Odessa, Rosanda, Mrs. J. Wells, W. Rigby and Yellow Drabble were particularly prominent.

Specimen plants were few. Three large trained specimens from Prospect park, Brooklyn, staged outside the exhibition hall near the entrance, were the best. Medium-sized plants were not of good quality.

Roses were good, but carnations lacked stem. Vegetables in the main were not well staged; exceptions were the displays from Robert Tyson, superintendent to Mrs. H. McKay Twombly, Madison, N. J., of roots for stock feeding and a good collection of twelve varieties of vegetables from F. O. Johnson, superintendent to Mrs. H. S. Pratt, Glen Cove.

Exhibition at Museum.

The exhibition at the Museum of Natural History by the Horticultural Society of New York was a really superb one and splendidly arranged. Not for years has the writer seen as fine an all-around fall show. Ferns, groups, chrysanthemums, orchids, roses, carnations, vegetables were all splendidly shown. Specimen blooms were keenly competed for, there being as many as six to ten entries in some classes, and the quality was unbeatable. There was a remarkable display of pompons, singles and anemones, all showing high culture, and these attracted even more attention from visitors than the big blooms.

Groups were quite numerous and extremely good. George Ferguson, superintendent to Mrs. Payne Whitney, had a charming group arranged with autumn foliage, using brown, bronze and reddish shades mainly. The same exhibitor had a splendid group of chrysanthemums in pots; ferns, crotons and other foliage plants; each of these scored first prizes worthily. The second prize group in the latter class, from Andrew Strachan, superintendent for W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, was also excellent. Mr. Strachan also had some fine specimen plants, well trained, as had James McManus, superintendent for Miss A. De La Mar, Glen Cove, L. I.

Carnations were much better in quality than at the Institute show and roses also were numerous and well grown. There were nice displays of Melior and Cincinnati begonias of moderate size, but the writer was disappointed in not seeing a solitary plant of the much showier and more imposing English varieties, which are such a feature at Boston fall shows.

Orchids Exhibition in Themselves.

The orchids made a whole exhibition in themselves and were as numerous as at some spring shows at the Grand Central Palace. They were all well arranged. In the first prize group of Lager & Hurrell were well flowered plants of Calanthe Veitchii and the pure white C. veratrifolia; Vanda teres, V. carulea and V. Sanderiana; the graceful and sweet Platyclinis Cobbiana; Brassocattleya Henei; also, Saccilabium, oncidium, cattleyas, cyripediums and many other good things. Julius Rochrs Co. had a group of good things; included were some fine brassocattleyas, laliocattleyas, cattleyas and cyripediums.

Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., had a group of choice and well flowered hybrids. Joseph Manda & Son, East Orange, N. J., showed some fine things. Cyripediums were particularly good. George E. Baldwin & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., won the gold medal offered for the best new American hybrid orchid, with Cattleya Maggie Raphael x C. Fabia, a fine thing. For a lovely pure white there was C. Phoebe Snow [C.

speciosissima, Empress x C. Cowperi alba.

The George E. Baldwin Co. showed a splendid collection of rare varieties. Some of the best were Cattleya Maggie Raphael alba, Octave Doin, Maire, Rochrsiana, Sylvia, Princess Royal, Verdora, Tritone x aurea, Mendelin x Dowiana, Mendelin x Fabia, Fabia x Dowiana, Tritone x Empress Frederick, labiate x Peetersii, and Hardyana x Mendelin. Brassocattleyas Mars, Marie, Thornoudii, Ruby, Leomania x C. Maggie Raphael alba; Laliocattleyas tulya, the Charming Nella var. Mrs. H. S. Redmond, Dr. R. Schiffman, Alex. tulya, labiosa, luminosa, Walton George var. G. S. Ball and also such unnamed hybrids as C. Dowiana x L. C. Tavis, C. Fabia x C. Hardyana and C. aurea x C. Phoebe.

Much in Miscellaneous Class.

W. A. Manda had a fine collection of ivies and many interesting foliage plants, as well as grand specimens of Cibotium, Schiedei, dicksonias, and nephrolepis. F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., had a collection of about twenty-five specimens of nephrolepis in variety, showing splendid culture. A grand specimen of Davallia fijiensis plumosa, eight feet across, from W. D. Robertson, Portchester, N. Y., showed extremely high culture.

A group of Celosia Pride of Castle Gould, clerodendrons, galax, Begonia Haageana, erotics and ferns from Miss A. De La Mar, was attractive and the large prize-winning basket of chrysanthemums, autumn foliage and grasses from A. E. Sailer, superintendent to Mrs. Redmond Ross, also deserved special mention. Chrysanthemum Yellow Doty, from John Lewis Childs, adds one more color to the popular Doty family. Mary Pickford and La Purité, as shown here, are exceedingly desirable small white pompons.

Vegetables Well Shown.

Vegetables were well shown at this show and the two collections from James McCarthy, gardener for Mrs. H. L. Pratt, were beautifully staged and the produce of the highest quality. If asked to name one of the outstanding features of a beautiful show, it would be these collections. Splendid peas, string beans, cucumbers, tomatoes, eggplants, celery, beets, Brussels sprouts, onions, cauliflowers and many other vegetables were included.

Dinner to Exhibitors.

At the formal opening of the show by the Japanese ambassador, there was a large attendance and attendances grew as the week progressed, the outpouring November 12 being tremendous. A dinner was given to about fifty of the leading exhibitors, judges and visitors the first evening. F. R. Pierson presided and in a brief speech of welcome thanked all the exhibitors for the loyal manner in which they had supported the show. He mentioned that the Horticultural Society of New York now had 1,350 members and a balance of $50,000 invested.

LONG-STEMMED ASTERS.

Improvement in the length of stem on asters has been made to a marked degree by the J. W. Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis. To give visible evidence of what he is doing, J. W. Jung sends the photograph reproduced on this page. In explanation he writes:

"We do not hesitate to state that they probably are the longest-stemmed asters that were ever shown. The little girl is our daughter, Betty, 2½ years old. She is three feet tall, and you can see that the asters stand above her head. The color of the flowers is a rich rose pink, and one of the most remarkable things is that they come into flower fairly early."

Greenwood, Miss. The Biddle Flower Shop, on Market street, opened its doors for business October 12. The new store is artistically furnished and is located in an ideal situation to do a good business.

Saginaw, Mich. Pads of telephone call memoranda were mailed out by J. B. Goetz Sons to their friends, with the statement of Henry Goetz that he hoped to see them at the third annual convention of the Michigan State Florists' Association at Ann Arbor. Post cards were thoughtfully inserted in each pad printed to request additional pads.

AMONG THE TRADE ABROAD

McCALLUM IN EUROPE.

Floral Customs and Practices.

As my business in Europe took me along different lines than horticulture, I cannot say much on this subject; so, as I am personally acquainted with you all, I shall just talk of things in general, as though we were out to lunch together. To start with, I was astonished at the number of flowers sent aboard the steamer at New York, and I want to say right here that the New York florists can still make this business larger by persuading people to send flowers rather than fruit and candies, since, on a modern liner, the food is so good and plentiful that most people never touch their baskets of fruit. The stewards know this so well that they manage to tell you that if you do not care for your fruit, they will take it to their families when they land. The flowers are generally put on the dining table and, with a little care, last out the voyage. I took a 12-day boat coming back, and many of the flowers were still presentable on landing.

One of the first things I saw when landing at Cherbourg was a Frenchman at the dock with a large bouquet of flowers, unwrapped, awaiting a lady friend. It looked just like a cartoon of a Johnny waiting at the stage entrance. However, I found it a common practice in Europe to take flowers out unwrapped, be they bouquets or funeral designs, and, so far as I could see, the buyer always delivered the flowers himself. I often saw a well dressed man or woman carrying a large wreath to a funeral. When flowers are wrapped, especially in Germany, it is generally in newspapers, as is almost everything else. This is because Germans are great readers, and paper is extremely high in price right now. In a bakery shop I saw a sign asking people to bring their own paper to wrap their bread.

In France.

The wild flowers in France were quite new to me, but in Germany they were practically the same as we see here. In France I was surprised at the appearance of the flower stores, as I expected to see something fine; however, with only two exceptions, I found their flower stores poor affairs; they make little attempt to show the decorator's art, and, on the average, cannot compare with American shops. Their outdoor summer roses, though, were much better than ours, the best ones being Majesty, a large pink resembling Columbia; Basle, a double and deeper pink; Euclair, a fine double red that would delight an American rose grower if he could produce it as well under glass; Marechal Niel, the old yellow, which showed up wonderfully; Eroit, a good bronze, and Juliett, a variegated bronze, which is quite popular with Parisians.

I found many shops handling only artificial flowers, especially those made of beads. In some of the other cities I observed trees of different kinds, but especially bay trees, arranged on the public squares, all planted in immense plant tubs, far larger than any I have ever seen in this country. I visited the tomb of the unknown soldier in Paris and found it covered with fresh flowers from different patriotic societies, as well as from individuals, and was told it is always thus.

In Germany.

In going from France to Germany, I spent two days at Geneva, Switzerland, which I thought was the most beautifully situated city that I saw. This city seemed to consist of hotels and fine apartment houses, as it is filled with wealthy political exiles from all countries. I visited the kaiser's old home, at Potsdam, and saw my finest bit of landscape work. One of the palaces, built by Frederick the Great, or "Old Fritz," as Germans love to call him) is situated on the crest of a good-sized hill, and the whole hillside is terraced off with stone walls. Against these walls grow vines, trees, etc., which are covered with glass during winter. So, from below, one sees girdles of glass encircling the hill. Palm trees are also planted out during the summer, being removed to greenhouses at the approach of winter. Great use is made of boxwoods there, but on the same order as is common on American estates. All German public parks are well kept. It is the custom to label properly and legibly all plants, even down to small plants no higher than a couple of inches.

Berlin Flower Show.

I was fortunate enough to be in Berlin during their florists' convention and flower show. The latter was announced by posters all over town. They made great preparations for this show and spared no trouble to work out the finest details. Prizes were given to the railroad workers (who are state employees) who had the finest flower and vegetable gardens, each one being given a plot of ground 30x30 feet. The show was held in the Tiergarten, which is Berlin's famous park, and so plenty of space was available for such things. Another feature was little orchards of apple trees, the first row being 1 year old; the second, 2 years old, etc., until they were full-bearing trees; many of the 3-year olds would be only two feet high, but would have four or five large, perfect apples. The rose garden had a bush of every popular rose in full bloom, properly labeled, and I saw many American favorites. One of the first labels I read was "Joseph Hill," a large pink rose that I saw for the first time.

Different greenhouse construction firms had single greenhouses erected in the park, in full operation, to demonstrate to possible buyers. Asters were used profusely as bedding plants, being dwarfed so that a plant would be a solid mass of color, and they made most effective beds.

One large building was erected for exhibits of florists' supplies. This was a disappointment to me, as florists' supplies there mean quite different things than here and have little interest to an American florist. Their goods, exhibited principally by Berlin jobbers, consisted mostly of wax flowers, willow wreath frames, baskets, gilded ropes, strawflowers, highly colored show window cloth (for background use), pottery of all kinds, porcelain figures, greenhouse tools and crepe paper. There are no large florists' supply houses such as in this country, and many things the American importer buys for florists' use were not manufactured for that purpose. It is just a case of the American buyer's roaming around and looking at everything he sees as being of possible use to a florist.

The cut flower exhibits were varied and fine. About twenty rooms, arranged with furniture and decorated with flowers, were shown, each room being done by a different retail florist. Then there was an exhibit of flowers made up solidly into special designs, such as ladies' hats, an umbrella, a spinning wheel, a lamp shade, a dancing floor with wax dancing figures, a 4-leaved clover, etc. One was a picture, having a frame of gold marigolds, a background of white asters and a cluster of orchids in the center as the picture. Colonial, or solid, bouquets made up of many varieties of flowers were popular.

The rooms were separated by a wall of natural pine twigs interlaced closely. Then there were several larger rooms, representing different countries, having plants peculiar to that country arranged therein and the background painted so as to blend with the exhibit, making it hard to distinguish where the natural plants left off and the painting began. Among the countries represented were Brazil, with tropical plants, trees and vines; India, with aquarium plants; Arizona, with the cactus plant, etc.; Japan, with chrysanthemums, wisteria, etc., and German woods, showing a German woodland with thousands of fine lilies of the valley growing in an open space. They sold post card views of these scenes, of which I have a set with me. Chrysanthemums seem to be earlier there than here, as by the end of August fine varieties in all colors filled the shop windows, and, on the average, dahlias were much finer than generally seen in this country.

Customs of the Country.

The railroaders' little gardens I spoke of at the show are carried out extensively by all people in all cities. You will see on the outskirts of every city a large tract of several acres divided into these small plots, each one cultivated in the evenings and on Sundays by a city dweller. They call them "Laub Kolnies," or "leaf colonies." Each one has a little rough house erected in one corner, where the tools are kept and where members of the family will spend part of their time.

Another flower custom observed is that when the highest point on a new building is reached, the event is celebrated by placing a wreath of flowers there, just as in this country the workmen place a flag when the highest point of an office building is reached. While there, I heard talk of a successful experiment in producing colored, or dyed wood by having the roots of the tree absorb the desired color, but I do not know how accurate the talk was.

While over there, I met our friend Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., and visited the greenhouses where he learned the business and where his son, Joseph, Jr., is now doing the same thing. The owner is still doing a thriving business and has a great knowledge of commercial plants. I might add that during my two days' visit with Mr. Thomas we visited all the interesting points on the Rhine in his cousin's high-powered automobile, which traveled over their well kept roads at sixty miles per hour. Mr. Thomas knows every foot of that country and consequently our trips were always extremely interesting. I want also to mention how the farmers along the Rhine take advantage of every foot of ground for their vineyards, as the Rhine valley, as well as the Moselle valley, produces the finest wines in Germany. They cultivate the steep hillsides where the ordinary American would not want to risk his neck climbing. Often a wall that will probably take a stonemason weeks to construct will be built in order to keep a few square feet of ground from being washed down into the Rhine.

In Germany they have a large, double red rose that they tell me is equally good in summer or winter. It is called Fisher Holmes. In white Frau Karl Druschki is the favorite and this rose, colored an orange shade by putting the stems in orange-colored dye, is quite popular. Cecile Brunner and Majesty are their favorites in pink. Carnations, even in September, were fine. Forests in Germany are replanted as soon as cut, and one can see forests of different ages everywhere, running all the way from 1 to 20 years old when they are ready for recutting.

FLORISTS TO INCREASE DUES.

In Illinois State Association.

At the last annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, held at Urbana, Ill., March, 1922, the by-laws were amended to read as follows: "Annual dues, $3; life membership, $25; to take effect January 1, 1923." The dues are now $1 per year, and life membership is $10.

Members and florists who are not members are hereby notified of this important change and their attention is called to the fact that, if there is anyone who wants a life membership at the present rate of $10, now is the time to act, before January 1, 1923, at which time the dues will be advanced. The reason for the advance in the rates is that it has been impossible in the past for the society to do justice to the work laid out for it at the low rate which now prevails.

Next Meeting at Urbana.

The Illinois State Florists' Association should be 100 per cent in its membership. If the florists could only be made to realize what this association means to them collectively, there would be no difficulty in having it so. The florists of this state as a whole do not appreciate the merits and good work of our experimental station—what it is doing for the trade in its different branches of experimental work—and in order to make this more effective and put the station on the highest plane of usefulness, it needs and must have the strong support of the craft. In the past it was "Let George do it," and as George did it, no one worried. But we are thankful to say that we had a few faithful Georges, and it is to their credit there stands at the University of Illinois a monument to their efforts—the best equipped experimental station in the world. But, florists, we are not satisfied with this.

Progress must be our motto and we must be ever upward and onward if we are going to keep pace with the florists' industry today. More demands than ever are coming to the station for information, and we are glad to say this information is given freely to all.

Now, brother florists, and especially the growers, will you be with us with a united front and help in this glorious work of carrying the banner of Illinois at the head of the column? So now is your chance to be one of us at a little price and the honor and glory will be all yours. The next annual meeting in Urbana will be the greatest in our history. The National Growers' Association will hold its annual meeting with us at the station in Urbana. You will want to be there. You can't afford to miss it. You are all welcome to come, whether members or not, and partake freely and fully of the good things we will have to offer. But try to come with a membership card in your pocket.

Active Officers.

The officers of the Illinois State Florists' Association are as follows: President, Joseph Kohout, Libertyville, Ill.; vice-president, George W. Jacobs, Canton, Ill.; secretary, Albert T. Hey, Maywood, Ill.; treasurer, F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill. The executive committee includes in its membership George J. Ball, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; John M. Fischer, Evanston, Ill.; Charles Loveridge, Peoria, Ill.; J. W. Ross, Centralia, Ill.; Philip J. Daut, Decatur, Ill.; J. H. Blixen, Edwardsville, Ill.

NASHVILLE ENTERTAINS

TENNESSEE FLORISTS MEET.

At Nashville.

The ninth annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association was held in Nashville, Tenn., November 13 and 14. The headquarters for the convention were at the Hotel Hermitage, but the meetings and the flower show were held in the garage of the Imperial Motor Co.

The entire floor of the garage was secured for the show, affording space 100x125, and it was well filled. The exhibits were a revelation to all. While chrysanthemums, as would be expected at this season, were the most in evidence, roses and carnations were not far behind. The outstanding features of the show were a wonderful vase of E. G. Hill's new rose, America; Joy's new carnation; Natalie, and an Enchantress-pink seedling unnamed as yet, and Baum's exhibit of Tennessee-grown lily bulbs. This last led to a lengthy discussion of home-grown bulbs.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Edward Truett, Franklin, Tenn.

Vice-president—J. C. Anderson, Lebanon, Tenn.

Secretary-treasurer—Gordon M. Bentley, Knoxville, Tenn.

The 1923 meeting will be held at Knoxville.

The meeting was called to order by President Harold M. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., and the address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Wilson. After the secretary-treasurer's reports were heard, Edward Truett, of Franklin, Tenn., spoke on "Coöperation among Florists," while W. C. Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., spoke on "Office System." C. L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., gave a talk on "Tennessee-Grown Bulbs," and H. G. Bramm, Bristol, Tenn., had something to say about "Our Neighbors."

The program of the afternoon of the first day was as follows: Report of committees, election of officers, selection of convention city; "Home Production of Bulbs," by Professor F. C. Bralhar, Madison, Tenn.; "Selection," by

J. C. Vaughan, Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; "Water Lilies," by George Molder, Centennial park, Nashville, Tenn.; "The Iris," by Clarence C. Connell, Nashville, Tenn.; "The Florist and Landscapist," by R. Rodenhouse, Huntsville, Ala.

During the evening of the first day the entire assemblage went to the Princess theater in a body.

On the morning of November 14, Edward Seery, president of the F. T. D., Paterson, N. J., spoke on the F. T. D. J. Fred Ammann, field manager of the F. T. D., Edwardsville, Ill., spoke on the division units of the F. T. D. B. C. McBride, of Nashville, Tenn., spoke on "Flowers and Plants Best Suited for Cemetery Work." Following these talks, a demonstration of the making of sprays, designs and bridal corsages was witnessed. W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; W. H. Englehart, Memphis, Tenn., and Karl P. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., gave addresses.

In the afternoon of the second day the members in attendance were driven on a tour of the Nashville greenhouses, and they later enjoyed a banquet at the Richland Golf Club.

President Joy's Address.

In his address as president, Harold M. Joy, said:

"By comparison with other industries, we must agree that the florists, as a whole, have enjoyed a very prosperous year and there is no reason why the coming year should not be as good as the last, if not better. The coal strike cost us much concern and a great deal of money, but, with present lower prices, an ample winter's supply is assured. The high cost of Paper White and lily bulbs is a matter that we should give some attention. Last year 14-centimeter Paper Whites were $17 per thousand and this year $43. Giganteum lilies were $35 per thousand four years ago and today they are $167.50. There is a big opportunity awaiting anyone who can grow these bulbs successfully in this country.

"The flower show held in connection with this convention is a good forward step and affords wonderful possibilities for local publicity that will help us greatly to increase our business.

"Our loyal support should be given the national society. Those who are not members should join at once. You have only to attend a meeting of the Society of American Florists to realize the vast work done by that body which directly concerns each and every one of us. Tennessee now has two members on the board of directors. Your president is a director by affiliation; besides, we have a regular elected director. We have also a director in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. The national publicity campaign is doing a splendid work and merits our financial support. Let us join hands and make 'Say It with Flowers' the greatest slogan in the world."

Visitors.

Those from out of the city who were noted in attendance early the opening day were as follows:

Hulme, J. S., Atlanta, Ga.

as Germans love to call him—is situated on the crest of a good-sized hill, and the whole hillside is terraced off with stone walls. Against these walls grow vines, trees, etc., which are covered with glass during winter. So, from below, one sees girdles of glass encircling the hill. Palm trees are also planted out during the summer, being removed to greenhouses at the approach of winter. Great use is made of boxwoods there, but on the same order as is common on American estates. All German public parks are well kept. It is the custom to label properly and legibly all plants, even down to small plants no higher than a couple of inches.

Berlin Flower Show.

I was fortunate enough to be in Berlin during their florists' convention and flower show. The latter was announced by posters all over town. They made great preparations for this show and spared no trouble to work out the finest details. Prizes were given to the railroad workers (who are state employees, who had the finest flower and vegetable gardens, each one being given a plot of ground 30x30 feet. The show was held in the Tiergarten, which is Berlin's famous park, and so plenty of space was available for such things. Another feature was little orchards of apple trees, the first row being 1 year old; the second, 2 years old, etc., until they were full-bearing trees; many of the 3-year olds would be only two feet high, but would have four or five large, perfect apples. The rose garden had a bush of every popular rose in full bloom, properly labeled, and I saw many American favorites. One of the first labels I read was "Joseph Hill," a large pink rose that I saw for the first time.

Different greenhouse construction firms had single greenhouses erected in the park, in full operation, to demonstrate to possible buyers. Asters were used profusely as bedding plants, being dwarfed so that a plant would be a solid mass of color, and they made most effective beds.

One large building was erected for exhibits of florists' supplies. This was a disappointment to me, as florists' supplies there mean quite different things than here and have little interest to an American florist. Their goods, exhibited principally by Berlin jobbers, consisted mostly of wax flowers, willow wreath frames, baskets, gilded ropes, strawflowers, highly colored show window cloth (for background use), pottery of all kinds, porcelain figures, greenhouse tools and crepe paper. There are no large florists' supply houses such as in this country, and many things the American importer buys for florists' use were not manufactured for that purpose. It is just a case of the American buyer's roaming around and looking at everything he sees as being of possible use to a florist.

The cut flower exhibits were varied and fine. About twenty rooms, arranged with furniture and decorated with flowers, were shown, each room being done by a different retail florist. Then there was an exhibit of flowers made up solidly into special designs, such as ladies' hats, an umbrella, a spinning wheel, a lamp shade, a dancing floor with wax dancing figures, a 4-leaved clover, etc. One was a picture, having a frame of gold marigolds, a background of white asters and a cluster of orchids in the center as the picture. Colonial, or solid, bouquets made up of many varieties of flowers were popular.

The rooms were separated by a wall of natural pine twigs interlaced closely. Then there were several larger rooms, representing different countries, having plants peculiar to that country arranged therein and the background painted so as to blend with the exhibit, making it hard to distinguish where the natural plants left off and the painting began. Among the countries represented were Brazil, with tropical plants, trees and vines; India, with aquarium plants; Arizona, with the cactus plant, etc.; Japan, with chrysanthemums, wisteria, etc., and German woods, showing a German woodland with thousands of fine lilies of the valley growing in an open space. They sold post card views of these scenes, of which I have a set with me. Chrysanthemums seem to be earlier there than here, as by the end of August fine varieties in all colors filled the shop windows, and, on the average, dahlias were much finer than generally seen in this country.

Customs of the Country.

The railroaders' little gardens I spoke of at the show are carried out extensively by all people in all cities. You will see on the outskirts of every city a large tract of several acres divided into these small plots, each one cultivated in the evenings and on Sundays by a city dweller. They call them "Laub Kolonies," or "leaf colonies." Each one has a little rough house erected in one corner, where the tools are kept and where members of the family will spend part of their time.

Another flower custom observed is that when the highest point on a new building is reached, the event is celebrated by placing a wreath of flowers there, just as in this country the workmen place a flag when the highest point of an office building is reached. While there, I heard talk of a successful experiment in producing colored, or dyed wood by having the roots of the tree absorb the desired color, but I do not know how accurate the talk was.

While over there, I met our friend Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa., and visited the greenhouses where he learned the business and where his son, Joseph, Jr., is now doing the same thing. The owner is still doing a thriving business and has a great knowledge of commercial plants. I might add that during my two days' visit with Mr. Thomas we visited all the interesting points on the Rhine in his cousin's high-powered automobile, which traveled over their well kept roads at sixty miles per hour. Mr. Thomas knows every foot of that country and consequently our trips were always extremely interesting. I want also to mention how the farmers along the Rhine take advantage of every foot of ground for their vineyards, as the Rhine valley, as well as the Moselle valley, produces the finest wines in Germany. They cultivate the steep hillsides where the ordinary American would not want to risk his neck climbing. Often a wall that will probably take a stonemason weeks to construct will be built in order to keep a few square feet of ground from being washed down into the Rhine.

In Germany they have a large, double red rose that they tell me is equally good in summer or winter. It is called Fisher Holmes. In white Frau Karl Drusehki is the favorite and this rose, colored an orange shade by putting the stems in orange-colored dye, is quite popular. Cecile Brunner and Majesty are their favorites in pink. Carnations, even in September, were fine. Forests in Germany are replanted as soon as cut, and one can see forests of different ages everywhere, running all the way from 1 to 20 years old when they are ready for recutting.

FLORISTS TO INCREASE DUES.

In Illinois State Association.

At the last annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, held at Urbana, Ill., March, 1922, the by laws were amended to read as follows: "Annual dues, $3; life membership, $25; to take effect January 1, 1923." The dues are now $1 per year, and life membership is $10.

Members and florists who are not members are hereby notified of this important change and their attention is called to the fact that, if there is anyone who wants a life membership at the present rate of $10, now is the time to do so, before January 1, 1923, at which time the dues will be advanced. The reason for the advance in the rates is that it has been impossible in the past for the society to do justice to the work laid out for it at the low rate which now prevails.

Next Meeting at Urbana.

The Illinois State Florists' Association should be 100 per cent in its membership. If the florists could only be made to realize what this association means to them collectively, there would be no difficulty in having it so. The florists of this state as a whole do not appreciate the merits and good work of our experimental station—what it is doing for the trade in its different branches of experimental work—and in order to make this more effective and put the station on the highest plane of usefulness, it needs and must have the strong support of the craft. In the past it was "Let George do it," and as George did it, no one worried. But we are thankful to say that we had a few faithful Georges, and it is to their credit there stands at the University of Illinois a monument to their efforts—the best equipped experimental station in the world. But, florists, we are not satisfied with this.

Progress must be our motto and we must be ever upward and onward if we are going to keep pace with the florists' industry today. More demands than ever are coming to the station for information, and we are glad to say this information is given freely to all.

Now, brother florists, and especially the growers, will you be with us with a united front and help in this glorious work of carrying the banner of Illinois at the head of the column? So now is your chance to be one of us at a little price and the honor and glory will be all yours. The next annual meeting in Urbana will be the greatest in our history. The National Growers' Association will hold its annual meeting with us at the station in Urbana. You will want to be there. You can't afford to miss it. You are all welcome to come, whether members or not, and partake freely and fully of the good things we will have to offer. But try to come with a membership card in your pocket.

Active Officers.

The officers of the Illinois State Florists' Association are as follows: President, Joseph Kohout, Libertyville, Ill.; vice-president, George W. Jacobs, Canton, Ill.; secretary, Albert T. Hey, Maywood, Ill.; treasurer, F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill. The executive committee includes in its membership George J. Ball, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; John M. Fischer, Evanston, Ill.; Charles Loveridge, Peoria, Ill.; J. W. Ross, Centralia, Ill.; Philip J. Daut, Decatur, Ill.; J. H. Blixen, Edwardsville, Ill.

NASHVILLE ENTERTAINS

At Nashville.

The ninth annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association was held in Nashville, Tenn., November 13 and 14. The headquarters for the convention were at the Hotel Hermitage, but the meetings and the flower show were held in the garage of the Imperial Motor Co.

The entire floor of the garage was secured for the show, affording space 100x125, and it was well filled. The exhibits were a revelation to all. While chrysanthemums, as would be expected at this season, were the most in evidence, roses and carnations were not far behind. The outstanding features of the show were a wonderful vase of E. G. Hill's new rose, America; Joy's new carnation, Natalie, and an Enchantress-pink seedling unnamed as yet, and Baum's exhibit of Tennessee-grown lily bulbs. This last led to a lengthy discussion of home-grown bulbs.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Edward Truett, Franklin, Tenn.

Vice-president J. C. Anderson, Lebanon, Tenn.

Secretary-treasurer Gordon M. Bentley, Knoxville, Tenn.

The 1923 meeting will be held at Knoxville.

The meeting was called to order by President Harold M. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., and the address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Wilson. After the secretary-treasurer's reports were heard, Edward Truett, of Franklin, Tenn., spoke on "Coöperation among Florists," while W. C. Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., spoke on "Office System." C. L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., gave a talk on "Tennessee-Grown Bulbs," and H. G. Bramm, Bristol, Tenn., had something to say about "Our Neighbors."

The program of the afternoon of the first day was as follows: Report of committees, election of officers, selection of convention city; "Home Production of Bulbs," by Professor F. C. Bralhar, Madison, Tenn.; "Selection," by

J. C. Vaughan, Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; "Water Lilies," by George Molder, Centennial park, Nashville, Tenn.; "The Iris," by Clarence C. Connell, Nashville, Tenn.; "The Florist and Landscapist," by R. Rodenhouse, Huntsville, Ala.

During the evening of the first day the entire assemblage went to the Princess theater in a body.

On the morning of November 14, Edward Seeery, president of the F. T. D., Paterson, N. J., spoke on the F. T. D. J. Fred Ammann, field manager of the F. T. D., Edwardsville, Ill., spoke on the division units of the F. T. D. B. C. McBride, of Nashville, Tenn., spoke on "Flowers and Plants Best Suited for Cemetery Work." Following these talks, a demonstration of the making of sprays, designs and bridal corsages was witnessed. W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; W. H. Englehart, Memphis, Tenn., and Karl P. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., gave addresses.

In the afternoon of the second day the members in attendance were driven on a tour of the Nashville greenhouses, and they later enjoyed a banquet at the Richland Golf Club.

President Joy's Address.

In his address as president, Harold M. Joy, said:

"By comparison with other industries, we must agree that the florists, as a whole, have enjoyed a very prosperous year and there is no reason why the coming year should not be as good as the last, if not better. The coal strike cost us much concern and a great deal of money, but, with present lower prices, an ample winter's supply is assured. The high cost of Paper White and lily bulbs is a matter that we should give some attention. Last year 14-centimeter Paper Whites were $17 per thousand and this year $43. Giganteum lilies were $35 per thousand four years ago and today they are $167.50. There is a big opportunity awaiting anyone who can grow these bulbs successfully in this country.

"The flower show held in connection with this convention is a good forward step and affords wonderful possibilities for local publicity that will help us greatly to increase our business.

"Our loyal support should be given the national society. Those who are not members should join at once. You have only to attend a meeting of the Society of American Florists to realize the vast work done by that body which directly concerns each and every one of us. Tennessee now has two members on the board of directors. Your president is a director by affiliation; besides, we have a regular elected director. We have also a director in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. The national publicity campaign is doing a splendid work and merits our financial support. Let us join hands and make 'Say It with Flowers' the greatest slogan in the world."

Visitors.

Those from out of the city who were noted in attendance early the opening day were as follows:

CARNATIONS

HOW BRITAIN GROWS THEM.

Market at Covent Garden.

Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England, who recently made an extended tour of carnation establishments in the United States and Canada, following the F. T. D. convention in Baltimore, and while he was the guest of S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., attended the annual meeting of the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., favored the members with a talk on carnation growing in England.

Before speaking on carnations, Mr. Engelmann spoke on the great Covent Garden flower market in London. He said the area devoted to flowers there would be about the same as in the proposed new flower market in Boston. It is in an exceedingly busy and congested part of the great metropolis, he said, and parking spaces are not so good in Boston. There is a special building for the sale of foreign bulbous and other flowers and another for fruits. The market opens at 5 a. m. and closes at 9 a. m.; during the summer it is not open daily. Practically all stalls are occupied by commission men and not growers as here. A government tax of 2 cents is levied on each box of flowers sent in either to the market or to the retailers. This seems a trifling sum, but soon amounts to a good deal where several hundred boxes are sent in daily. He sends his own flowers by van over the road daily, a distance of forty-five miles.

London a Center.

Nearly all the growers near the big provincial cities send their cuts to Covent Garden rather than to nearby markets, as they are sure of an outlet there, and retailers all over Great Britain send there, as they are sure of being able to secure what they need. Flowers from Scotland and the north of England often go to London and are shipped back to near where they were grown. When Mr. Engelmann left England, good disbudded open-air-grown chrysanthemums wholesaled at 75 cents to $1 per dozen; carnations at 50 cents per dozen; roses, about the same as here. They can not produce roses over there in winter as in America, owing to the lack of sunlight. Pot plants are not in great favor. Railroad rates on them are high and many flower stores decline to handle them at all, as they need much care in watering and they bring along much dirt.

Bulbous flowers are grown and sold in enormous numbers there, as compared with here. Dutch salesmen make a tour of America in January and February and sell all they can at a high price. They go to England in late spring and offer bulbs, he said, at much lower prices than they ask here, and a considerable surplus is dumped into auction rooms and sold at any old price. Immense numbers of bulbous flowers come to London from the south of France; also, acacia and many other flowers from Holland, Germany and the Scilly isles, all of which compete with the forced house-grown product.

Many Kinds Grown.

All cut flower boxes are standardized. Carnations are packed thirty-six to a box in single layers; seconds are tied twelve in a bunch. Mr. Engelmann considers a bunch of twenty-five too large; some flowers are sure to be bruised. Roses, bulbous flowers, etc., are sold in a similar way. Bulbous flowers are sold in bunches of twelve at so much per gross or dozen bunches. There is little refrigeration used. Flowers sent in on a given day are practically all cleaned up, in some cases to the street vendors or "wheelbarrow men."

Mr. Engelmann started growing carnations at Saffron Walden eighteen years ago, securing his first stock from the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. He now grows about 300,000 plants and has six acres under glass. Other flowers are grown in addition to carnations; more than 250 varieties are grown. There is a large demand for colors and varieties never seen here at all, the call being great from the large number of private growers in Britain, as well as from continental Europe and even farther afield. Many American kinds are grown and find favor in Britain. He has found only one English variety here; viz., Lady Northeliff.

American Varieties Popular.

Some popular American sorts are the Enchantress family, especially Enchantress Supreme and White Enchantress. These are somewhat soft, but do well and find a ready sale. Pink Delight succeeds well with some; Laddie is now quite largely grown. He has 1,000 Surprise and it promises to be a winner. He grows over 30,000 Peerless Pink and likes it much; it never took well here. May Day is still popular. Happy Day proved a complete failure and belied its name utterly. Beacon is troubled with stem-rot, but is still grown a good deal; so is Ward. Ethel Fisher flowers freely and proves to be a fine exhibition variety; Enchantress Supreme is grown more than any other American sort. No crimson grown here could equal British-grown varieties and many British varieties are now equal to the best American varieties.

Mr. Engelmann has a chalky subsoil which suits carnations. At one time he used raised benches. Now he has nothing but solid beds. Propagation is done at the same time and in the same way as here and planting out is done all the way from the end of April until September, from plants in 3-inch to 3½-inch pots. For a fall crop starting in October, pinching must be done in April or May. The summers are much cooler there than here and there is much less trouble with red spider. He carries plants for two years, but does not cut back 1-year-old plants as is done here. W. E. Wallace, of Eaton Bray, has carried plants successfully for four years, until seven feet high, but that was during the war period, when labor was scarce.

Advises Change of Food.

Mr. Engelmann feeds mainly with artificial manures, mixing his own chemicals. He believes many growers here would do better if they mixed their own chemicals, using less ammonia and changing the food occasionally. Change of food is as necessary for plants as humans in his experience. He uses sulphate of ammonia, sulphate of potash and superphosphate, as well as some liquid cow manure and soot. Nitrogenous feeding is mainly done in summer. In spring potash is used more; it improves the keeping qualities of flowers. He burns all his old plants and saves the resultant ashes from these and other plants as a base for his chemicals, screening it first and using nine-tenths of the ashes to one-tenth of chemicals.

He formerly set his plants 8x10 inches apart, but one of his men one year made an error and spaced them 6x8. He found the plants produced just as many and as fine flowers grown 6x8 as 8x10 and now all are set 6x8. Carnations are unusually popular in Britain, both outdoors and indoors, and great advances have been made in their culture under glass.

CARNATION FAIRY RING.

I have mailed you some specimens of my carnation stock. Some of the plants are covered with spots. Kindly examine the plants and tell me, if possible, what the spots are and what caused them.

W. M. K.—Kan.

There are several fairy ring spots on the plant submitted, which may have developed in the box during transit or during the period of reestablishment, while you were syringing frequently during the hot spell a month ago. Pick off all of the affected leaves and spray the remaining plants with Bordeaux mixture. This treatment, supplemented with favorable growing conditions, will clean it up.

NEW SHOP AT HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

The new flower store of Mrs. D. H. Nivius, operating under the name of the Flower Shop, at the intersection of Central and Reserve avenues, Hot Springs national park, Hot Springs, Ark., is the last word in artistic beauty and completeness; in fact, it is the result of much thought, care and planning on the part of the owner, whose business ability has not gone unrecognized.

The store has two immense display windows, attractively decorated in season, which elicit utterances of admiration from pedestrians. The windows are made additionally attractive by drapes of blue and tangerine terry cloth, as shown in the illustration on this page.

The floor of the store is of white hexagon tile and the side walls are of white marble. Comfortable and inviting-looking wicker furniture, in tones of ivory, adds to the beauty of the setting. A great white display case extends almost across the back of the salesroom, which is separated from the office and workroom by ornamental vine-covered latticework. The show cases are well stocked with an exquisite gift shop line of rare pottery, cards for all seasons and occasions, favors and tallies, together with baskets of every size and shape, as will be seen in the illustration on page 50. A stairway in the rear leads up to a mezzanine floor, on which is located a cozy tea room, where a blue and ivory treatment of decoration prevails. Yellow-glazed Kokora china adds a touch of richness to this setting.

Mrs. Nivius was formerly located at 366 Central avenue, but the rapid growth of the noted government-owned and controlled resort, together with that of her own business, has been so steady that she had to seek new and larger quarters.

The opening of the store was extensively advertised in the Hot Springs' papers, and hundreds of persons came to enjoy the festivities of the occasion. Carnations were given to each one who visited the store. Mrs. Nivius is a member of the F. T. D., and is well known to the florists of the country, who predict greater success to her in her new and elaborate quarters.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

November Meeting.

A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Monday evening, November 13, with President Roman J. Irwin in the chair and an attendance which completely filled the spacious room which may be the club's headquarters in the future. While there was neither business of importance nor special entertainment, the meeting was greatly enjoyed, there being noted a congeniality not experienced at the club's meetings in a long time.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, A. Kottmiller gave a novel demonstration in make-up work, building a table centerpiece from moss and a plain wooden rod, with chrysanthemums for decoration, in a few minutes. He was heartily applauded for his efforts.

The death of John Condon, of Brooklyn, a member for many years, was reported, and a committee, composed of C. J. Speelman and F. H. Wilshire, was appointed to prepare memorial resolutions.

C. H. Totty gave a short talk on his visit to the St. Louis flower show, and advocated that in all shows an effort be made to teach the public how to use flowers.

A. L. Miller reported that Eugene Dailledouze and F. H. Traendly, most esteemed members of the club, were confined to their homes through illness, and it was ordered that tokens of sympathy be sent to them.

On motion, it was ordered that the secretary send a congratulatory letter in behalf of the club to Wallace R.

Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., who was recently elected state senator.

Nominations.

The nominating committee reported its selection of candidates for office in the ensuing year, as follows:

For president—Roman J. Irwin, Arthur Herrington and Philip Cox.

For vice-president—Paul A. Rigo and Peter Duff.

For secretary—John Young and John H. Pepper.

For treasurer—Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., and Aubrey S. Nash.

For trustees—Charles Schenck, John Canning, William Badgley, C. W. Scott, Percy B. Rigby and Peter Gerlaid.

Exhibits.

C. H. Totty exhibited a splendid vase of the new rose, America, which the committee on awards scored 91 points, giving it a preliminary certificate.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed Adrian's Pride, a new yellow chrysanthemum of the Japanese type, which was scored 87 points and was given a preliminary certificate. A. N. Pierson, Inc., also showed a collection of pompon chrysanthemums.

A. Demeusy, Flatbush, Brooklyn, showed vases of Lucille and Enchantment Improved, new carnations.

A. L. Miller showed plants of begonia and Erica ovata.

Roman J. Irwin showed some varieties of a seedling race of quilled pompons in novelty colors.

All were awarded votes of thanks.

Flowers sent in on a given day are practically all cleaned up, in some cases to the street vendors or "wheelbarrow men."

Mr. Engelmann started growing carnations at Saffron Walden eighteen years ago, securing his first stock from the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. He now grows about 300,000 plants and has six acres under glass. Other flowers are grown in addition to carnations; more than 250 varieties are grown. There is a large demand for colors and varieties never seen here at all, the call being great from the large number of private growers in Britain, as well as from continental Europe and even farther afield. Many American kinds are grown and find favor in Britain. He has found only one English variety here; viz., Lady Northlight.

American Varieties Popular.

quite largely grown. He has 1,000 Surprise and it promises to be a winner. He grows over 30,000 Peerless Pink and likes it much; it never took well here. May Day is still popular. Happy Day proved a complete failure and belied its name utterly. Beacon is troubled with stem-rot, but is still grown a good deal; so is Ward. Ethel Fisher flowers freely and proves to be a fine exhibition variety; Enchantress Supreme is grown more than any other American sort. No crimson grown here could equal British-grown varieties and many British varieties are now equal to the best American varieties.

Mr. Engelmann has a chalky subsoil which suits carnations. At one time he used raised benches. Now he has nothing but solid beds. Propagation is done at the same time and in the same way as here and planting out is done all the way from the end of April until September, from plants in 3-inch to 3½-inch pots. For a fall crop starting in October, pinching must be done in April or May. The summers are much cooler there than here and there is much less trouble with red spider. He carries plants for two years, but does not cut back 1-year-old plants as is done here. W. E. Wallace, of Eaton Bray, has carried plants successfully for four years, until seven feet high, but that was during the war period, when labor was scarce.

Advices Change of Food.

Mr. Engelmann feeds mainly with artificial manures, mixing his own chemicals. He believes many growers here would do better if they mixed their own chemicals, using less ammonia and changing the food occasionally. Change of food is as necessary for plants as humans in his experience. He uses sulphate of ammonia, sulphate of potash and superphosphate, as well as some liquid cow manure and soot. Nitrogenous feeding is mainly done in summer. In spring potash is used more; it improves the keeping qualities of flowers. He burns all his old plants and saves the resultant ashes from these and other plants as a base for his chemicals, screening it first and using nine-tenths of the ashes to one-tenth of chemicals.

He formerly set his plants 8x10 inches apart, but one of his men one year made an error and spaced them 6x8. He found the plants produced just as many and as fine flowers grown 6x8 as 8x10 and now all are set 6x8. Carnations are unusually popular in Britain, both out doors and indoors, and great advances have been made in their culture under glass.

CARNATION FAIRY RING.

I have mailed you some specimens of my carnation stock. Some of the plants are covered with spots. Kindly examine the plants and tell me, if possible, what the spots are and what caused them.

W. M. K.—Kan.

There are several fairy ring spots on the plant submitted, which may have developed in the box during transit or during the period of reestablishment, while you were syringing frequently during the hot spell a month ago. Pick off all of the affected leaves and spray the remaining plants with Bordeaux mixture. This treatment, supplemented with favorable growing conditions, will clean it up.

NEW SHOP AT HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

The new flower store of Mrs. D. H. Nivius, operating under the name of the Flower Shop, at the intersection of Central and Reserve avenues, Hot Springs national park, Hot Springs, Ark., is the last word in artistic beauty and completeness; in fact, it is the result of much thought, care and planning on the part of the owner, whose business ability has not gone unrecognized.

The store has two immense display windows, attractively decorated in season, which elicit utterances of admiration from pedestrians. The windows are made additionally attractive by drapes of blue and tangerine terry cloth, as shown in the illustration on this page.

The floor of the store is of white hexagon tile and the side walls are of white marble. Comfortable and inviting-looking wicker furniture, in tones of ivory, adds to the beauty of the setting. A great white display case extends almost across the back of the salesroom, which is separated from the office and workroom by ornamental vine-covered latticework. The show cases are well stocked with an exquisite gift shop line of rare pottery, cards for all seasons and occasions, favors and tullies, together with baskets of every size and shape, as will be seen in the illustration on page 59. A stairway in the rear leads up to a mezzanine floor, on which is located a cozy tea room, where a blue and ivory treatment of decoration prevails. Yellow glazed Kokora china adds a touch of richness to this setting.

Mrs. Nivius was formerly located at 166 Central avenue, but the rapid growth of the noted government owned and controlled resort, together with that of her own business, has been so steady that she had to seek new and larger quarters.

The opening of the store was extensively advertised in the Hot Springs' papers, and hundreds of persons came to enjoy the festivities of the occasion. Carnations were given to each one who visited the store. Mrs. Nivius is a member of the F. T. D., and is well known to the florists of the country, who predict greater success to her in her new and elaborate quarters.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

November Meeting.

A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Monday evening, November 13, with President Roman J. Irwin in the chair and an attendance which completely filled the spacious room which may be the club's headquarters in the future. While there was neither business of importance nor special entertainment, the meeting was greatly enjoyed, there being noted a congeniality not experienced at the club's meetings in a long time.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, A. Kottmiller gave a novel demonstration in make-up work, building a table centerpiece from moss and a plain wooden rod, with chrysanthemums for decoration, in a few minutes. He was heartily applauded for his efforts.

The death of John Condon, of Brooklyn, a member for many years, was reported, and a committee, composed of C. J. Speechman and F. H. Wilshire, was appointed to prepare memorial resolutions.

C. H. Totty gave a short talk on his visit to the St. Louis flower show, and advocated that in all shows an effort be made to teach the public how to use flowers.

A. L. Miller reported that Eugene Dailladonze and F. H. Traendly, most esteemed members of the club, were confined to their homes through illness, and it was ordered that tokens of sympathy be sent to them.

On motion, it was ordered that the secretary send a congratulatory letter on behalf of the club to Wallace R.

Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., who was recently elected state senator.

Nominations.

The nominating committee reported its selection of candidates for office in the ensuing year, as follows:

For president—Roman J. Irwin, Arthur Herrington and Philip Cox.

For vice-president—Paul A. Rigo and Peter Duff.

For secretary—John Young and John H. Pepper.

For treasurer—Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., and Aubrey S. Nash.

For trustees—Charles Schenck, John Canning, William Badgley, C. W. Scott, Percy B. Rigby and Peter Gerlaid.

Exhibits.

C. H. Totty exhibited a splendid vase of the new rose, America, which the committee on awards scored 91 points giving it a preliminary certificate.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed Adrian's Pride, a new yellow chrysanthemum of the Japanese type which was scored 87 points and was given a preliminary certificate. A. N. Pierson, Inc., also showed a collection of pompon chrysanthemums.

A. Demensy, Flatbush, Brooklyn, showed vases of Lucille and Enchantress Improved, new carnations.

A. L. Miller showed plants of Begonia and Erica ovata.

Roman J. Irwin showed some varieties of a seedling race of quilled pompons in novelty colors.

All were awarded votes of thanks.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market throughout last week was somewhat disappointing. A large influx of chrysanthemums proved too much for the legitimate demand and upset the market in nearly all lines. Monday afternoon there had been no reaction. It is quite evident that growers of chrysanthemums stocked up on late varieties, so that those who produced the early ones reaped the harvest for the season. Mums can be had at any price, well grown stock, with the minimum 75 cents per dozen, and the maximum of ordinaries, $4 per dozen. A few special varieties and exhibition stock may bring $6 and even $7.50 per dozen, but they are hardly in the run of the market.

Roses are plentiful, and while not in great supply, move slowly toward clearances. American Beauty shows improvement in quality, but the price of specials is not greater than $20 to $50 per hundred. Hybrid teas remain on a low scale, and sales are slow.

The supply of carnations is steadily increasing. Much of the stock arriving shows signs of field growth, the foliage unclean and marred, and stems short. The price range is $1.50 to $4 per hundred, with the best Mrs. C. W. Ward occasionally bringing $6.

The supply of cattleyas has shortened a little, but there is no change in the price range, $50 to $150 per hundred. Gardenias are more plentiful and the demand just about meets the supply, with the top price $5 per dozen.

White lilies are in good supply, and the price range is a little lower, $12 to $20 per hundred. Valley is in oversupply, but the price of the top grade is still $6, although much of the best stock goes into the $4 grade. Paper White narcissi have appeared and will come in steadily from now on; at present, prices can hardly be quoted.

Violets are plentiful, but are not much in point of quality, needing cooler weather.

There is not much choice in the way of other stock, except sweet peas, blue lace flowers, bouvardia, calendulas, snapdragons and pansies. Stevia is just beginning to come in.

Various Notes.

Visitors November 13 were: Mark P. Mills, William K. Harris, Jr., S. S. Pennoek and Frank Ross, of Philadelphia; Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., and P. F. O'Keefe, of Boston, Mass.

A subcommittee of the publicity committee of the S. A. F. was in session November 13 at the society's offices. A new plan for increasing interest in the publicity campaign was under consideration, and it may be promulgated by the first of the year.

Willie Hanley, salesman for J. J. Coan, was married last week and is away honeymooning.

Harry O. May has sold his retail flower store at 383 Springfield avenue, Summit, N. J., to Peter Rado, who was for some time its manager. The store will in future be known as the Rose Shop.

A store building, at 120 Liberty street, has been leased by Gilbanks, Inc., florist. Mr. Gilbanks has one store at 50 Broadway, which is a good business location.

Frank H. Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, has been confined to his home for several days with inflammatory rheumatism.

Congratulations are going out to Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., upon his election as a state senator.

Wednesday morning, November 8, at the store of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., the cry was, "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" Finally Manager Robert A. Hale assured the force that the missing one would be back at noon. He had gone to see his brother marry into the florists' business; the bride was Miss Grace Durkin, who had been bookkeeper for Joseph Fenrich.

The Henshaw Floral Co. received a shipment of chrysanthemums from Hamburg, Germany, November 13, the flowers arriving in splendid condition considering the distance they had traveled. J. H. P.

Noteworthy items were seen in a number of New York retail flower stores last week. Charles H. Totty's new store, on Fifty-third street, contained a fine assortment of chrysanthemums in all types, tastefully arranged, and some fine vases of Rose America. At Thorley's a pleasing basket arrangement was made of Bouvardia Humboldtii, improved type, and Nerine Fothergillii major. At Fleishman's bronze pompon mums and well fruited oranges filled the window. At Warendorff's, Celastrus scandens and physalis fruits were freely used. A pleasing arrangement at the place of Wadley & Smythe was one of single yellow chrysanthemums, lavender sweet peas and Didiscus cærulea. Solanum Orange Queen and pink ericas were freely used in the show window.

At the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, Montague Free's large new rock garden is being further extended and will be a great feature next spring. R. C. Benedict now has 130 distinct forms of nephrolepis here, which are interesting. There is a fine collection of bromeliaceous plants here, and a number of these should prove quite valuable commercially. Mr. Free received last season sixty new varieties of hardy asters, from Oldenham Court, Elstree, England, and a special border is devoted to them. W. N. C.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Lebanon, Pa.—Since John L. Bernstein, who was adjudged bankrupt September 22, has duly surrendered all of his property, and has fully complied with all of the requirements of the bankruptcy acts of Congress, a petition by Mr. Bernstein was presented to the court that he be discharged from bankruptcy. This petition was made October 27, and by order of the court a hearing will be had on it December 17, before the court at Scranton, Pa., at 10 a. m.

BLACK-SPOT ON ROSES.

Please advise us regarding the best treatment for black-spot on roses. We have a house that is badly infected and are anxious to overcome this condition. L. A. E.—O.

As a spray to combat black-spot on roses, ammoniacal copper carbonate is to be preferred to Bordeaux mixture, which coats the leaves. To make this preparation, first weigh out three ounces of copper carbonate and make a thick paste of it with water in a wooden pail. Then measure five pints of strong ammonia (26 degrees Baumé) and dilute with three or four pints of water. Add this diluted ammonia to the paste, and stir. A deep blue solution will result. To it add enough water to make fifty gallons of spray. This should be applied every week or ten days.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

A PAGE OF TIMELY AID AND ADVICE TO GROWERS

POTTING UP BIENNIALS.

Canterbury bells make excellent pot plants for spring and should be potted up now. Dampness must be guarded against in midwinter, but if the plants are kept tolerably dry in December and January, you will have no trouble with them. Foxgloves are really perennials, but are usually treated as biennials. They also can be potted up at this time. They make nice specimens for flowering in April and May.

Both of these plants are hardy, even in a quite severe winter, if they are planted out where the soil is well drained and if care is taken not to pile winter protection over them until the ground is well frozen. If they are covered with a heavy mulch while the ground is soft, the plants will simply all melt away.

CINERARIAS.

Now that we are getting cooler nights, cinerarias are making much more rapid growth. It may not be easy to give them the necessary space with the chrysanthemums occupying so much now, but these will rapidly decrease in numbers from now onwards. An old, narrow house, ill adapted for the culture of roses, carnations or even mums, will suit cinerarias admirably. They need a low temperature and, if greenhouse space is at a premium, a good, tight cold-frame, which can be protected, will answer for them until early in December. Cinerarias like a light, but rather rich, soil and, as they are quite rapid growers, will need spacing frequently. Occasionally a leaf-miner attacks the foliage. Pick off the badly attacked leaves and either spray or dip the plants in a nicotine solution, an effective cure for leaf-miners on marguerites, cinerarias, geraniums and a number of outdoor subjects. You can still make a late sowing of cinerarias for blooming in April. As a rule, however, they do not sell especially well after Easter.

HERBACEOUS CALCEOLARIAS.

Herbaceous calceolarias like treatment similar to cinerarias. The shrubby or rugosa section, of which Golden Gem is a popular variety, and the large-flowered hybrids between this and the herbaceous type, which gave us Stewartii, Golden Yellow, Lymanii and other fine varieties, are propagated from cuttings and, if these are grown, the present is a suitable time to do some propagating. They will root in a fortnight in a cool cutting bench. The herbaceous, large-flowered section embraces a wide range of colors; there are some self colors, while many flowers are spotted and possess a great fascination to many. Sales of these spring-blooming plants show a considerable increase of late years. They like a nice, light compost, containing plenty of leaf-mold, in the earlier stages of growth and rather loose potting. Some fine charcoal is relished. The writer always adds a little; it seems to assist in keeping the foliage a fine dark color. A low temperature and occasional light sprayings on clear days benefit calceolarias. They dislike bright sunshine and need a little shade except in midwinter. Green aphid has a marked liking for both these and cinerarias, and, to keep them insect-free, a fumigation should be given once a week.

SWEET PEAS.

It is now possible to have sweet peas under glass from September until early in July. The outdoor season is a short and more or less erratic one. The last summer the number of presentable sweet peas coming into the market was surprisingly small. Good indoor sweet peas are always in demand. Asters may be the most important annual for outdoor use commercially, but no other annuals at all approach sweet peas for greenhouse culture. They make a most useful crop with which to follow chrysanthemums. Perhaps you have plants in pots ready to fill up vacant spaces; if not, the seed should be sown where the plants can obtain ample head room, preparing the soil well in advance of planting. It is no use planting sweet peas in poor soil; it must be well enriched in advance. Nothing beats well decayed cow manure if you can get it. If this is not obtainable, manure from horses or sheep can be used, but animal manure, with its moisture-holding properties, as well as plant food, is far superior to any chemical fertilizers. Pink is always the best selling color. Next in order comes pure white, lavender and blue. The other colors are not in great demand. Peas, until they reach the flowering stage, do well in a night temperature of 45 degrees. Once the buds are formed and ready for opening, 5 degrees more heat is essential.

POTTING ROSES FOR FORCING.

Recent sharp frosts have removed much of the foliage from outdoor roses, and they are now in good condition for potting. Probably you have grown some in pots that have been plunged; these are the best for early forcing. They should be laid on their sides and kept moderately dry; this will help to harden the canes. Field stock should be lifted so as to preserve as many roots as possible. Exceedingly long canes may be headed back a little and weak, useless wood removed, although the real trimming and pruning should be, in the main, delayed until the plants are being tied and shaped up in readiness for forcing. This work is usually done right after the holidays. Use a good soil for the roses. Do not let the plants lie around in the sun, so that the roots will dry out. Be sure to pot firmly. While plants in pots six to eight inches in diameter are in greatest demand, some can be sold in larger sizes, and small tubs will be found excellent for large specimens. Plants in some sections may be kept outdoors for a considerable time yet, provided the pots are protected with leaves, straw or hay, to exclude frost; elsewhere, it will be well to place them in sheds, pits or cellars until they are wanted for forcing. Be sure to soak plants well after potting; you cannot afford to have dry roots on newly potted stock. It is otherwise with those which were pot grown through the summer.

FILL THE COLDFRAMES.

Probably you already have many of your pansies, violas, daisies, forget-me-nots and similar plants, which are of doubtful hardiness in many sections, planted in frames. It is a good plan to winter a large part of the stock of small flowers in this way. If they are given a light coating of dry leaves when fairly frozen and sashes are then placed over them, they will winter in fine shape, provided some ventilation is given on hot days, especially in late winter.

There are a number of other plants of doubtful hardiness with many growers which might profitably be stored away in frames now; among these are Canterbury bells, Shasta daisies, foxgloves, pompon chrysanthemums, tritomas, or kniphofias; incarnilleas, Japanese anemones, hollyhocks, white rockets, wall-flowers, Thalictrum dipterocarpum, polyanthus and young seedlings of such perennials as aquilegias, delphiniums, lupines and Lobelia cardinalis.

The double Helianthus multiflorus plenus is not reliably hardy and should also be wintered in a frame or cellar. Avoid putting winter protection on any of these plants until they are well frozen; then give a light covering of dry leaves. If you do not have these, use hay, straw or, where they are abundant, pine needles as a mulch.

THE USE OF EVERGREENS.

Many retail florists use evergreens outside their stores at this season and during the winter. They give the stores a setting and warmth, just as a planting of evergreens about the base of a new home gives it a finished appearance. Country florists might well work up a profitable trade in evergreens for use in vases, tubs or boxes for the winter.

Thuyas, arbor-vitæ, all of the retinisporas, but especially plumosa and plumosa aurea, juniperus, pines of small size and spruces in variety are adaptable for this work. Spruces and pines will sell especially well for Christmas; many persons prefer a growing tree to a larger cut one, for which a stand must be built and which is always more or less liable to blow over until evenly decorated and securely fastened.

Field stock should be lifted so as to preserve as many roots as possible. Exceedingly long canes may be headed back a little and weak, useless wood removed, although the real trimming and pruning should be, in the main, delayed until the plants are being tied and shaped up in readiness for forcing. This work is usually done right after the holidays. Use a good soil for the roses. Do not let the plants lie around in the sun, so that the roots will dry out. Be sure to pot firmly. While plants in pots six to eight inches in diameter are in greatest demand, some can be sold in larger sizes, and small tubs will be found excellent for large specimens. Plants in some sections may be kept outdoors for a considerable time yet, provided the pots are protected with leaves, straw or hay, to exclude frost; elsewhere, it will be well to place them in sheds, pits or cellars until they are wanted for forcing. Be sure to soak plants well after potting; you cannot afford to have dry roots on newly potted stock. It is otherwise with those which were pot grown through the summer.

FILL THE COLD FRAMES.

Probably you already have many of your pansies, violas, daisies, forget-me-nots and similar plants, which are of doubtful hardiness in many sections, planted in frames. It is a good plan to winter a large part of the stock of small flowers in this way. If they are given a light coating of dry leaves when fairly frozen and sashes are then placed over them, they will winter in fine shape, provided some ventilation is given on hot days, especially in late winter.

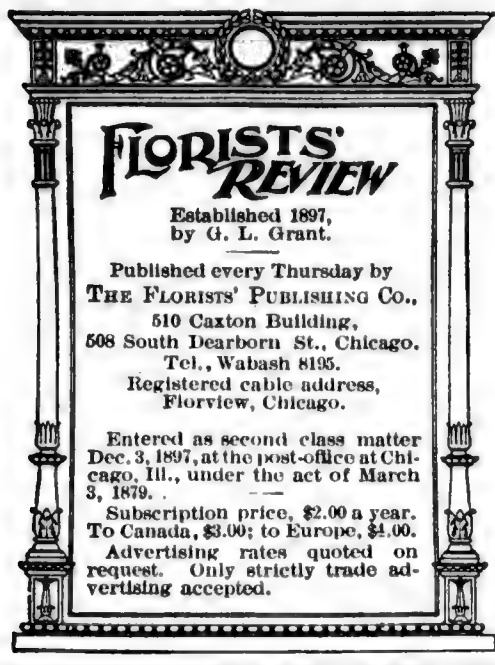

There are a number of other plants of doubtful hardiness with many growers which might profitably be stored away in frames now; among these are Canterbury bells, Shasta daisies, foxgloves, pompon chrysanthemums, tritomas, or kniphofias; incarvilleas, Japanese anemones, hollyhocks, white rockets, wall flowers, Thalictrum dipterocarpum, polyanthus and young seedlings of such perennials as aquilegias, delphiniums, lupines and Lobelia cardinalis.

The double Helianthus multiflorus plenius is not reliably hardy and should also be wintered in a frame or cellar. Avoid putting winter protection on any of these plants until they are well frozen; then give a light covering of dry leaves. If you do not have these, use hay, straw or, where they are abundant, pine needles as a mulch.

THE USE OF EVERGREENS.

Many retail florists use evergreens outside their stores at this season and during the winter. They give the stores a setting and warmth, just as a planting of evergreens about the base of a new home gives it a finished appearance. Country florists might well work up a profitable trade in evergreens for use in vases, tubs or boxes for the winter.

Thuyas, arbor-vitæ, all of the retinisporas, but especially plumosa and plumosa aurea, juniperus, pines of small size and spruces in variety are adaptable for this work. Spruces and pines will sell especially well for Christmas; many persons prefer a growing tree to a larger cut one, for which a stand must be built and which is always more or less liable to blow over until evenly decorated and securely fastened.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

GROW all you can for spring, but grow it good.

No one acquainted with the facts will question that the cost of greenhouse operation is higher this season than ever before.

WHEN a florist buys a Ford, he does not expect Packard quality. Why, then, should he expect the best stock from the man who offers cheapest prices?

THE coal market is soft, but large growers felt compelled to buy a reserve supply at the time prices were about at the peak. It was a matter of "safety first."

THERE are any number of people in the cities and towns who would like to plant shrubs if they knew where to get them. Let the florist make known his facilities in that line.

VARSITY is the name of a yellow button pompon which originated a year or two ago in the greenhouses of the University of Illinois. Some growers have stock. Watch it.

TIMES have changed again. It is once more a sellers' market. Nearly everything has advanced; steel is two and one-half times the price it was last spring. Delivery cannot be assured; cars are not available. Business goes in cycles.

REPORTS indicate that plant stock of nearly all kinds, both for present sale and for growing on, is cleaning up rapidly. There seems little doubt that the spring demand will absorb at good prices all the worth-while planting material the trade can get ready.

No business can grow faster than it develops its office facilities, including correspondence and accounting departments. Keeping the details all caught up serves to satisfy customers, to prevent inquiries and complaints and makes time for other things.

SLOWLY, but none the less surely, people are getting down from the extravagant and careless plane of living developed after the war. Some businesses already have cut out the nonessentials and are going ahead again, but a good many have yet to realize that profits hereafter are to be made principally through careful management rather than through high prices.

PEOPLE who are tired of geraniums will be pleased with petunias in their window boxes next summer. Pink is the popular color.

MEMBERS of the National Window Glass Workers' Association have been granted a ten per cent increase in wages, effective December 1.

SEVERAL readers have sent The Review copies of the Fleurette for November, all alike, of course, except the name of the florist printed on the colored covers. It looks as though it would increase the interest in and sale of flowers; wherefore The Review speaks this word to encourage its wide distribution.

THE first time that greenhouse equipment has been advertised in that most expensive of mediums, the Saturday Evening Post, occurred in its issue of November 11, when the American Radiator Co., in a full page in colors, published a testimonial of C. W. Page as to the value of the Arcola system in his greenhouse at Tivoli, N. Y., which gave rise to the caption, "For Flowers and Families—Arcola Warmth!"

THIS week's issue of The Review—192 pages and cover—is the record for the season; in no previous year has the Autumn Number been quite so large, either in number of pages or in number of copies distributed. To print this issue thirteen presses were required in simultaneous operation for two working days, or if printed on one press a full month would be consumed in the printing. The paper used weighed eight pounds more than seven and one-half tons.

F. R. CRANE, JR., the heating engineer who has been consulted by numerous Chicago growers contemplating changing to oil as fuel, says that his inspections have convinced him that the greenhouse trade generally is operating inefficiently in the matter of heating. Most of the establishments have grown from small beginnings without plan and the heating systems are patchwork. Mr. Crane believes that almost every grower can save from twenty to thirty per cent of his heating costs by calling in a disinterested heating engineer and having the heating apparatus put into shape for efficient operation.

ANOTHER IMPORTED SCALE?

The placing of a federal quarantine on Louisiana and Alabama to prevent the spread of the so-called camphor scale, a newly discovered crop insect pest, will be considered at a public hearing, to be held at Washington, D. C., by the United States Department of Agriculture, November 20. Since its first appearance in this country in New Orleans in 1920, this insect has spread rapidly, attacking many varieties of important plants, including citrus fruits, olives, privet, Japanese persimmon, fig, plum and pecan.

"Its abundance and injuries," according to Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board of the department, "clearly indicate that another serious scale insect pest has effected its establishment in the United States. This new pest is to be added to the already fairly long list of important pests new to American agriculture which apparently gained entry just before the passage of the plant quarantine act."

Dr. Marlatt believes that the origin of this scale in Alabama can be traced to an importation of some 200,000 tri-foliate oranges direct from Japan in 1911 by a Japanese nursery company. The infestation in New Orleans may have come from this shipment or from a similar one about the same time.

COAL MARKET SLOW.

The coal market at Chicago is extremely slow. Because of the unusually mild weather this autumn, domestic consumption has been light and most industrial concerns had provided during summer a fuel reserve they feel they no longer need and which is now going into consumption. Consequently the buying has been only for small day-to-day needs and the market is weak.

Mine-run of the best southern Illinois bituminous is quoted at $3.50 to $4, freight rate to Chicago being $1.95. So-called Standard District Illinois mine-run is quoted at $2 to $2.25, with a freight rate of $1.85.

Indiana Fourth Vein mine-run is quoted at $3.35 to $3.50, with a freight rate of $1.60 to $1.69.

West Virginia Pocahontas continues high, as it is the fuel preferred for Chicago apartment house heating. The quotation is $6 to $6.25 at the mine, with a freight rate to Chicago of $3.24.

DON'T LEND HIM MONEY.

It has come to our attention several times that someone is fraudulently obtaining small loans from florists in different cities by claiming to be Mr. Williams from Williams & Co., South Bend, Ind.

At each place he has some hard-luck story to tell and then claims to be temporarily broke. He says that he is wiring for money and will return the loan as soon as he receives the money.

Will you kindly insert a warning note in your next issue, so that other florists will be forewarned if they are approached with a similar story?

The swindler seems to be traveling southward, as he tried his scheme on a florist in Greencastle and then on one in Indianapolis, and when last we heard, he was in Lexington, Ky., at the races and obtained a loan of $5.

Williams the Florist.

DO YOU KNOW THIS FUCHSIA?

In the summer we purchased fifty Fuchsia Little Beauty for stock. When the plants we received began to bloom we found some flowers were distinctly double. The color of both single and double forms is identical, but the double flower is beautifully mottled. The habit of the double variety is dwarf, but more spreading than Little Beauty. Under the same treatment, it is more profuse in blooms. It is a new one to us, and we should like to know the name of it. To us it seems a real acquisition.

S. C. Templin & Son.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. E. L., O.—A species of sedum; exact variety not determinable without flowers, which were not carried on spray sent.

J. V., Ky.—The usual method is to state the ground area covered by glass. To figure glass area for heating or insurance purposes, multiply length of sashbars by length of greenhouse and add for gables and glass in walls, if any.

OBITUARY

William C. Medcalf.

William Christopher Medcalf died Wednesday evening, November 8, at his home, 207 Selye terrace, Rochester, N. Y., at the age of 93 years. He was an expert landscape architect. Among his most notable work in this city was the laying out of the grounds around the Watson memorial art gallery on the University of Rochester campus, and of the surroundings of the Monroe Tuberculosis Sanitarium, on South avenue.

Mr. Medcalf was born March 29, 1830, in Wigginhall, St. Mary, county of Norfolk, England. In that country he learned the rudiments of landscape architecture. For many years he lived in Aylmer hall, Norfolk, the historic home of Bishop Aylmer, who was the tutor of Lady Jane Grey in the time of Queen Mary. He came to this country in March, 1873, settling in Rochester, where he resided until his death. Edwin A. Medcalf, a son, has been an attorney here for many years and another son, William Hugh Medcalf, who died two years ago, was for many years connected with the department of parks. Besides his son, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Thomas N. Smith and Mrs. Henry T. Brown; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. H. J. H.

Francis J. Tighe.

Francis J. Tighe, a well known greenhouse salesman and employee of the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., died suddenly November 1. Mr. Tighe had enjoyed the best of health, but on the day of his death he complained that he was not feeling well. While en route to call on two or three florists, he stopped at a doctor's office for a diagnosis of his illness, and while in the doctor's office he succumbed to an attack of acute indigestion.

Mr. Tighe was 30 years of age, and was born in Buffalo, N. Y. Since the time of his graduation from Canisius high school, in 1912, Mr. Tighe had been connected with the King Construction Co., first as manager of the New England territory and later as manager of the western New York, western Pennsylvania and Ohio territory.

During the war, Mr. Tighe saw service in France with the Thirteenth Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps. He was a member of the Semper Fidelis Club of the Marine Corps and the Buffalo Floral Club. The deceased is survived by his mother, one sister and two brothers.

Viola May Humfeld.

Miss Viola May Humfeld, 30 years old, died Friday, November 10, at her home in Tucson, Ariz. She lived in Kansas City until a year ago. She leaves four sisters, Mrs. L. M. Orear, of Kansas City; Miss Emma Humfeld and Miss Fannie Humfeld, of Tucson, Ariz.; Mrs. P. J. Newman, of Manhattan, Kan. J. E. K.

FLORIDA FLOWER SHOW.

At a meeting held November 3, at Orlando, Fla., it was decided to hold a state flower show in Orlando in April of next year. This show is to be a joint affair of the Florida State Florists' Association and the Florida State Horticultural Society, with the coöperation, possibly, of the federation of women's clubs. In addition to the displays of cut flowers and potted plants, it is planned to have exhibition plantings of ornamental trees and shrubs, as well as pot plants. A floral parade will be included in the program of one day of the show. Space will be provided for trade exhibits of supplies, etc. N. A. Reasoner, Oneco, Fla., is chairman of the joint committee of fifteen, and Director F. W. Fletcher, Orlando, Fla., is chairman of the local committee on arrangements and superintendent of the exhibition.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Warm weather has brought on the chrysanthemum crop so fast that the market is overstocked. The growers are leaving the blooms uncut until they are just right and then sending them to the commission houses in the best of condition. During a part of last week the temperature rose to 75 degrees above zero. The quality of mums is excellent. The blooms are clean, full and large. Roses are becoming scarcer each week, but they are extremely good. Carnations are improving materially as the month goes on. The retail stores are offering fine chrysanthemum plants.

Various Notes.

Miss Hayden attended the flower show in St. Louis November 9 and 10, and returned to Kansas City November 11. She said the show was a fine event and a credit to the St. Louis florists. The courtesy and hospitality for which the people of St. Louis are noted was much in evidence. Miss Hayden renewed a number of acquaintances formed at the S. A. F. convention last August and made many new ones.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. had good business last week. Together with other stock, 10,000 mums were moved. This firm is handling some extra long-stemmed Columbia, Premier and Butterfly roses. Some of them had 36-inch stems.

Mrs. John Murray, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., will leave for California the latter part of November.

A. Vilven & Sons, owners of the Harmony Gardens, have bought the Wamego Flower Shop, Wamego, Kan.

The W. A. Miller Floral Co. has the decorations for the Dickey-Sharp wedding, which will be the most elaborate of the season.

The Alpha Floral Co. had twenty-seven baskets and a large horseshoe of flowers for the opening of the Kansas City Trunk Co., November 4. Roses were given to all who visited the store the opening day. For the opening of the Bellrive, a new hotel, November 9, the firm supplied fifteen large baskets of flowers.

M. E. Carter, manager of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., left for Denver, Colo., November 14. He was one of the judges at the Denver flower show.

William Wade and S. Bryson Ayres attended the St. Louis flower show.

George H. Cooper, of Denver, Colo., stopped in Kansas City a day on his return from a visit in the east. He had not been here for about twenty years and was surprised at the growth of the city, and the character of the flower shops here.

Work has been heavy all this month in the Muehlebach Flower Shop. Some days there were as many as twenty table decorations ordered. For an Armistice day luncheon, Hugo R. Neff made twenty-six small colonial bouquets of red, white and blue. He used white pompons, red carnations and cornflowers.

George and James Papadakos are in Chicago to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Martina Papadakos.

A third crop of cherries for this season has ripened on several trees in an orchard of the Cherry Hill Farm, a mile east of Independence, Mo. The farm is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith. Mr. Smith said that nearly every tree had a few cherries of the third crop. The third crop is attributed to the warm weather.

An account of the death of Miss Viola May Humfeld, of Tucson, Ariz., will be found in the obituary column.

During the dedication of Richards' field Saturday, November 11, airplanes flew over the crowd assembled for the occasion. When the planes were directly above the field, flowers were thrown from them. More than 300 persons attended the ceremonies, which were cut short by a heavy rain. A bronze tablet, erected in honor of Lieutenant John F. Richards II, who lost his life in the air service in the late war, was dedicated that day. The field named in his honor is to be a permanent landing place for planes. Eight army planes and twelve commercial planes took part in the meet Armistice day. J. E. K.

Mount Saint Mary's Greenhouses, Twenty-second and Jackson streets, report an exceptionally good business for All Saints' day. The firm sold out completely of both potted and cut mums, while grave decorations were exceedingly numerous. The firm is adding another house to its range.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been a large volume of business since last report. For several days last week the supply of stock was extremely large, and it was impossible to clean up in more than a few special lines. Then came a change in the weather, colder, dark and rainy. The result was a reduction in the supply of stock, which put the market in a position where a slight acceleration of the demand will have an important effect on values.

The chrysanthemum is now the chief flower. The supply is large, but prices for good stock are at least as good as in any recent year. There has been a large quantity of poor stuff, difficult to sell at any price, but these varieties are passing and those now being cut are of the better, midseason varieties and quality. With the low-grade stock out of the way, the better flowers are finding a better market. There is some difference in reports. Some growers are getting well cut out, their plantings having consisted of earlier varieties and Bonnaffon. Some of the growers find the season so far advanced that they were through cutting Bonnaillon last week. Other growers, however, have planted little that was earlier than Bonnaillon and still have the bulk of their crops to bring to market. At present Bonnaillon, White Bonnaillon, Chieftain and White Chieftain are the principal varieties. Nothing sells better than Bonnaillon, which is popular.

Pompons are selling well. The supply does not seem to be so large as usual this season, but nevertheless is large enough so that everyone can get all that are needed. The variety is infinite. The disbudded pompons, Doty and Pink Doty, have pretty well passed and their place is being taken by disbudded anemone-flowered varieties.

For the moment the rose takes second place. Most of the growers have aimed to skip the chrysanthemum season and to bring their crops in after the mums are gone. There is a general belief that roses will not be abundant for Thanksgiving, but that they will be plentiful for Christmas. Within the last few days there have been enough roses to go around only because the demand was not large, being centered on chrysanthemums. The bulk of the cut is from medium to long, and shorts, therefore, seem in greater request. It sometimes is difficult to fill orders for the cheaper grades of roses, but any buyer who can use fine, long-stemmed flowers can get as many as he needs. Of course, under such conditions, good shorts command relatively better prices than do the other grades.

With darker weather, carnations began to clean up and November 11, for the first time in several weeks, orders were shipped short. It is not likely there will be any continuous shortage so long as the pompons hold out. Lilies are a few auratums and rubrums. Valley, too, is seen awaiting buyers; usually the buyers are awaiting valley. Cattleyas are more abundant. One sees them waiting, too.

The weather has not favored sweet peas, so the supply is not large and the quality not so good as we should like. All good stock sells quickly. Only a few violets are seen. Paper Whites have become quite plentiful. It is difficult to clean them up, though everyone recognizes the necessity for good returns if the growers are to break even.

The price of ferns has advanced to $4 per thousand. Shipments come along so slowly that every now and then there is a scarcity. The quality is nothing to brag about and the waste is so large the wholesalers say they are no more than breaking even at the price. Boxwood has become quite plentiful and is of unusually good quality this season. The same may be said of red winter berries.

ARTIFICIAL FRUIT

BUY IT BY THE BOX—SELL IT BY THE BOX

"One way to hold up your end with the Greek fruit store which sells flowers is to offer flower buyers an assortment of artificial fruit. It sells well for table decoration."—Editorial paragraph in Florists' Review of November 2, 1922.

OTHERS DO— WHY NOT YOU?

Many of the finest flower stores in America are handling Randall Artificial Fruit. It is a quick seller and they make good profits. Some stores have sold hundreds of boxes this autumn and even the smallest stores, when they tried, have sold dozens of boxes.

The illustration gives only a poor idea of these artificial fruits. We wish we could show their colors here They are wonderfully bright and lifelike. It is a fine assortment of large, luscious looking fruit. Each assortment contains one pair, two oranges, two bananas, two large bunches of grapes, two apples, two plums and one peach. Order a few boxes now for Thanksgiving.

Cherry Florists

La Grande, Oregon October 31, 1922

The A. L. Randall Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

When Mrs. Cherry and myself went to Chicago this summer to purchase a refrigerator and store fixtures we visited a large number of flower stores and saw many makes of refrigerators. The one thing that impressed us most was the absence of sweat on the glass in your refrigerators. We saw it on many of the other makes.

We decided upon your equipment, it has arrived and is all in working order, and to say that we are pleased does not express half of it. The silver grey finish is admired by everyone and we are certainly pleased with the whole equipment

Sincerely
Cherry Florists

PITTSBURGH, PA.The Market.

Chrysanthemums and pompons are the principal features in the market. Quantities of fine mums are being received; also, a large supply of pompons. The demand moves these out quite readily.

The supply of roses has been somewhat shortened, due to the fact that some of the growers are preparing for the holidays. Carnations are improving each day in quality and the demand is good. Easter lilies are also in demand. The supply is just about equal to what is needed. Valley is one of the daily supplies and moves out fairly well. Some fine orchids were in the market during the last week and moved well. Yellow daisies, sweet peas and calendulas are now becoming daily factors. Greens were much in demand last week. Natural bronze galax has made its first appearance. The first shipments of boxwood sprays from Virginia have made their appearance. The demand is rather limited at the present time, as most of the customers desire this evergreen at the holiday time. Natural lycopodium, ground pine, has come into the market from northern Pennsylvania. Both the tree and dwarf varieties of boxwood are to be had. American arbor-vitæ is an excellent ever-

Robert Kift, of Philadelphia, Pa., stopped in Pittsburgh en route to the St. Louis fall flower show. H. J. H.

The Market.

The market has gone through the show week, with its two holidays, with rather less than the usual depression. The chrysanthemum season is at its height and there has been no noticeable surplus. Pompons have not fared so well. Carnations have fared badly and roses worse. Armistice day was not the floral festival that was hoped. Sir Auckland Geddes was here; there was a dance and a meeting, but the general observance was missing. Still there was some demand from the American Legion and from other sources.

Whittier has come. It is rivaling Bonnaillon as the leading midseason commercial yellow chrysanthemum. Whittier is extremely fine and is making friends. Thanksgiving Pink is in, an indication that the season is early. Chieftain is popular. Rager, Major Bonnaillon and White Bonnaillon are good. The Turners, yellow and white, are superb.

It seems as though the standard varieties of pompons are waning in favor. A certain number of them sell, but now that they can be had in quantity, their support is only mediocre. The few that are disbudded have met with better results, so far.

The margin between the better and the ordinary grades of other flowers is more marked. The aristocratic group and certain specialties bring pretty good prices, but the "hoi polloi" are too cheap. Mignonette has come and single bouvardia. There are a few gardenias and a great variety of fancy greens.

In Frankford.

There was great rejoicing in Frankford last week over the opening of the elevated railway that connects that section with the center of the city. The festivities lasted one week. The business parade held was a fine affair, with many prizes offered for competition. The first prize, a handsome silver cup, was awarded by unanimous verdict of the seven judges to Elmer W. Gaehring for his float. Mr. Gaehring's display was a work of art that took a week to prepare. It consisted of a White truck drawing a float fourteen feet in length.

In the center of the truck was a tall vase containing twelve magnificent Turner chrysanthemums. The sides were decorated with hemlock and with ferns.

ribbon; blue and yellow are the city colors. A page in blue uniform with brass buttons was at each side.

Mr. Gaehring, himself, was in the center handing the pages flowers, which they distributed as they passed. There were 1,000 roses and 500 carnations showered away. The stem of each flower said "Say It with Flowers. E. W. Gaehring, Inc., 1854-1922." When the judges' stand was reached, corsage bouquets of Ward roses were flung into it.

The float contained a wonderful rock garden and fountain, with real water flowing over the rock. Two children, familiar to Frankford theater, were near the fountain. The little boy, kneeling before the little girl, was presenting her with flowers while proposing. A canopy of green completed the float. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm.

Raedlein Basket Co., 713-717 MILWAUKEE AVE., Chicago, Ill.

Bayersdorfer & Co. at the Mercantile Club, the evening of November 11, was one of those lovely affairs that make life worth while.

About 120 ladies and gentlemen sat down to an exceedingly modern dinner. Every employee of the house was there, save two who are far away, one in British Columbia, the other in New England. And all were happy. The card room and the entire second floor of the club were tastefully decorated with poppies and evergreen, vases of tall chrysanthemums and flags for our boys on Armistice day. Charles H. Grakelow made the opening speech, lauding the firm for its progressiveness. E. P. Klinger acted as toastmaster. Sydney H. Bayersdorfer made a good speech, as did also several heads of departments.

Walter Davis was introduced as chairman of the baseball committee of the Florists' Club. Mr. Davis presented the Campbell cup to the Bayersdorfer team, champion for 1922. Robert Coulter, manager of the team, accepted in a clear style, saying the team would take good care of it and try to win it again next season. Each member of the team was presented with a gold watch fob.

There was an excellent vaudeville entertainment and dancing.

The Merchant Prince, himself, was the last speaker at that long-to-be-remembered evening. Dancing closed the festivities.

The belated express brought some notable exhibits on Tuesday afternoon, November 7. The Charles H. Totty Co., of Madison, N. J., staged three ex-second exhibit consisted of fifteen carefully selected Japanese chrysanthemums, one flower of each variety. They were large and handsome. The company's third exhibit was the much-heralded Rose America, whose debut takes place next spring under the wings of E. G. Hill and C. H. Totty.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., exhibiting as the Cromwell Gardens, Cromwell, Conn., sent the coming debutante, Commonwealth, a rose that attracted attention, and fifty exceedingly fine varieties of pompons, staged as a group.

In front of the entrance to the room of the Garden Club of America, Pen-nock Bros. had a table of their dainty floral combinations, richly adorned. Nearby, the School of Horticulture for Women, at Ambler, had a table of outdoor pompons, with seeds, bulbs, implements and books to give an idea of their work.

The London Flower Shop arranged a table of its specialties in art and flowers, which was extremely interesting.

W. W. Crawford displayed for Robert Crawford, Jr., four baskets of chrysanthemums, tastefully arranged. Wednesday, November 8, Joseph Manda, Inc., West Orange, N. J., sent a table of dainty orchids, including many cypripediums; this was accorded a place of honor in the ladies' room. Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa., had a vase of American Legion that was decorative; on the other side, William Kleinheinz, of Lynnwood Hall, put up a vase of American Beauty, still the queen of roses.

There were twelve entries in the class for a table decoration. For these, as well as for the other prizes offered by the Garden Club of America, the visitors voted. Many ballots were distributed; some were handed in. This method of judging can hardly be called popular yet. It is on trial. The vegetables were put in the lobby. They formed a large and interesting display that attracted much attention. The arrangement of the Widener group of plants by John Kahn, of Olney, was greatly admired. The weather was good throughout the show; the crowds were large—decidedly larger than last season.

Robert Pyle, of West Grove; Bertrand H. Farr, of Wyomissing, and John L. Horn, of Allentown, were among the out-of-town visitors.

Christmas Plants.

"Every day in every way we grow better and better." These words of the French doctor, Couc, so captivated Robert A. Craig that he has adapted them as a slogan of the Robert Craig Co. They refer to people, as originally used, but Mr. Craig finds that by applying them to plants an added significance is given them which is inspiring. Mr. Craig and Van believe in them, and in that belief lies the spirit of the success of Norwood.

Cyclamens lead the group of Christmas-flowering plants today, as they have done for several years. They are difficult to grow, extremely decorative and satisfactory as house plants. There are four houses of fine cyclamens at Norwood; the size of the advance flowers and the richness of their coloring are already apparent.

Begonia Melior takes first place in its class this season. There are some Cincinnati and Konkurent, but Lorraine, Lonsdale and Mrs. Peterson have been pushed aside. From a retailer's standpoint, this is good news, for, while there are no begonias which can equal Lorraine, it causes more heart-burning than any other variety.

Poinsettias are represented by two houses of promising stock, with clean foliage in all sizes.

Nephrolepis Scottii, N. Teddy, Jr., N. Verona, N. Norwood and, best of all, Dwarf Boston, are extremely fine all the way down the line. The crotons are grown today, as is everything else worth while, in the leading varieties only. Juliet Delaruge and Norwood Beauty, side by side, present long vistas of color in striking contrast. Among the dracaenas, the great big specimens are less plentiful; the demand has been so active that the great mass of D. Massangeana, D. terminalis and D. Lord Wolseley are in the medium and basket sizes.

Berried plants are represented by a lovely little block of Ardisia crenulata and Solanum Cleveland. Peppers are well done. Gardenias deserve much higher praise, while Otaheite oranges join them in the superlative class. There is a large quantity of arecas and a well colored stock of Pandanus Veitchii that appears to be larger than ever before.

In short, as the brief journey to the station is being covered, the opening words of these lines recur: "Every day in every way we grow better and better."

Various Notes.

Alfred M. Campbell has completed the new Lord & Burnham house, 40x125 feet, filled it with hydrangeas and is building another of the same size. This makes four houses that have been added at Strafford in two years.

J. M. Deutscher is displaying some beautiful Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations at the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Alvah R. Jones has returned from a business trip up the state and through southern New York.

Gold Mine, Marigold, Golden Queen, Bonnaffon, Chieftain and Rager are among the leading varieties of chrysanthemums at the store of William J. Baker.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons have made a hit with a window decoration of magnificent show Turners at their shop in the Bellevue-Stratford.

M. J. Callahan has been showing large baskets filled quite full of small pompons, a single variety to a basket.

Recent visitors included W. Guy Payne and Mrs. Payne, Coatesville, Pa.; Ernest Ashley, Allentown, Pa.; John F. Horn, Allentown, Pa.; C. F. Baker and Mrs. Baker, Utica, N. Y.; William F. Gude and Granville Gude, Washington, D. C.

Charles D. Ball, Holmesburg, Pa., has electrified his friends with his new delivery car.

C. U. Liggit has just returned from Reading, Pa., where the show was fine and largely attended. Mr. Liggit took some flowers of the new rose Commonwealth, furnished by Elmer J. Weaver, of Ronks, Pa.

The judges of the Scranton flower show were Anton Schultheis, of College Point, N. Y.; C. F. Baker, of Utica, N. Y., and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia.

The Evergreen Supply Co. has two promising novelties in tropical grass, with colors like changeable silk, and woodwardia fern. Both are distinct and decorative. Phil.

The Market.

A large supply of flowers continues to come in. Chrysanthemums are now at their height and overtop everything else. During the first half of the last week business was flat, but it improved towards the close, and prices were equal to those of the week previous; in fact, prices were somewhat stronger in some lines. The weather has been remarkpompons and singles, but the demand is good and all good flowers are readily sold at satisfactory prices.

The supply of roses is somewhat reduced and prices, as a result, have improved on the shorter grades. Carnations are moving a trifle better and average $1 per hundred better than a week ago. The quality is good, but cooler weather would improve it. Violets remain about the same. Supplies of these are small compared with what they were ten years ago. There is an increased supply of calendulas, for which the demand is good. There is a good pick of sweet peas coming in, with small lots of snapdragons.

Cattleyas continue to be plentiful and are more moderate in price. Cypripediums are more abundant; C. insigne Sanderae is the most popular variety. Bouvardia Humboldtii continues to be popular for weddings. Lily of the valley is easier in price. Gardenias are few and nerines are nearing the end. White chrysanthemums are the leading pot plants, with an abundance of cyclamens and begonias. A few ericas have also made their appearance, while oranges and red and yellow solanums are seen on all sides.

Various Notes.

The basement of the new wholesale flower market has been leased for a term of years to Henry M. Robinson & Co.; 20,000 square feet of space will be available January 1 and an additional 10,000 feet somewhat later. Contracts for heating and structural alterations on the building have been approved, and growers are sure that the main floor will be ready for occupancy on or about January 1, 1923.

There will be some fine orchids on exhibition at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club meeting November 21, when there will be orchid talks by George W. Butterworth, Donald McKenzie, George I'Anson and George Lydiard. Nominations of officers will be made the same evening. A good crowd is assured for the field day at Halifax, Mass., November 18.

Among the fancy chrysanthemums coming in at present are some splendid specimens of White Surprise from William R. Nicholson, Framingham. The finest flowers have wholesaled at $1 each. A grand lot of Bonnaffon and Murdock are coming from the same grower.

At the Dedham greenhouses, R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have several thousand cyclamens in fine shape for the anthemums in pots, and there has been a big demand for these. Nephrolepis plants are also being grown heavily.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. reports that its supplies of bulbs are somewhat smaller than a year ago and that a continuation of the present warm weather will soon materially reduce the balance. The firm's poultry department is doing a large business in pullets for winter laying.

Supplies of bituminous coal seem now to be almost back to normal, with prices weakening. Local dealers of anthracite have advanced prices $1 per ton, which the mayor, governor and fuel administrator class as utterly unwarranted and, if prices are not dropped to their former level, stocks will in all probability be seized by the fuel administrator. Oil heating continues to excite not a little interest.

James Wheeler, of Natick, is starting in to glaze his new greenhouse, which he plans to devote to the culture of callas in solid beds.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society occurs at 12 noon November 18. The polls will be open for the election of officers from 12 noon to 3 p. m.

The Halifax Gardens Co., of Halifax, Mass., where Eber Holmes is manager, is planning on the erection of two more large houses next season.

William H. Elliott is still cutting excellent Kaiserin roses. Angelus continues to render a good account of itself, as does Golden Ophelia and Crusader.

William H. Judd, propagator at the Arnold Arboretum, has been busy the last two or three weeks packing shipments of new and rare hardy trees and shrubs, mainly of Chinese origin, for England, Scotland, France, South Africa and many parts of the United States and Canada.

The many friends of William Nicholson, Sr., will be glad to know that his health is much improved and he was able to attend a steeplechase at Millwood Farm, Framingham, November 9.

Harold A. Ryan, of Mount Auburn Greenhouses, Cambridge, has an excellent lot of cyclamens, begonias, primulas, solanums and other holiday stock. He is pushing work on his new dwelling house, which he hopes to occupy before Christmas.

Harold J. Patten, of Tewksbury, is busy installing oil heating for his large commercial range. The tank will hold 65,000 gallons.

J. K. Chandler, of the flower exchange, sold 16,000 sprays of pompon chrysanthemums November 4 to the Tuberculosis League for distribution to the hospitals, and the flowers pleased them so much that they ordered 20,000 sprays for a similar purpose next year.

For the Harvard-Princeton football game November 11, there was a great demand for chrysanthemums, and crimson sold at splendid prices. Single violets sold up to $2 per hundred, the highest price of the present season. The old Julia Lagravere was prominent among the red pompons. W. N. C.

The Ideal Evergreen Grave Blanket

NOTHING can approach it for beauty as a winter covering for graves. Our special method of close weaving gives it the rich green mound effect so greatly admired. The Ideal Blanket is manufactured only by us. Florists will find our Blanket a valuable addition to their business, as it is strictly in their line. Profits are good, as they retail from $4.00 to $5.00 each. Our Blankets also furnish the base for added decorations which will run their retail price up to $50.00 or more.

cinths more profitable; 3,500 giganteum lilies had just been potted and were temporarily below benches. Large batches of cyclamens, primulas, obconica and sinensis begonias and poinsettias were coming along in good shape for the holidays. Ferns and palms are a specialty here, and a large trade is done in table ferns. A fine lot of dracaenas, such as D. terminalis and D. fragrans, ficus and other foliage plants were noted. Standard heliotropes would be just right, it was said, for the holidays, as well as solanums in quantity. Some thousands of hydrangeas and a quantity of roses were being held to come along for Easter. Bedding plants are a great specialty here, and about every variety grown is carried. The firm is well supplied with fuel and Manager John T. Slayter sees a splendid business season ahead.

H. J. Borowski & Sons, on Mount Hope street, are adding to their equipment and have foundations prepared for the new connected Hitchings houses, each 25x150, for pot plants, which are always remarkably well done here. There are thousands of finely grown cyclamens, mainly in 6-inch and 7-inch pots, all the picture of health and without a trace of mite or fungoid disease. Begonias fill several houses. All are B. Melior and, in addition to the larger sizes in 8-inch pans, of which there are several thousands, there are large numbers in small pots; these are splendid little plants. Solanums Orange Queen and Cleveland, heavily fruited stock mainly in 5-inch pots, were to be seen in thousands. Ernest Borowski, the skilled grower here, says he has never yet had enough of them.

Quantities of Azalea indica have been propagated here the last two years and they look extremely well. One frame of young stock potted off from May cuttings was the picture of good health. There was a large batch of well fruited Otaheite oranges, some excellent Erica melanthera and geraniums in 7-inch and 8-inch pots, and large quantities of nephrolepis, mainly Teddy, Jr., dwarf Boston, Macawii and Boston. When the new plant houses are completed here in December, this will be one of the finest pot plant establishments near Boston.

Seen at Ellis, Mass.

Peter Fisher's carnation establishment has sent out some of the greatest carnations ever introduced, such as Lawson, Enchantress, Beacon and Benora, to name but a quartette. While not so much has been heard from Mr. Fisher the last year or two, he has continued to "saw wood" and many excellent seedlings are being tested out here, a number of scarlets and whites being especially good. Mr. Fisher is discriminating and none but the best are ever introduced; usually these make good.

Some 32,000 are planted here this season and it is interesting to note that Ethel Fisher, the scarlet with which many failed to succeed, looks splendid here and carries far more flowers, on long, wiry stems, than any other variety on the place. This clearly shows that when Mr. Fisher introduced this fine scarlet he had implicit faith that it was a good thing and would equal the popularity of Beacon, one of his earlier introductions. Enchantress Supreme is grown here as a pink and Matchless and White Enchantress as whites. Laddie is grown as a fancy, also Maine Sunshine. The last-named flowers freely the year around. Carried-over beds of Laddie, Matchless, Ward and Maine Sunshine were noted, and the last-named carried great quantities of flowers which prove most useful in design work.

Smaller batches of White Delight, Morning Glow and one or two other sorts were seen. Two houses were planted with Godfrey callas, and these were starting to flower freely. Among chrysanthemums, a bed of seedling pompons and singles contained some fine things. Richmond, yellow incurved, and Smith's Imperial, white, were good among the larger-typed flowers. Several long solid beds were planted with sweet peas, including Yarrowa, Rose Queen, Mrs. Kerr, Lavender King, Storm King and one or two other va-

SHOW AT COLUMBUS, O.

Draws Crowds.

The annual horticultural show, held at Ohio State University, Columbus, O., November 9 to 11, under the auspices of the Ohio State Horticultural Society, was a bigger success than any previous exhibition. In addition to large number of flowers and plants displayed, there were also exhibits of fruits and vegetables. Methods of growing were shown. Immense crowds visited the exhibition in the four days it was open.

The flower show proper was held in the greenhouses of Ohio State University; the houses here are quite large. A large platform was erected to give visitors a better chance to see the exhibits. Prizes were given in the various classes of chrysanthemums, roses and pot plants. Many of the prizes were of money; several trophies were donated.

The sweepstakes for the largest and most varied displays, which included the winning of the largest number of prizes, was won by the Fifth Avenue Floral Co. The prize was a cup donated by the Goodman Jewelry Co., of Columbus. A second sweepstakes prize, consisting of a china vase, donated by the Zane Pottery Co., of Zanesville, was won by Miss Jessie Slemmon, of Columbus. The third prize was captured by the Block Floral Co., Columbus, the prize consisting of a ribbon.

Many Awards Made.

Winners in the chrysanthemum show were:

William Turner—Buck Greenhouse Co., Washington Court House, O., first; Otto Ackerman, Columbus, second.
Dr. Enguehard—J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland.
Major Bonaffon—J. M. Gasser Co., first; Block Floral Co., second.

The judges of the contest were J. E. Myers, of the Institution for the Feeble Minded, Columbus; E. J. Evans, of the Columbus State Hospital, and John Morrison, of the university greenhouses.

Another feature of the exhibition was a display of fruits, including many kinds grown in Ohio. Prizes were given for the best specimen as to shape, size and other features. In the apple show was a display showing disease and insect control, pruning, marketing and packing.

In the vegetable show were displayed garden products, harvested grains and greenhouse plants. The vegetables were mostly greenhouse-grown.

The officers of the Ohio State Horticultural Society are Floyd Smith, president; Marian Brown, vice-president, and Margaret Close, secretary.

THREE GOOD COLORS

We now have a Blue and Deep Pink dye that are fit companions to our famous Yellow. The blue is as blue by artificial light as by day. Peas, Roses, Carnations, Tulips, Paper Whites, Freesias, Larkspurs, Shasta Daisies, and almost any flowers take these dyes freely.

Six packages, any color or assorted, $5.00.

WAYS TO TELL THE PUBLIC.

Many florists, especially those in the larger cities, feel that they are debarred from the use of newspaper space because of their location outside the business center. It may be true that when a florist is so located as to be out of personal reach of more than a fraction of the city's population, the use of space in a newspaper of general circulation will be more expensive than it is effective, though there are means of overcoming such difficulties. In the first place, a florist whose location is outside the business center is outside the high-rent district. The saving in rent should in part be devoted to additional publicity. Another part of the saving should be employed for superior delivery service and adequate telephone service. Combining publicity with good telephone service and efficient delivery service, the florist located in a low-rent residence district can maintain a large volume of sales and hold a distinct advantage.

But there are newspapers of localized circulation even in the cities. These are used to good purpose by many florists. In most cases these papers are closely read because of the local, personal character of the matter printed. They afford an excellent means for a florist to reach the people of his own locality and to do it at small cost.

As an example of such advertising, see the advertisement of A. H. Evans, of Detroit, reproduced on this page in much reduced size. Mr. Evans is located in one of the high-class residence districts of his city and he uses the local sectional weekly paper to good advantage.

DRUMMING UP FALL BUSINESS.

In the south and west, where distances are great and florists few, as compared with the more thickly settled section of our country in the east, the agency business is carried to an extensive scale. When a concern operates a considerable amount of glass and has large quantities of flowers to dispose of the year around, it will maintain a list of agents running up into the hundreds.

Such business has been markedly developed by Joseph Bancroft & Son, at Cedar Falls, Ia. At this season of the year steps are taken to arouse the efforts of the agents, which may have slackened during the summer, and stimulate them to gather in orders as cold weather comes. To this end, Joseph Bancroft & Son have sent out to all their agents, about 100 in all, a set of placards, printed on bristol board in neat, attractive style, ready to be put in a conspicuous place in the agent's store or office.

One of these placards is merely a small one, about seven inches square, which urges one to think of Bancroft when thinking of flowers and to "leave orders here." Another of the same size, bearing a handsome cut of tulips, suggests ordering fall bulbs. More conspicuous are the larger placards, 7x14 inches, each of which is devoted to a separate type of flower. One features roses, quoting prices of the varieties grown at Cedar Falls. Another illustrates flowers for weddings and quotes prices on the pieces desired for such occasions. Still another says that "in the fall the chrysanthemum is the flower"; it presents illustrations of both pompons and large-flowered varieties and quotes prices. One placard asks, "Whose birthday today?" and asserts "No gift so lovely, none so acceptable as flowers." Illustrations of a vase of cut roses and of baskets of other sorts of cut flowers indicate what may be sults, as evidenced, speak highly for his efforts.

WOULD HONOR SOLDIERS.

A plausible plan of increasing the sale of flowers has come to the attention of Rebecca Plummer, of the Flower Shop, Pine Bluff, Ark., who says that a Memphis woman, writing in one of the papers of that section, has suggested a beautiful but simple tribute to the valor of the boys who served in the world war. She would have an international flower day named, preferably Armistice day, when every man, woman and child would wear a flower in honor of those whose sacrifices and heroism turned the tide of battle and saved the liberty of the world.

It is not proposed that any special flower should be adopted for the occasion. Any flower available in one's particular section of the country would serve the purpose.

This idea, of course, is not new, having been referred to here before. Nevertheless, it's a good one for us.

STEAMER ORDERS IN NEW YORK.

How extensive a business is done in the delivery of flowers to outgoing steamers by florists of the port of New York is scarcely appreciated by members of the trade in inland towns and cities. Some figures supplied by H. G. Perry, general manager of Dards, New York, are interesting. Of course, one must remember that this firm has made a specialty of steamer orders for more than two score years, and its record is likely to be equaled by but few other firms.

Mr. Perry says that the record for the number of steamer orders sent out in one day, which occurred last spring, was 103, for the steamer Olympic. It took five of the firm's trucks to carry these orders to the dock. On the Olympic were delivered that day in the neighborhood of 500 orders of flowers. The steamer Olympic carries 1,200 first-class passengers, and, Mr. Perry says, the number of orders for a given boat amounts about to one-third or one-half of its first-class passenger list.

From that estimate, one may tell about how many orders of flowers are delivered on steamers which leave the port of New York. Of course, the heaviest time of year occurs in the spring and in the fall, when European-bound travel is heaviest. The boats which carry world cruises create an especially large number of orders. All the passengers on these vessels will be gone a long time, the event is usually a momentous one in their lives, and their friends are sure to remember them in one form or another. At the heavy seasons of the year, it is not unusual for a firm like Dards to deliver between 300 and 400 orders in one week on board outgoing steamers.

Large as is this trade, however, it is sent for such an occasion. Flowers for funerals are the subject of one placard, which shows a picture of a double bunch of roses and one of a harp on a base, prices on the former being quoted at $15 and up and on the latter at from $5 to $25 for pieces from eighteen to thirty-six inches in height. In these placards, as well, are included suggestions, such as telegraphing flowers, sending flowers to the sick and remembering birthdays, as well as a brief statement of the firm's service.

The agent who uses such placards as these to the extent that they are intended to be used by the firm which distributes them is likely to send in a good number of orders. This part of the advertising work of Joseph Bancroft & Son has had the particular study of George Bancroft and the re-

Means of bringing about a closer co-operation between the commercial florists and the Maryland State Agricultural College, for the mutual benefit of florists and students who will later become florists, was discussed November 6 at a dinner given by the college, at which some fifty Washington and Baltimore florists were present.

A feature of the event was a flower show prepared by the students in floriculture, to which were added a number of exhibits sent to the college by florists. The show was inspected hastily by the visiting florists before the dinner, in order that they might secure some idea of what the college was attempting to do, and the visitors returned to the greenhouses later for a more detailed inspection and discussion of the exhibits.

Professor A. S. Thurston was the toastmaster for the evening and lost no time, once the excellent dinner provided by the college was disposed of, in steering the discussion into the channels for which the affair was projected. He welcomed the florists to the college, declaring that coöperation between educational institutions and men in the

The need for a broader education in general horticultural science was discussed by Professor Lumsden, of the bureau of plant pathology. Such matters as entomology, plant pathology, plant chemistry, soils, etc., should be familiar to the student who is fitting himself for a lifetime of growing and handling plants, and this general education in all lines would prove of benefit when the student later begins to specialize. Professor Lumsden also made some pertinent remarks regarding advertising, in which he gave briefly the secret of successful selling. "If we can get people interested, flowers will sell themselves," he said. "We have got to advertise, and the best kind of advertising is furnished by interested people. The 'Say It with Flowers' movement is doing much to spread the love of plant life, but even now there are hospitals and sickrooms all over the country that need flowers every day."

the student of horticulture, and then train the students in those lines. It is essential that a student have a working knowledge of all branches of the trade, in order that he may intelligently select that branch in which he wishes to specialize, but specialization should not come until the last part of the college course, when the student has acquired a foundation on which the specialized knowledge can solidly rest." Because of the desire of the university always to afford not only the most complete but the most practical education to its students, he said, he is always seeking to learn from the practical florists, and he gave some interesting experiences he had had in this pursuit. "Only a man who really loves flowers can become a successful florist," declared Dr. A. F. Woods, president of the university, who discussed briefly the vocational training that is received by students of floriculture at the Maryland college. "Unless such a sentiment exists," he said, "a man cannot become prominent in that industry."

A tremendous growth for the florists' industry during the next decade or two was predicted by William F. Gude, of Washington, national representative of the S. A. F., amid the applause of the florists. "While the florists' industry in twenty years will be possibly four times as important as it is today, that prediction is not merely the expression of a hope or desire, but a prophecy predicated upon the growth of the past five years," he declared.

The "Say It with Flowers" slogan has doubled the business in the past five years, Mr. Gude pointed out; nevertheless, the general public is just beginning to get acquainted with flowers. In the coming ten years, flowers will play an increasingly important part in the home life of the country, and the day is not far distant when the people will accept flowers as they have accepted the piano and the phonograph—as something without which no house is really a home.

Because of the fact that the florist of tomorrow is going to be a big business man, the times were never better for a young man to take up the growing and handling of flowers as a life work. Not so many years ago, a florist was a man who bought or grew and sold flowers; his education was probably handed down to him by his father, who had either received it in the same way or had acquired it through experience. Today, the young man who wishes to become a florist may either secure a comprehensive practical education in the greenhouse or store of a successful florist or may take the business up in a scientific way in the university.

themselves. The students prepared a miniature Japanese garden, with a stream flowing through and a native home at one end of a bridge. The floor was sodded over and covered with pine needles, while potted plants were so disposed as to give the effect of a natural garden and a forest background was created by the use of a number of evergreens.

The exhibit consisted chiefly of table displays, also made by the students. The table decorations were rated for color combinations and effects and daintiness. One of the finest was of pink Russell roses, delphinium and maidenhair fern, while the ladies who attended the dinner were presented with corsages of the same flowers, laid at their places at the tables. Pink candles were used to light the tables, shedding a soft glow over the napery and silver.

At another table the candles were green, surrounding a centerpiece of Ophelia roses and maidenhair fern, while the corsages were also of Ophelia roses, with violets, tied with green ribbon. A third table was decorated for a Christmas breakfast, with deciduous holly and white pine in a green dish, the whole lighted by red candles.

The university also had an exhibit of pompons, showing a collection of twenty-seven of the best of the 125 different varieties now being developed. The most popular were Aviator, a rose pink rather light towards the center; Coed and Varsity, of the button type; Maple Leaf, Dean, Primrose and Yellow Jacket, and F. G. Williamson, a full single, almost of a mahogany red.

Another exhibit consisted of a selection of forty Japanese-type chrysanthemums, most of them exceptionally fine flowers, which elicited a great deal of favorable comment. Probably the best were Vermont, a shell pink; and General Pershing, a deep purple with reflex petals. Other mums shown were Dolly Dimple, Loyalty, Golden Chadwick, Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, Odessa and Mrs. J. Wells.

The final section of the university's display consisted of a number of pieces prepared by the students to show the use to which pompons and chrysanthemums could be used. These consisted of corsages, vases and centerpieces, the effect of which was accentuated by the use over the electric lights of lantern-

Commercial Displays.

The commercial displays, naturally, were the subject of considerable study, the florists of each city desiring to see what their colleagues in other cities were doing. Some fine things were shown, especially in view of the fact that it was early in the season for some of the varieties.

The feature of this section was undoubtedly the display of Red Ophelia roses, a seedling between Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty, produced by W. W. Gray, of Oakton, Va. The new rose has a beautiful bud and splendid foliage, combining the yellow of the Ophelia with the deep crimson of Hoosier Beauty, but without any tinge of blue.

A centerpiece in a pumpkin, using yellow chrysanthemums and pompons, calendulas and red berries, was shown by Robert L. Graham, of Baltimore.

Premier and White Killarney roses were shown by Stevenson Bros., of Baltimore. Mrs. Mary Johnston, also of that city, exhibited a basket of chrysanthemums, while Jesse P. King, of Mount Airy, Md., had a collection of both chrysanthemums and roses; among the former were Turner, Pink Chieftain, Charles Rager and Nakota, while his roses included Columbia and White Killarney.

Art basket designing was shown by Isaac Moss, Inc., of Baltimore, one basket being of ferns and flowering plants and another of Columbia roses.

C. L. Jenkins, of Suitland, Md., exhibited some excellent Marigold, of an incurved golden yellow, with fine foliage, the product of careful and intensive culture, and Gertrude, a yellow daisy variety.

Charles Rager and orchid-shade single chrysanthemums were made the basis of a basket exhibited by Herbert M. Sauber, of Washington. The handle of the basket, on one side, held a cluster of orchids and yellow daisies, and on the other side a cluster of pansies, while at the center of the base was a bunch of violets. The basket was finished off with ferns, completed by Ophelia roses and ribbon. Another basket from the same store held Hadley roses, violets, yellow and white daisy chrysanthemums, thistles and colored grasses, completed by Nile green ribbon.

Two baskets were also shown by George C. Shaffer, of Washington. One was a basket of Golden Sun mums, pink and white pompons, ferns, Sprengeri and oak leaves, completed with ribbons and gilt braid. A silver vase of mignonette and yellow pompons, and a framed corsage aroused much comment. The corsage was of small Ophelia rose buds, maidenhair fern and cypripediums, surrounded by small yellow and blue corsage feathers.

Turners that elicited considerable praise were exhibited by Gude Bros. Co., Washington, both white and pink being shown. A collection of 5-foot American Beauties was also exhibited by the concern, together with a basket of Sweetheart roses and one of white chrysanthemums and oak leaves.

Both the dinner and the exhibition were highly commended by the visiting florists, and will undoubtedly result in a closer contact between the trade and the college in the future. T. N. S.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business was not up to its usual standard last week. There were a large number of funerals and weddings, with several social affairs, but they were mostly of minor order, and the quantity of flowers used was not heavy. There is every indication, however, that business within a short time will be good. Stock last week was good and fairly plentiful, but shortened up considerably at the end of the week. Chrysanthemums are in good supply and the quality is improving daily. Carnations are plentiful and the demand is good. Pompons are plentiful and move quickly. Orchids have been in fair demand and the call for valley has been good. Roses are in fair supply and include Butterfly, Columbia, Pilgrim, Premier, Double White Killarney, Ward and Ophelia. Prices have stiffened on these slightly during the last week or so. Easter lilies have not been plentiful. The demand for violets is not large, nor is their quality good. Calendulas are in fair supply and sell well. There is a good selection of foliage on hand. There was a big demand for Boston and Whitmanii ferns. Palms have moved well. Excellent boxwood is seen. The demand for bulbs for fall planting keeps up well and the demand for Paper Whites is large.

Various Notes.

Visitors last week to the trade included Samuel Entracht, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York; H. Blend, of McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

large American flag, were noticed in some of the Main street windows for Armistice day.

Horace J. Head, of the Flower Shop, at 668 North Clinton street, held the opening of the new store November 4. The new store, which has been thoroughly redecorated in blue and white, is most artistic and attractive. Inverted parchment shades, with blue panels, bring out the color scheme aided by willow furniture in blue and gold. Business for the opening day and during last week was encouraging.

As a remembrance of the railroad employees who gave up their lives during the world war, Rochester railroad employees have erected, as a fitting memorial in the New York Central railroad station, in observance of the third anniversary of the signing of the armistice, a large plaque with the famous war poem, "In Flanders Fields," inscribed upon it. It has been placed in the middle of the waiting room and for the occasion was surrounded with quantities of flowers and designs, with palms and ferns. The whole effect is that of an altar setting and made an impressive picture. A eulogy was delivered on Armistice day, and there were other exercises.

An attractive street car advertisement appeared last week. It was for chrysanthemums and is being run in conjunction for the two stores of H. E. Wilson and the Rochester Floral Co.

Albert the Florist is advertising $1 boxes of strawflowers and grasses, and is moving a large quantity of this stock.

Manhattanites, which made the local boys feel proud. Among the several exhibits, the table from Holmes Bros., the bridal bouquet and table from the Rosendale Flower Shop, baskets of chrysanthemums from the Rosery and vases and pottery from Danker's came in for special mention. By unanimous consent all flowers were distributed to the various hospitals, it being conceded to be a most effective form of publicity. The lecture by Professor Lumsden, "Landscape Art," was illustrated with some beautiful views.

The Market.

Mums are still holding the center of the stage. There is a good supply of all seasonable varieties. Pompon varieties are plentiful. The supply of good carnations is limited, the price running from $4 to $6 per hundred. Roses are plentiful and the quality of the stock is good. A few snapdragons reach the market and find ready buyers. The supply of sweet peas is increasing each week. Gardenias are scarce. Orchids keep up with the demand. Violets, marguerites, myosotis and pansies are scarce.

At College Park.

Although it was wet and disagreeable Monday, November 6, a number of local and Washington florists journeyed to College Park, the home of the University of Maryland, to view the exhibits staged by the students. It was indeed a beautiful display and the professors and students responsible for the exhibition should be congratulated. On entering the building, one crossed a small wooden bridge, under which a small stream of water flowed. At one end of this building a student exhibit was held. This consisted of artistically arranged baskets of flowers and table decorations. At the other end of the was excellent throughout the fall, and no frosts occurred to kill the stock.

All Saints' day did not amount to much this year, due to the fact that outdoor stock, which consisted of mums and

The Market.

Business was quiet last week. Armistice day stimulated trade to a slight extent, but not to such a marked degree as in other years. Stock was plentiful, especially mums and pompons.

Various Notes.

Rubin Bros. have purchased an attractive Dodge delivery truck.

Mr. Reid, of Hall & Robinson, has rearranged and decorated the store in an attractive manner. Mr. Reid reports that, so far, November has been a busy month for him.

Campbell's had a large vase of Hill's new rose, America, on exhibition last week. They were sent up by C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.

McKenna's main store, on St. Catherine's street, had an Armistice day window last week which attracted many people. It was emblematic of a hero's grave in the Flanders fields. In the center of the window was a flag-draped coffin, at the head of which rested a helmet. Behind the coffin was a white cross and an inverted rifle. Flags of all the allied nations made up the background. The base was covered with sheet moss, from which poppies protruded, giving it a realistic effect. The whole decoration was artistically carried out and Mr. La Matte has received many congratulations on his work.

trade in Schenectady. He predicted a large business for Thanksgiving.

The Mohawk Greenhouse Co., Schenectady, N. Y., is enjoying a phenomenal run of funeral work, many fine pieces being turned out by Manager G. W. Matthews and his assistants. A fine crop of Chadwick mums heads the list of Thanksgiving offerings.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The change in the market which the trade has been waiting for has not materialized, business last week being extremely slow, with the exception of a day or two. Mums, pompons, carnations and roses are coming in on every train, while the mails and telegrams are bringing requests for an outlet of surplus stock. Mums are now at their height, with Marigold and Bonnaffon predominating. Pompons are exceptionally good and are now arriving in all colors and varieties, but, on account of the oversupply, they have been moving slowly. Carnations are now arriving in quantity, but have not been moving, owing to the preference for mums. Roses are getting better daily, but the supply of good Columbia and Premier has not been enough to take care of the demand. There has, however, been a surplus of White Killarney, Ward, Sunburst, Ophelia and Butterfly.

Outdoor stock is still arriving, there being a large cut of dahlias, while gladioli, calendulas, bachelor's buttons luncheon in honor of the new president, Fred Witthuhn, who took office at that time, having just returned from a trip to Europe. The new president made a hit, and judging from the way he conducted his first meeting, the club is due for a successful year under his leadership. Several important questions were discussed, the principal one being the next national flower show in Cleveland. A telegram was dispatched immediately to the national flower show committee, asking for the 1924 show.

William Heffron, formerly with the Knickerbocker Flower Shop, has left that institution.

November 9 and 10 the Cleveland Horticultural Society held a flower show at the Masonic hall, on East One Hundred and Fifth street near Euclid avenue, which will not be forgotten for some time to come. rare specimens of fish. The society is to be highly commended for its efforts. William F. Raebel, of Canton, O., was a recent visitor. W. A. R.

TORONTO, ONT.

Several things contributed toward good business last week. It is becoming a habit to remember the birthdays of celebrated men and women with flowers, especially those of advanced years. During the week one business man of 77 years was remembered with a bouquet of seventy-seven roses. Another case was that of a lady who celebrated her eightieth birthday. In addition to a bouquet of eighty roses, she was remembered with baskets of flowers and other bouquets. This is a class of business that might be enlarged by giving it a little greater publicity.

Armistice day was celebrated by decorating all the monuments and graves of soldiers. At the city hall a cenotaph was erected and, during the morning of November 11, a great many floral tributes were placed thereon. There was only a fair demand for designs during the week, but a good demand at the end of the week. The florists who had wreaths made up in advance disposed of them easily.

Flowers have been plentiful during the last week. Mums continue to arrive in increasing quantities. They are being used for designs to a considerable extent, although roses are obtainable from many growers in quantities.

There has been a good demand for bulbs this fall; at least, equal to the sales of last fall. Several florists have stocked bulb bowls and have found a ready sale for them. These are generally imported English ware.

Arrangements are going forward for

The Market.

Business slowed up considerably in Washington last week, probably owing to the fact that a great many of the men and women in political circles were out of town participating in the elections. Practically all of the retailers report a slackened trade. However, the end of the week found the absentees returning, and with the coming of cooler weather, business became more brisk.

There was a glut on the market last week, both of chrysanthemums and roses. Both of these came into the market in much larger quantities than the trade could absorb. Pompons arrived in thousand bunch lots. Up to November 10 the weather was warm and many of the late varieties of chrysanthemums were cut. From present indications, chrysanthemums will be scarce a little later on. Such varieties as Yellow Bonnaffon and Jones are coming into the market at this time. They should hold back until around Thanksgiving day. The prices range on chrysanthemums from $15 per hundred for ordinary stock, up to $7.50 and $9 per dozen on extra fine Turners, in both white and yellow. Pink Turners are not so popular, and are priced at $5 and $6 per dozen for the best.

The favorites among the chrysanthemums during the week were white and yellow Rager, Yellow Bonnaffon, Dr. Enguehard, and pink and white Chieftain. A fine lot of Buckingham, with good, long, single stems and large clusters, were priced at approximately $12 per hundred. A number of novelty pompons were on the market, and these seemed to find considerable favor among the retailers.

Some good Mock, Columbia, Ophelia, Butterfly, Premier, Russell, Hadley and Crusader roses were offered. These could be had at $4 to $15 per hundred, according to quality and length of stem. Although the supply of carnations was not large, this flower seemed to be moving on the local market and few orders were placed for it. The price ranged from $3 to $4 per hundred, with an advance to $6 per hundred on Laddie. Double violets are coming in better quality, now, but there is practically no demand for them. The price is 50 cents and 75 cents per hundred. Single violets are selling better and bring 75 cents per hundred. Orchids have been scarce and are selling closely at $18 per dozen. Lily of the valley is still priced at $8 per hundred. A little delphinium is now to be had at from 50 cents to $1 per bunch. This flower always finds a ready market at this time of the year in Washington. Some mignonette is also to be had at this time at $8 per hundred. The quality is exceptionally good. T. N. S.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

The Market.

There has been an increased demand for cut flowers and plants since the frost killed off all of the outdoor flowers. Local retailers are getting excellent cuts of mums and these are selling for from $3.50 to $5 per dozen. Roses are bringing $2 to $3 per dozen, while carnations are selling at $1 and $1.50 per dozen.

Binnig is Host.

The florists of Springfield, O., and vicinity journeyed to the greenhouses of Fred Binnig, on the Selma pike, November 3. At 6 p. m. Mr. Binnig served one of those old-fashioned kraut suppers, and it is needless to say that everyone present enjoyed the feast to the utmost.

After the meal was over the monthly meeting of the club was held. The election of officers was duly held and the KILLING ASTER PESTS.

I have mailed you some insects and should like to have you identify them for me. These pests have greatly injured my late asters. It is my opinion that they came in the manure with which I mulched my plants. Can you advise a method of exterminating these pests?

flowering form. Seedlings of the hardy variety do not flower the first year; therefore, do not be discouraged if your plants are sure to bloom abundantly the following year.

G. elegans, the white annual variety, invariably flowers easily and quickly from seed. Under glass, if forced during winter, the seedlings will hang fire and come blind. After April the seedlings always flower satisfactorily, especially if the plants are not given much root run. Outdoors G. elegans may be sown as soon as the frost has left the ground and the ground has dried out well, until the end of July. Late sowings may be made in coldframes and sashes may be used to exclude the frost.

VARIOUS TEMPERATURES.

I am growing carnations, sweet peas, calendulas and snapdragons in the same house. Under these circumstances, during cloudy days, would you advise turning on some heat to overcome the dampness in the houses, even though the temperature is at about 60 degrees? It is my opinion that enough heat to eliminate the dampness would be far more than the plants could stand. I should like your opinion on this subject.
R. W. G.—Wis.

A little fire heat on dark, cloudy, damp days would be beneficial. Be sure to ventilate freely while you are using the fire heat. A season has now been reached when it will be necessary to use a little artificial heat practically all of the time. Fuel may be scarce and more expensive than it was some time ago, but it will not pay to allow such crops as you are growing to go without fire heat, if you expect them to escape injury. Carnations need a minimum temperature of 50 degrees, with an advance of 8 or 10 degrees on cloudy days; a similar temperature will be suitable for sweet peas. Calendulas and snapdragons will do well if they are kept 5 degrees cooler, but you will have the best success with your plants if you can maintain a minimum of 50 degrees or thereabouts.

Keep Your Flowers Fresher

Your flowers will keep fresh longer at less expense when you use a McClellan Refrigerating Machine instead of ice.

Your customers will stay with you and recommend you to others as your reputation grows for selling flowers longer lived and more fragrant.

You can devote all your time to your business while the McClellan takes care of your refrigeration. It is a trusty friend that saves expense and trouble. So simple a child can operate it—it starts and stops with the twist of the wrist.

A small payment down and a little more every month while you pay your ice bills to yourself brings you the contentment, the economy of operation and benefits of owning a McClellan.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Lodi, Cal.—The Lodi Flower Shop has removed to larger and better quarters in the New Cory block, at 12 North School street. A formal opening was held, with much success, November 7.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

In spite of election and high water, the latter exemplified by welcome rain, business has kept up well, and the better class of retailers say that the turnover of stock is well above the average. Wholesalers say that shipping is up to the high mark for early November, doubtless owing to the large number of first-class mums being handled and the advance guard of violets. Roses, too, are in big demand, and in consequence the carnation growers are able to keep up a good price on outdoor-grown stock, which has not suffered in any way this season. Heavy rains may make the carnations too soft for shipping, but at the moment there is no sign of this, just a welcome steady downpour that was needed. The heather crop, in particular, will be greatly benefited, while dahlias, good as they are, will have their season again lengthened. Deep snow and heavy frosts in the mountains have given us cool nights, but the days are pleasant and little frost has been noted on the slope between the foothills and the sea. In the San Gabriel and San Fernando valleys frosts have occurred, and the present gentle rains are a welcome change. From now on stock will shorten up and prices will harden.

Various Notes.

Polder Bros. report the demand for indoor-grown Cecile Brunner above the supply, and the quality of their stock brought to the market by John Polder is sufficient excuse for this.

Gebhardt Prechtl will again be strong in anemones this year. The stock at his new places, at Pasadena and El Monte, looks fine. His heather, too, is most promising.

The Superior Nursery is preparing a fine stock of made-up baskets again this season. C. Gutting says that the firm never has enough of this stock. Ferns are good here, too, and reasonable in price, owing to the large stock carried.

Albert Goldenson has taken additional space at Sixth and Spring streets, the extension being necessary on account of increased business.

E. Schaefer, of Schaefer's Nursery, on Figueroa street, says he cannot keep up with the demand for certain lines of perennials, especially pentstemons.

Andrew Bruce, of the Alexandria Florist, has purchased a new sedan for use when he is not busy, which is not often. Fine mums and roses are shown at the store, and business is good.

F. Lichtenberg says that the demand for good table decorations is particularly heavy just now and high-class funeral work is also a big item.

W. Clark, recently of the Lichtenberg firm, is now with J. Roller, of the Athletic Club Florist.

Anton Groolp says he is well satisfied with the way business looks at the new store.

The West Adams Nursery always carries a good line of kentias. In addition to oil smudge pots, Mr. Nishida has installed a steam boiler to provide heat in the lath houses, should frost occur this winter.

Violets are going out in fine shape from the store of S. Murata & Co. Mr. Murata reports the shipping demand for these is particularly good. Roses are also a leader here.

Enthusiastic as ever, our old friend, P. D. Barnhart, is going ahead with a proposition to grow new, rare and unusual plants at Crestmont, between Hollywood and Los Angeles. Mrs. Daisy Canfield Danziger, always a patroness of horticulture, is behind Mr. Barnhart, and, with his well known enthusiasm and love of the game, something striking may be looked for.

Geo. J. Hall & Co. report much action in the retail department and also in filling wholesale orders for out-of-town retailers who have not the facility for making up work at short notice. The regular shipping business is picking up well.

Being close to the Hollywood car depot, the Westrem-Garland Florists naturally get a good share of the passing business of this famous suburb, and their store is always a busy place.

H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Heavy showers occurred last week. The wet weather was hard on the chrysanthemum shippers. Although moist, the weather was not cold and the outdoor stock still remained, giving the market a fairly satisfactory supply of marigolds of various kinds, gillyflowers and the other cut flowers, such as mignonette and cosmos. Violets were plentiful and in prime condition. Roses were reported to be somewhat scarce, owing to the fact that growers were pinching back their rose stock for the holidays; in fact, it is predicted that there will be a plentiful supply of roses at the holiday season and that, in consequence, prices will probably not go up. There were some good roses in the market last week, the shortage not being acute. Excellent chrysanthemums were being cut, both in the large varieties and in all other sizes. Orchids were becoming a little more plentiful and Christmas is Right on Top of Us!

It is hard to realize that Christmas is so near. Most of our customers have already placed their Christmas orders, but a few of the boys are trying to put off ordering their plants until after Thanksgiving. This is pretty sure to result in disappointment. Thanksgiving comes late this year, November 30th. Better place your orders at once and be assured of good stock. Do your business cheaply and carefully by mail, instead of expensively and hastily by wire.

Here are the prices:

Various Notes.

E. W. McLellan, of the E. W. McLellan Co., has been a busy man since he returned from his long trip. "We have certainly got a good group of people in the trade," declared Mr. McLellan, commenting on his reception in the numerous towns he visited. He added: "There are lots of things that we on the Pacific coast can learn from our florist friends in the east and there are some things that the east can learn from us." Mr. McLellan, in addition to side trips, visited for five days in Denver; then he attended the convention at Kansas City, being the only delegate present from the Pacific coast. He then continued his tour, calling on the trade in Toledo, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, San Antonio, Dallas, Waco, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, El Paso, Los Angeles and home. Mr. McLellan was everywhere welcomed by customers of his San Francisco firm.

Fred Seulerberger, head of the Alameda County Horticultural Commission, has just returned from a convention of the F. T. D. in Baltimore. He has gone on record as saying that there has been a remarkable development in the system of ordering flowers by telegraph.

The store of the Golden Gate Floral Co., 901 Clement street, in the Richmond district, has opened again, after being closed for some days.

G. Rossi & Co., dealers in evergreens, etc., have moved from 868 Geary street to an attractive store just completed, at 645 Geary street. This brings them appreciably nearer to the retail shopping district. N. Rossi, of this firm, has just returned, with his two sons and daughter, from a long visit to Italy. While there they met and saw a great deal of Mrs. Darbee and her party, and N. Rossi and his son, John Rossi, acted as interpreters for Mrs. Darbee in her F. T. D. campaign. Speaking of this, John Rossi said that they all seemed to take kindly to the idea, and while in Venice he had enjoyed acting as Mrs. Darbee's interpreter. He added that the florists' stores in Italy are not what the florists' stores are in the United States.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is ill, in St. Mary's hospital. He is recovering, however, and it is hoped that he will be able to return to the store before the end of November.

E. J. Delaney, one of the firm of G. W. Eischen & Co., of this city and Los Angeles, states that they are doing a satisfactory business in both cities. Their headquarters here are in the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market.

It is understood that P. V. Matraia has taken over the management of the Coöperative Flower Market, in a sense. Mr. Matraia pays certain of the costs of upkeep of the market and handles all the flowers sold on consignment in the market. Growers and wholesalers still handle their own concessions in the market and the board of directors is still in control. Charles Brown, of Brown & Kennedy, is president of the directorate of the market.

J. A. Axell is handling a good many roses, though they are somewhat scarce. Mr. Axell also is transacting much business in chrysanthemums. The daily refrigerator car is aiding business in this respect.

Speaking of Gladioli

Do you know that the variety MRS. DR. NORTON is a most pleasing shade of apple-blossom pink, that BYRON L. SMITH is a superb lavender and GOLDEN MEASURE a glorious clear yellow? This is the English yellow which has been selling at several dollars a bulb. Having increased our plantings, we are now offering these three fine varieties and a few other good ones at prices within the reach of all progressive florists.

Here are the prices for immediate acceptance, fall delivery. Better get busy, as they are moving in large lots.

M. Domoto, of Domoto Bros., just in from the nurseries, seemed pleased at the promising condition of the poinsettias, cyclamens and azaleas now coming forward in their greenhouses for the holiday trade.

Podesta & Baldocchi have just had a large party decoration at the Burlingame Country Club. In addition to decorations, there were seventy-five baskets and fifty packages of cut flowers, boxes, etc., making, in all, three machine loads of flowers. They have also been busy with general business.

Joseph's has been busy with table decorations, parties and other social affairs. They anticipate a good holiday trade and are showing a number of attractive novelties, along the lines of gift baskets.

The California Floral Co. has had several funerals and weddings recently, and Thanksgiving orders are coming in early this year.

F. C. Jaeger & Son find that their wholesale trade in violets and chrysanthemums is keeping up excellently. They have also been busy with weddings and funerals. John McDonald is back with the staff.

With a considerable change in the weather for the last ten days, business is taking a turn for the better. A good, heavy frost came November 2, killing everything outside with the exception of a few pompon mums. The temperature went as low as 26 degrees above zero and did a good job for the florist. Mums of all kinds are plentiful. Car-

Various Notes.

The city police force started a crusade against the selling of flowers on the streets in the business district, November 4. Several arrests were made. Selling on the city streets is a violation of a city ordinance.

Tom Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, of Los Angeles, was a caller in our city one day last week.

Raymond V. Kester, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was in this city several days on a business trip covering the Pacific coast states.

R. E. Gehr, of the Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co., has been confined to his home for several days on account of sickness. He is recovering.

Fred Schnapp, with the Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co., has returned to his former employer, the Holden Floral Co.

Frank Chervenka and two of his associates of the Woodland Park Floral Co. called in this city a few days ago.

The Market.

October ended with a rush on account of many big funerals, and those who had dull business during the early part of last month were more than pleased with the way the month ended.

Business so far in November has been fairly good. Mums dominate the market, and all other stock has to take a back seat, with the possible exception of roses; the supply of these is far in excess of the demand.

Most of the large mums are imported stock from California, but home-grown stock in considerable amounts is available at reasonable prices. Pompons and spray mums, grown locally, are now abundant, and large quantities are sold every day.

Rose prices range from $6 to $15 per hundred, with little call for the best grade. Butterfly is much preferred to Ophelia, and undoubtedly more of these will be grown next season in place of Ophelia. Columbia is always popular, and Pilgrim is winning much favor on account of its pleasing color and long keeping qualities. Dunlop is a wonderful rose, but, from the fact that it is inclined to "blue" quite badly after it is a few days old, we look for less of these to be grown next season. It is, however, a favorite with many.

Carnations are scarce; the crop is just beginning to come on, and those available are easily sold.

Various Notes.

Arthur Granshaw, who recently left Salt Lake City to take over the management of the retail store of the Butte Floral Co., writes that he is more than pleased with his new position and Butte.

The store of the Miller Floral Co., on Broadway, is having its fall opening. Wonderful decorations and arrangements are in evidence. G. J. B.

we keep them cool and dry until the leaves fall off before bringing them into a warmer house? Do the blossoms come on the new shoots and should the old wood be cut off? Are the best blooming buds near the base of the plant?

shed. A temperature just above freezing will suffice. The leaves will in all probability have fallen before you want to force them. You do not state how early you want your plants to bloom, but the writer is assuming that it will be Easter, which comes April 1, 1923. The plants should be placed in a cool house soon after Christmas. A temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night will suffice. Do not water the roots much, but spray the plants daily, unless it is dark and dull. As the growths push out, cease spraying and give the plants more heat; 58 to 60 degrees at night will advance them so that they will be on time; at least, the French varieties will. The old otaksa needs rather more time.

Do not, on any account, cut back any of the old wood. The terminal buds develop the finest flower heads, but some will come from the sides of the French varieties. If the wood is cut right down, you will get few flowers. Some may appear on the French varieties, but none at all will come on otaksa.

HYDRANGEAS FOR EASTER.

What is the proper treatment for field-grown French hydrangeas, just being potted up, in order to have them in bloom for Easter? L. C.—Minn.

Give the plants full sun and protect them from early frosts. A frost-proof frame will answer for some time and after that put them in a cold greenhouse. Gradually withhold water in November, but do not keep the plants dust dry. Start the plants early in January in a temperature of 50 degrees at night. You can apply 5 to 8 degrees more heat later, if the conditions warrant it. The plants need a good soil and, when growing, they require much water and will take considerable feeding, in addition. C. W.

STEM ROT ON ASTERS.

What causes black stem rot on asters? Some plants die when small, others after they are in bloom. Will planting in the same soil in successive years cause the rot? S. J. P.

Stem rot is a disease of asters promoted by the same conditions that induce the damping off of seedlings. It appears most frequently in asters started under glass and is usually not troublesome in late crops. The organisms of the disease live over winter in the soil, and therefore new land should be used the following year once the presence of stem rot is discovered. It is of little use to attempt to combat the disease when it appears on the plants; only proper precautions will prevent its rav-

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.;
secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

JOHN CONDON, of Condon Bros., Rockford, Ill., was a visitor to the Chicago trade last week.

It appears from reports that onion sets are going to cost 10 cents per bushel more than they did last season, and it looks as though acreages are going to be extremely small.

THE W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is advertising in the publication known as Gift and Art Shop, published in New York, with the idea of selling bulbs to go with bulb bowls, so many of which are handled in gift shops throughout the country. One assortment goes to retailers at $17.50; another sells for $10.

THE steamer Ryndam, which reached New York from Rotterdam, November 4, brought large shipments of garden seeds from Holland, mostly consigned to forwarding companies. The Danish steamer United States, which arrived from Copenhagen, November 6, brought 385 bags for L. Daehnfeldt, 277 for T. Madsen & Co., thirty for the Hennings-Harving Co., and fifteen bags of garden seed and 674 of grass seed on order.

THE Quality Seed Store, of Stamford, Conn., long conducted by George B. Gannon, has changed hands. The new proprietors are Frank Baumann, of Long Island City, N. Y., and John I. Sipp, of Newark, N. J. The firm will in the future operate under the name of the Stamford Seed & Flower Co. The store is being completely renovated and new departments are being added, to include poultry feed, florists' supplies, etc. John C. Latham remains as active manager.

WHEN the Western Canners' Association met for its seventy-seventh annual convention at the Sherman House, Chicago, November 8 and 9, there were a number of seedsmen represented. Among them were the Roger Bros. Seed Co., Chicago, represented by W. M. Jones; John H. Allan Seed Co., St. Louis; Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., represented by Charles P. Guelf; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., and D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

Circuit court November 10, by G. W. Hales, receiver for the defunct Consolidated Seed Co.

An attempted merger of the two concerns two years ago is said to be made the basis of the bills filed jointly by Attorneys Henry J. Aaron, Charles Aaron and Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt. Receiver Hales, through his attorneys, charges that the Dickinson concern, through manipulation and false interpretation of the merger agreement, got the bulk of the Continent's assets, while the latter concern was forced into bankruptcy.

DUTCH BULBS RECEIVED.

The steamer Ryndam, from Rotterdam, arrived at New York harbor November 4 with 96 cases of Dutch bulbs, consigned as follows:

| Consignee | Cases |
|----------------------------|-------|
| General Bulb Co. | 27 |
| Tegelaar Bros. | 2 |
| Schwake & Co., C. | 2 |
| Maltus & Ware | 12 |
| Stumpp & Walter Co. | 35 |
| Carters Tested Seeds, Inc. | 2 |
| Van Waveren & Sons, M. | 16 |
| Total | 96 |

These ninety-six cases, added to the 55,600 cases previously received, make a grand total of 55,696 cases received to date.

COLLECTING BY WIRE.

A few houses in the trade have found how good a collector the telegraph company is. Customers who have not responded to letters about their overdue accounts are shocked into activity by the telegraph wire. The reason is, probably, that the telegram is still looked upon as an urgent message and invariably gets immediate attention. A letter may be tossed aside without a glance farther than the opening sentence; perhaps it is cast into the waste basket without the envelope even being slit, with the remark, "I know what that is about."

When a definite date is set by the credit manager beyond which the cus-

We herewith beg to inform that our cultures belong to the greatest of Europe and are world-famed for purity and trueness. We have some fine, new varieties offered for the first time, like L'OISEAU BLEU (Blue Bird), an improved Baron Hulot, twice as large and really beautiful, A. M. Haarlem, 1922; ORANGE QUEEN, a beautiful color, first-class cert., Haarlem, August, 1922; VESTA TILLY, a lovely pink, first-class cert., August, 1922, Haarlem; Primulinus SALMONEA, one of the finest, etc. Our special packing system guarantees a safe arrival all over the world. Our catalogue will be sent free on application. Primulinus MAIDEN'S BLUSH, pink, extra.

tomer may not be given further credit unless a remittance has been received, a telegram apprising the customer of that fact frequently brings a check.

The use of the telegraph for this purpose has reached the point where the Western Union has found it useful to print a folder quoting sample telegrams for use in the collection of delinquent accounts. If you haven't tried collecting by wire and wish to do so, the folder will supply you with fifty messages which might be used.

This folder carries on its cover testimonials from a dozen firms scattered over the country which have used the telegraph for collecting delinquent accounts with success. One of these is the Kimbrough-Mitchell Seed Co., at Meridian, Miss. This seed company's testimonial reads: "One of our customers has been owing us $60 for six months. Although we had used every form of letter that we knew how to use, we had received no reply. We gave you the message Friday night and Monday morning we had a check."

SEED CROPS IN FRANCE.

Regarding vegetable seed crops in France, the Bulletin de Joseph Paquet for October has the following to report:

Garden beet—The crop will be deficient. High prices are not expected. Seed acreage for next year is not large.

Carrot—The crop is good, but does not amount to much in the south. Seed plantings for the next crop look good.

Cabbage—In general, plantings for next year do not look good.

Cauliflower—There is a bad crop in the south. Kohlrabi and Swedish turnip—In spite of the bad crop, prices are not high.

Cucumber—It is still too early to judge the crop, but it will not be so good as was hoped. Gourd—The crop will be better than was looked for.

Bean—The crop of late varieties is not so good as the earlier. Not many climbing varieties have been sown, but there are large quantities of dwarf varieties.

Lettuce—In some regions the crop of late varieties is not especially good. In general, the crop seems to be good.

Corn salad—The crop is deficient and high prices are expected. There will be large quantities for 1923.

Melon—The crop will not be so good as was hoped.

Turnip—The crop looked for is realized. Prices will not be high.

Onion—The crop of white onions is exceedingly bad. Yellow and red are better, but crops will not be sufficient for the needs of the French people. In Italy the crop is bad. Prices will be high.

Parsnip—The crop is middling, but plantings have been reduced.

Dandelion—The crop is bad.

Leek—The crop promises to be not so good as was hoped.

Peas—In general the crop is bad in France. Many French firms have their seeds grown abroad, where the crop seems to be good.

Salsify and scorzonera—As the crops under culture have not been noteworthy, prices will remain high.

It was decided that under an order, showing on its face that it did not contain the whole agreement of the parties, it was open to the buyers to show that they were induced to give an order for the seed and pay an increased price therefor on a representation that it was "good, sound sorghum seed for planting purposes of the 1918 crop."

This warranty is construed as a representation that the seeds were fertile and would germinate, if planted under proper conditions, and is held to have nullified a clause printed on the invoice, reading: "Our field seeds are bought with care, every precaution being taken to furnish our customers with seeds correctly named and of productive quality, but we in no manner or in any sense guarantee crops from the same." The opinion says:

Hints for Growing Under Glass—Buy only the very best quality, at least 1½-inch up, and order early. Young, high-crowned bulbs are essential. Plant in January, put the Gladioli 5 to 6 inches apart and keep them at a carnation temperature. Plenty of sun is required. They do well between carnations.

"There was nothing to prevent the parties from going beyond the usual and customary way of carrying out a transaction for the sale and purchase of such cane seed, and by special contract to agree that, in consideration of an increase over the market price under ordinary conditions, the seller would warrant the fertility of the seed.

"The measure of damages applied is not subject to the objections made against it. The evidence showed that the seeds were not fit for the purposes for which they were sold, and were then disposed of for the best price obtainable in the condition they were actually in; the difference between the amounts thus obtained and the contract price was then taken, which properly measured the loss incurred." S.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

P. Vos & Son, Grand Rapids, Mich.—A wholesale list of "True-to-Name" gladioli, both "standard varieties and recent introductions." About a score of the varieties offered are "Vos originations."

W. E. Sherbrooke, Kirkland, Wash.—"Modern Gladioli, Irises and Roses," a list of the three Sherbrooke specialties; eight pages, in a tasteful light green cover. Mr. Sherbrooke expresses the opinion that gladioli might "be more popular if they were not so inexpensive and so easy to grow."

Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, England.—A special list of new or comparatively rare varieties of vegetable and flower seeds; twenty large pages, freely illustrated with fine half-tones and printed on enameled paper, in a style that is fully in accord with the high standard established in the company's former catalogues. The present list is entitled "Novelties, Recent Novelties and Specialties," and a sincere effort seems to have been made to maintain the distinction expressed in those words.

Perry's Hardy Plant Farm, Enfield, England.—"Hardy Plants and Bulbs," an 80-page catalogue which, like previous Perry publications, is remarkable for its compactness, completeness and correctness in the lines in which the company specializes. The illustrations are few, the descriptions are concise and no space is wasted; yet the pages have the attractiveness which inheres in a good job of editing and printing. Shrubs as well as herbaceous stock are listed. Among the many plants suggested for rock gardens are certain dwarf conifers.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, Ill.—"Modern Flower Shops," a catalogue which is so high in quality of paper, typography and illustrations as to create a decidedly good impression—an impression that the stock offered must be of equally high grade. Even the cover, blue with a modest amount of gilt embellishment, is both elegant and serviceable. The first twelve pages, forming just half the book, are occupied principally by views of store interiors, furnished with "Randall complete equipment." Page 13 illustrates and explains "the Randall work cabinet." Then follow pictures and descriptions of many types of display and storage refrigerators.

Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.—"Better Plants by Farr," a well printed, well illustrated, well arranged catalogue of hardy plants and shrubs; sixty-eight pages, in a tasteful and serviceable blue cover. In the pages devoted to herbaceous stock, peonies and irises have largest space, though phloxes, asters and hardy chrysanthemums also are conspicuous. In shrubs, Lilacs have much space and prominence. On account of its exceptional accuracy, the catalogue will be of value for reference purposes. Mr. Farr states that, though he has adopted the phrase, "Better Plants by Farr," as his business slogan, he is not using the words in an egotistical sense, but as representing "an ideal toward which all of us are striving."

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill.—"Catalogue of Everyday Needs for the Florist and Grower." This supply catalogue is not merely what might be called "prepossessing" in appearance, but it differs distinctly in style from the ordinary run of catalogues. The pages—note the size, 12x18 inches—are so large as to permit an effectiveness of arrangement, in type and illustrations, that would not be possible on a smaller sheet. There are fifteen of these big pages. The paper, though not heavy, is of fine quality, with an enameled surface, and the type is so large and clear as to be a delight to the eye. Wreaths occupy the first two pages and are followed by a full line of supplies of the purely decorative sort. Next are such greenhouse necessities as thermostats, thermometers, rubber hose, fertilizers, etc. At the end are three pages of baskets.

All these varieties are the Winter-Flowering Spencer types and can be grown indoors or outdoors the year around. They will produce more and better flowers outdoors than the old late Spencers, because they bloom 3 to 4 weeks earlier, before the hot weather sets in. Plant after the Chrysanthemum and get a full crop for Easter. Plant in cool frames or outdoors just before the freezing begins and get a full crop in May for Decoration Day. Plant out of doors in the spring and they will bloom early in June.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE meeting of the Michigan Association of Nurserymen, according to B. J. Manahan, president of the association, will be held December 7 and 8 at the Pantlind hotel, Grand Rapids, Mich. All Michigan nurserymen are cordially invited to attend this meeting and to join in forming an active state association.

NURSERY FIRM DECORATES.

Model Home.

Wide-awake nurserymen have readily recognized in the better homes movement of the American Homes Bureau an ally which is working in direct coördination with the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" movement. In the interest of the prospective home builders, the New York Tribune established what is known as the Tribune Home Owners' Service Institute, which has for its object planning homes and giving any information a prospective home-builder may desire on this subject. In order to augment its work, the above-mentioned institute erected a demonstration home at Larchmont Gardens, which was decorated and furnished completely by the institute. It was recognized, however, that, no matter how well the interior of the home was decorated, the entire setting would not be complete until the barren grounds around the outside of the home were decorated equally well. The institute, therefore, invited the Amawalk Nursery, Inc., Amawalk, N. Y., to do the landscape gardening work for the demonstration home.

Immediately recognizing the excellent opportunity which an invitation of this nature offered, Miss Evelyn W. Smith, president of the Amawalk Nursery, Inc., accepted the invitation and replied to the Tribune Home Owners' Institute that the firm which she represented would not only be exceedingly pleased to furnish the material, but would also do the work of planning and planting the trees free of charge. The demonstration home was completed in time for the better homes week, and the total cost of the job to the nursery firm, as hereinafter itemized, was $390.65.

The lot planted is 62x137 feet and is located on the corner of Harmon drive and Weaver street. The number of trees and the cost of each are as follows:

It was stated by Miss Smith that the delivery and planting charges would have been considerably less if the deciduous trees and shrubs did not have to be balled for this particular planting, as, had the trees been moved a few weeks later, they would not have needed the added root protection.

This was an unusual opportunity for the nursery industry to show what can be done with a little thought and effort, and it is needless to say that the Amawalk Nursery took full advantage of the chance to show its wares. The decorated lawn is there; the cost to the home-builder is down in black and white, and it is not in the least prohibitive for the size of the grounds decorated. Work of this sort is what is building the nursery industry, because it proves the necessity of plants and shrubs to complete the setting of a home.

PRINCIPLES OF CREDIT.

Important to Trade.

In connection with the financing of any business, there are certain elements or essentials considered by bankers as being necessary to round out a good credit risk. You all have heard of them before, but it will not hurt to talk about them again. They are character, capacity and capital. They are so

The Great American Wonder Lemon

Will bear fragrant flowers and fruits in any ordinary living-room. Fruits are immense. Equal to three or four ordinary Lemons

This is one of the grandest fruits for house culture ever introduced. The flowers are pure waxy white, very sweet and like orange blossoms; the leaves are thick, glossy green, and shine as if varnished. It is a strong, healthy grower, requires no coddling, and will bear fruits quickly as soon as established.

Dwarf Otaheite Orange

Has thick, glossy green leaves and deliciously sweet, pure white flowers. It begins fruiting while quite young, and bears flowers and lovely, golden yellow Oranges on the same plant at the same time.

All summer field-grown—now in pots—nicely established.

A PLANT INVESTMENT IS SURE TO GROW IN VALUE

New Box-Barberry NOVELTY HARDY EDGING PLANT

Perfectly Hardy Anywhere in the United States

An exquisite, new, perfectly hardy edging plant. Makes shapely, upright bushes, that can be kept 6 inches high by trimming. Our stock is grown from cuttings made from the original plant.

Especially valuable in the central and northern states, as it is perfectly hardy and does not winter-kill.

This new dwarf Barberry comes to fill a long-felt need for an edging plant that is dwarf in growth, free from all diseases and insect pests, and absolutely hardy everywhere in the United States. The foliage is small and dainty, in fact, as small as the leaves of the universally known evergreen Box Edging, Buxus sempervirens. The young leaves are a beautiful emerald-green in the spring, changing to a pleasing, soft green during the summer and dark red in the fall. In many parts of this country, garden-beds had to be bordered annually or not at all, as there was no perfectly hardy edging plant to use, but now no garden need be incomplete on this account. Box-Barberry, as far as we are aware, has never been known to winter-kill in the slightest degree, and this insures a neat, unbroken border that is always a delight to look at.

Border your rose-beds, also your perennials and annuals, with this neat, upright, hardy, little shrub. Plant 4 inches apart for a low border and keep the plants pruned to whatever height you want. They can be trimmed at any time without injury, and pruning or trimming makes the plants grow more dense.

I am pleased with the appearance of the BOX-BARBERRY and intend to order more for spring planting. What I ordered last spring was merely a trial. I think when I get enough to border the entire rose-bed, that the effect will be very pleasing. Assuring you I will be more than pleased to recommend it, I am, H. A. T., Minneapolis, Minn.

closely interwoven, so necessary to one another, that the possession of any one of them without the other two weakens or destroys the risk. This might be further explained by saying that the man who possesses capital without character and capacity, or the ability to produce, is not a good risk. Though possessed of capital now, he may lose his wealth through wasteful and unwise investments, and seek to defraud his creditors at some future date. A man with character and capacity, but without capital, is a better credit risk than the man without character, because, if given the chance, he will create capital. However, the ideal credit risk is the possessor of the three qualifications. I will elaborate on them for a few minutes.

Character.

A bank before taking on a credit risk, or the loaning of money, generally endeavors to make a thorough examination of the antecedents of the firm or individual applying for credit. Individuals or corporations should at all times conduct their affairs in proper fashion. They should not resort to unethical methods in the conduct of their business; if they do, they soon lose the confidence of their creditors and customers and, no matter how good their credit may be, it is bound to become seriously affected.

Capacity.

A man eminently-fitted to conduct the business in which he is engaged in inspires the confidence which is necessary in the extension of credit. The only way he can establish the fact he is so fitted is by actual experience. Very often in business concerns, and this no doubt is to a certain extent prevalent in your own line of endeavor, where there are a number of individuals associated in the enterprise, and you find often one man alone who possesses the ability to carry on the affairs of the concern; in other words, is associated with the particular work to which he is best adapted, and for which he has been trained and has capacity.

Capital.

Last mentioned, but not the least, capital comes up for consideration. The capital of a concern is the amount contributed by the proprietors. It is readily seen that if the original capital fund is used for the purchase of land, buildings, etc., it is dead and of no particular use for current purposes, so you can realize why it is necessary to go along in a small way until you have accumulated sufficient capital to spread out.

A business concern should not undertake contracts beyond its reasonable capital ability, necessitating continued demands upon the bank for capital, which should be supplied by the owners. Seeing opportunities for large profits or for speculation, it should not expect a bank to finance them.

For the purpose of watching closely the affairs of their borrowing clients, banks have a well established rule which requires of an applicant for credit a written statement of his financial condition. Where statements are submitted from year to year, they are compiled and scrutinized closely.

Frozen Capital.

I take it for granted that the larger portion of the members of this association are those growing fruit trees, ornamental shrubs and shade trees and roses.

Now, if I am correctly informed, fruit trees are not salable or marketable until about two years after planting; after this time they are sold principally to orchardists throughout California and Oregon. The growing of these trees should be financed principally by the owner, because otherwise a bank would be loaning money which would become frozen.

When the nurseryman is getting ready to market his trees, then is the time for him to approach his banker, and ask for a loan to pay for the labor of digging, etc., and also sufficient funds to tide him over until he starts to realize from the trees which he has sold. As soon as collections are made, this money should be used in retiring his loan at the bank. He should have his indebtedness paid by May 1.

No doubt most of the trees and vines are sold to land owners who are planting their own properties and, consequently, they are good credit risks.

Ornamental shrubs and shade trees are another important part of the nursery business. As I understand it, these are sold principally by the nurserymen to the landscape gardeners on 30-day to 60-day terms, and sometimes longer. In this connection it might be well to take into consideration the trade acceptance, which is being universally used in financing such transactions. This acceptance is merely the conversion of an account receivable. This trade acceptance can be taken to the bank, and discounted, and your receivable asset is turned into cash. Of course, the firm giving the acceptance must be a responsible one, and have a good reputation for taking care of its obligations when they become due. Acceptances can be handled in this way from a few hundred dollars up to the thousands, and a bank looks upon such financing with favor.

Why Responsibility Counts.

Nurserymen in many instances, or maybe I should say in most instances, are absolutely too lenient in the time allowed for the payment of their bills; in fact, I believe that many of you have indefinite terms. The majority of concerns in other lines of business have gotten together and shortened their terms. I am sure that if you would co-operate in this respect, and sell, say, two per cent thirty days, net sixty days, it would be of great benefit. You will hardly find any other line of business that gives as long terms as are prevalent among the nurserymen. I understand many sales are made between nurserymen and accounts settled between themselves, usually by May or June. Such a system is absolutely contrary to correct business methods and should be changed. Every sixty or ninety days there should be an accounting, and balances settled.

A short time ago I examined the books of a nurseryman who approached my institution for a loan, and I was much surprised at the condition of the business revealed by my visit. In looking over the accounts receivable item—and it was quite a substantial one—I found

"Flower boxes in summer are all very well. There is a nice bit of business there. But in summer there are few of the florists' best customers in town. In winter they are all there. Why not sell the window box idea for winter as well—filled with Evergreens? All shades and textures and shapes may be obtained. Are you in the game for all there is in it? If not, why not?" —Florists' Review.

accounts which had been running on the books for from six months to a year. No doubt they were good, but they were absolutely too slow to be considered a desirable quick asset. I also found a substantial inventory which no doubt was necessary, but which should be in paying its bills. Consequently, the loan was not made. I just want to bring this out as an example. This business had plenty of assets, but they were frozen, and the capital investment was quite large. In other words, the business could not liquidate rapidly. Needless to say, the loan was not granted because I could not see how it could be repaid in a reasonable length of time.

Other lines of business have had their troubles just like you are having, but insofar as long credit terms are concerned, they have overcome that part. They have cooperated with one another until most houses have a maximum time limit of ninety days.

If you will pardon my suggestion, I believe it would be a good policy to appoint a committee and endeavor to get some cooperation among yourselves regarding the shortening of your credit terms. Both the nurserymen and your customers will have to be educated to it, and it will take some time, but it will be the salvation of the nurserymen, particularly those who have not enough capital for the financing of long-time receivables. I understand a few of you have definite terms of sixty and ninety days, and have been quite successful in making your customers adhere to these terms without losing any business.

Remember that credit must not be used for capital purposes, but must flow in and out regularly, and at proper intervals. Make it a habit to clean up with your banker each year, as your business is entirely seasonal. Do not lose sight of the fact that a bank is interested in your quick assets; so endeavor to keep your financial position as liquid as possible. Cooperate with your banker and give him all the information he desires about your business. No good banker is doing any collecting on notes that makers are unable to pay now, unless the giver of the note is ignoring his obligation. If he meets the interest, pays what he can, renews, and lives consistently, the bank is his friend.

In conclusion let me say: Always keep your word with your banker. When you say you will do a certain thing, make every effort to do it and meet your obligations when they become due.

Last week saw the passing of the heavy glut of mums, and toward the latter part of the week stock cleaned up nearly every day on a more steady basis. Of course, Armistice day assisted greatly in bringing this condition about, as the demand for cut stock for this occasion was heavier than in previous years. The trade throughout this section is united in the opinion that Armistice day will soon take its place among the other holidays, in regard to the florists' business, and that each ties of mums are coming in faster than before, while the small varieties are shortening up; this, on the whole, tends to make a well balanced market and a steady price. Roses, which were a drug on the market for the last two weeks, have shortened up in quantity, and with a fair demand are cleaning up each day at fairly good prices. Some fine Premier and Columbia are arriving each day, with the other varieties a close second.

Carnations are coming along in large quantities, but as there was a large amount of funeral work last week, the demand was heavy and the market was not glutted to any extent. The best carnations are still bringing $3, which is exceptionally good for this time of the year, considering that the supply of mums is so heavy. Laddies are gaining in quantity every day and are picked up eagerly at good prices. Fine violets are going begging, as the demand for this stock is light, and the price is just about what anyone will pay. Easter lilies are scarce and what few make their appearance are picked up promptly at the best prices in several years. Valley and orchids are in full supply, with a demand that just about keeps them moving with no surplus. Calendula is in demand at present, and although there is little reaching market, it is of the finest quality and clears every day at extra good prices.

Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri are ever present in large quantities, and it has become a burden to keep them moving out at all. Fine coontie and leucothoe sprays are to be had in large quantities, but the demand for these items is also light.

Various Notes.

J. B. Wiese, Washington Market, has added a new Dodge truck to his equipment and now has two trucks in operation, which are kept busy every day.

E. H. Bentley, of Wellsville, is producing some fine mums and pompons, which he trucks to the market, a distance of over 100 miles. Mr. Bentley believes that this method pays, as it puts his stock on the market in good condition and without the delays which are attendant upon express delivery.

W. J. Palmer & Son are having a big run on pompon plants at their two local stores, and what few plants find their way into the wholesale market are taken quickly at good figures.

Henry Blend, of the McCallum Co., is making his rounds of the local trade, using his new Dodge coupé instead of the old-time Ford that made Henry famous.

S. A. Anderson has been featuring a window of small baskets, which has attracted considerable attention. This firm makes excellent use of its windows, and always has an attractive display of seasonable flowers.

The local branch of the McCallum Co. is receiving shipments of baskets again, which were held up for some time, due to the fire which destroyed the factory of the firm at Pittsburgh.

W. M. Zak has purchased the Helen Donovan stand, at 337 Elk street. Mr. Zak is a newcomer in the business, and all join in wishing him great success in his new venture.

A. J. Pauly, of Attica, visited the local market last week. Mr. Paul is a large producer of carnations.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The market is glutted with mums, whose prices range from 30 cents per bunch, for sprays, to $5 per dozen for large blooms. The yellow and pink varieties are plentiful, but the white ones are short in supply. The temperature has been several degrees above normal, and the warmth is forcing the mums ahead with such rapidity that the growers are obliged to deluge the market. Growers report their crops to be two weeks to a month ahead of the plan for them. Roses and carnations are good, but are second choice to the mums at this time. In consequence, prices for them are comparatively low, while the stocks do not move rapidly. Violets are scarce, with the demand for them constantly growing. There was a decrease in the number of weddings last week, although funeral work has maintained its average.

Various Notes.

Vincenzo Beraducci was defeated by a small plurality Tuesday, November 7, for the general assembly from this city.

Fred Dietz, of French street, was in New York and vicinity last week on business.

M. J. Leach & Sons, Pawtucket, report a large funeral trade during the last few weeks, one especially large funeral being handled last week.

R. N. Smith, of the Mineral Spring Greenhouses, is just completing a new house.

Lucie Scott Dickinson, formerly in charge of the flower store of the Shepard Co., is now resuming business from her home, at 10 Shepard street.

Reck, the son, says: "Our business was established on this piece of property by John Reck, my father, in 1874, and our greenhouse business has been conducted there ever since then. I took over the business in 1906, upon the death of my father, and have been continuing it at the same location ever since then. The greenhouses are at present well within the central section of a thickly populated district and the glass has been much shaded by surrounding buildings. This is the main reason for my selling the old place: So as to enable me to construct a new range of glass on the outskirts of the city. This will be done this coming summer."

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING SEVEN HOUSES.

We have mailed you a sketch of our range. There are five houses, 25x120 feet, together with two additional structures at the north end of these. There are no partitions between the five houses, but there are six feet of glass in the side walls of the two outside houses. House No. 6 is partitioned off with glass, while boards and two feet of glass enclose the north side and west end of this house. House No. 7 is a brick 2-story building, 18x75 feet. It is our desire to maintain 40 degrees when the outside temperature is at zero. How many 2-inch pipes will be required for the coils? I have some 4-inch pipe for flows and returns. How should the whole system be arranged?

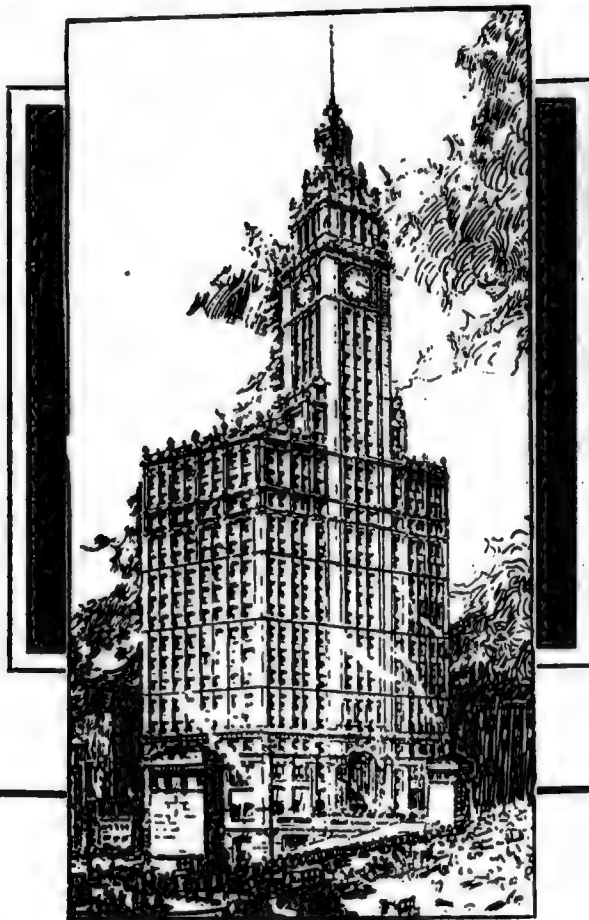

B. R. H.—Kan.

Neither the letter nor the diagram accompanying it gives the dimensions of the plant house, but the size of the brick building is given as 18x75 feet, and, since the diagram shows the plant house to be of the same width as the brick structure, and as the length of the plant house is equal to the width of two of the greenhouses, we judge that the dimensions of the plant house are 18x50 feet, with two feet of glass below the level of the plate in one side and one end wall. For a house of this size it will be well to use two 2½-inch flow pipes on the side wall plates and six 2-inch returns, or if a coil is desired in the middle of the house, use three 2-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns, locating the third flow pipe two feet below the ridge.

Greenhouses Nos. 1 and 5 evidently have six feet of glass in one exposed wall. To heat these houses to 40 degrees, use three 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns, averaging four returns in the coil along the enclosed wall and two in each of the other coils. The remaining three houses only have exposed glass in the roofs and in one end of each of the houses. These may be heated with three 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns, arranging these in three coils of two pipes each. The main flow and return to each house should be a 4-inch pipe. To provide 50 degrees in any of the houses, use three additional returns.

INSTALLATION FAULTY.

I am writing you again in regard to our heating system, and am also mailing a sketch to give you some idea of the plan as it is laid out. There are two houses, 30x100 feet respectively. The side walls are six feet high and there are three feet of glass and three feet of concrete. There are seven return pipes on the west side, which, on the sketch,

Who would?

Erect a beautiful building like the Wrigley Building, Chicago, with design and construction perfect throughout, and then install a poor boiler in it? Nobody with any sense would do that. Neither did the designers of the Wrigley Building. They used great care to select a boiler befitting to so fine a building. They specified the installation of two 250-horsepower KROESCHELL BOILERS.

are marked No. 1. The west side is that on which the wind strikes. Through the center there are three pipes, which are marked on the sketch as No. 2, but there is no partition between the houses. On the east side there are three pipes, marked No. 3 on the sketch.

Kindly note on the sketch that the main steam line is a 4-inch pipe, which extends about two feet from the boiler and is then reduced to a 3-inch pipe and a valve inserted. Beyond this valve the pipe is reduced to two and one-half inches and is then divided for the 2-inch flow pipe. Beyond this point of division the pipe is reduced still further and runs to the expansion tank, and then it goes on to No. 3. We found it necessary to insert a curve ten inches long to get around a corner in the wall. All of the flows run down-grade slightly to the rear of the building; then they swing down-grade to the return lines, and all return lines lean to the end, as is shown in the sketch, and are in continuous lines. The single return line leans towards the receiving trap, but the section from No. 1 to the intersection marked X on the sketch is level, and we have tried it out. The trap works well at four and one-half pounds of steam. On inspection it was found that Nos. 2 and 3 were hot, but No. 1 only had four lines hot, while the three lower ones on this division were cold. In spite of this difficulty, the building was heated to the desired temperature. Should you consider this a fault worthy of correction, or should you let it go the way it is? I know nothing about it, but my partner thinks the difficulty should be overcome. Is it necessary to drain all of the lines when starting the fire in the evening? Should the return lines, which now have about eight inches of fall in ninety-six feet, have more or less drop?

D. G. C.—Pa.

There is nothing mentioned to indicate the cause of the trouble, except the statement that the return coils are "in continuous lines," and the sketch shows that the coils are made with return bends. As a consequence, the steam in the No. 1 coil, which contains seven pipes, has to make its way through nearly 700 feet of 1½-inch pipe. Although the supply pipe is 2-inch, all of the steam really is supplied by the 1½-inch pipe which forms the coil. We do not advise this construction for coils, except, perhaps, when they are quite short, and supposed it was understood that headers were to be used for joining the pipes in the coils. If this is done, it is impossible to see any reason why the pipes in coil No. 1 will not heat evenly. The other coils contain only three and five pipes respectively, and if they heat throughout the entire length it may not be necessary to change them, although coil No. 3, with five pipes, will probably give better results if built up with headers. If evenly graded, a fall of one inch in twelve feet will answer well. It is not necessary to drain the coils when starting the fire.

You Should Have a Standard Recording Thermometer

J. K. Alexander, the dahlia king, East Bridgewater, Mass., writes: "Your thermometer is the best I have seen for my business."

Records are as important in the growing business as in any other business. Progressive growers who spare no effort in raising highest grade stock use Standard Recording Thermometers and know the great aid of keeping records of temperatures. Your equipment is far from complete if you have no Standard Recording Thermometer.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

Autumn Window in Manhattan.

One of the most distinctive window displays that the Rambler has seen in many a day appeared in Warendorff's windows, New York city, the latter part of October. One window was called "Moonlight in Autumn." It was a miniature stage effect arranged by Marian W. Croner. Everlasting flowers in variety, and a few chrysanthemums, all arranged in black and silver vases, made the major part of the group.

Autumn leaves, with black and silver tapestry, furnished the background, and carried out the stage effect. A second window showed handsome baskets of roses, dahlias and hardy mums. Here, too, was a "floral" fruit basket, with grapes, apples, and the lowly peanut, arranged in a most enticing fashion. Broadway stopped to look, and when Broadway looks, it means "something different."

Store at Stamford.

The Quality Seed Store, Stamford, Conn., conducted for nearly ten years by George B. Cannon, has been sold to Frank Baumann, of Long Island City, and John I. Sipp, of Newark, N. J., who will hereafter conduct the business under the name of the Stamford Seed & Flower Co.

Some changes will be made in the store, located at 43 Atlantic street, which will tend to improve the service, and also the exterior of the building. In addition to the general line of seeds, the new concern will handle poultry foods and supplies, garden tools, horticultural books, florists' supplies, insecticides and fungicides.

For a number of years Mr. Cannon operated a nursery located on the edge of the town. This business will be continued by the new firm, and in addition thereto a department will be added covering flowering plants and cut flowers.

John C. Latham, who has been the active manager of the Quality Seed Store, will continue in the same capacity with the new organization. Previous to going to Stamford, Mr. Latham was connected with Bobbink & Atkins, F. R. Pierson and the Converse estate, at Greenwich, Conn.

Mr. Baumann has been connected with J. G. Brill & Co., Long Island City, and with W. C. Wilson, Astoria, N. Y., while Mr. Sipp has been a consulting agriculturist and landscape contractor at Newark, N. J. In addition to this work, Mr. Sipp has edited the agricultural department of the Newark Evening News.

Will You Speculate or Invest?

When you purchase your next greenhouse, will you take a gambler's chance or will you invest and be sure? Will you buy a "bargain" just-as-good greenhouse which sells on price alone or will you let quality, workmanship and service be the basis of your judgment?

King GREENHOUSES

are an investment which eliminates every vestige of a gambler's chance and which will pay you a steady dividend. Their quality of material and workmanship, the service rendered, the low cost of upkeep and operation are a few of the merits you will remember long after the price is forgotten.

There are three types of King Construction: Semi-iron (bulletin 40C), pipe iron (bulletin 38A) and steel frame (bulletin 51A). Each type of construction is meant for a particular purpose. We'll be glad to tell you about any or all three types and to send those bulletins in which you're interested.

The Market.

The market, although still glutted, has improved since last week. Roses are not so numerous as they were, but are equal to the demand. They sell at from $2 to $15 per hundred. The quality has been quite good.

Of course, the greatest factor in the present market is the large supply of mums. These continue ample. Pompons in all colors are available. Large-flowered varieties are plentiful; those of midseason are in full bloom and the late ones are coming in before they usually do. Their early arrival is caused by the unusually warm weather experienced this October and November. Prices, which have been greatly reduced, have begun to improve a little. Pompons are selling at from 50 cents to $1 per bunch, and large types sell at from $2 to $6 per dozen.

Carnations, equal to the demand, are in the market. Easter lilies are scarce, but a few calla lilies are putting in their appearance. Miscellaneous stock includes a few calendulas, valley, sweet peas and orchids. Violets and mignonne are newcomers.

Various Notes.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America accepted the invitation of the Indiana State Florists' Association to hold its 1923 meeting in Indianapolis.

John Heidenreich has been in the hospital, having undergone a slight operation. He is recovering nicely.

The Roepke Floral Co. has opened a shop in the Spink Arms hotel. This shop is under the direction of Walter Burkhoff, recently of the A. Wiegand's Sons Co.

Active work has been begun for the annual flower show of the Indiana State Florists' Association, which will be held in the Indianapolis public library. An unusually large exhibition is anticipated.

E. F. T.

NEWARK, N. J.

Business is good, although it fluctuates from day to day. There is a large variety of fall flowers, and the blooms are of excellent quality.

Trauth the Florist reports that business has improved considerably the last two or three weeks.

George Penek reports business as satisfactory.

The Market.

Stock has been plentiful in this locality. Large quantities of mums are being cut and are finding a good market. There is a scarcity of mum plants on the market. Carnations are in good supply. Roses are just about equal to the demand. Orchids are scarce in the catleya varieties, but a fine lot of cypripediums are on the market. Business, on the whole, has been good.

Various Notes.

E. Wenninghoff reports business on the increase. A fine line of plants is always to be seen at this place.

The Flick Floral Co. has had a large amount of business. A new delivery car was put into service here recently.

Lanternier, Florist, has had a fine display of mums, both in the larger varieties and in the pompons. The window was prettily decorated for Armistice day. A large, white basket of white mums, draped at the base with the flag, with the dove of peace hovering over it, drew the attention of the passing crowds.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports telegraph business on the increase. Some fine Dolly Dimple, White Turner and Dorner's Pink are being cut here. The calla lilies are coming in now. The firm has a splendid display window space, which is used to good advantage. The windows for Halloween and Armistice day were especially attractive.

The Blossom Floral Co. reports business as good.

Harry White, from North Manchester, Ind., and H. C. Neubrand, representing Roman J. Irwin, New York, were in the city last week. S. N.

Reading, Pa.—One of the biggest features of the show held in this city November 7 to 10 was the mum exhibit from the greenhouses of Mortimer B. Fuller, Dalton, Pa. The display also included many choice plants from the wholesale market growers. Prizes were awarded to the best cut flower and pot plant specimens. The judges of the show were Samuel S. Pennock, of Philadelphia; Frank Baker, of Utica, N. Y.; Anton Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.

CAMPANULASCAMPANULAS FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT.
Our forcing grade.HOW TO FORCE THEM.

As soon as received, pot them and carry the plants after that into a frame; they are better off if they do not freeze, they don't appreciate it. Up to February they want anything but a warm house; leave all the foliage on you can; hold the house as near to 82 deg. as possible and also after that time don't subject them to a high temperature; lift the plants and heel in a coldhouse to be planted out in a solid bed in February, to be slowly forced into bloom for cut-flowers for late April and during May.

Campanula Medium, blue, rose and white;
Campanula Calycanthema, blue, rose, white,
$8.00 per 100, $80.00 per 1000.

GLADIOLI

GET INTO THE BAND WAGON!

Some of the biggest men in the business are buying Sweet Lavender, Giant Nymph and Sheila. There is not mere hearsay back of these beauties—Mr. Gersdorff, the eminent authority, grades them xxxx; Mr. R. M. Champe, author of the standard work, "The Gladiolus for Profit," lists them in his "High-Merit" list. We have won two silver medals and one bronze medal at the American Gladiolus society shows on our own originations. We have many bona-fide testimonials that ring true with enthusiasm. This space costs too much to go into detail.

SHEILA: Enormous blooms of rich salmon color; fine texture, very early. Planting stock 1/2 to 1-in. diameter. Nearly all will bloom and this is the size to produce most bulblets, $2.50 per 12, $20.00 per 100; 25 at 100 rate.

From New York: "Last Sunday I had the pleasure of seeing for the first time your 'Sheila' in all its glory. The grower, at whose gardens I saw it, told me he considered Leota and Giant Nymph still better. It does not seem that this can be possible. I realize that I have lost one big bet in not growing some of these varieties before." Dated August 16, 1922.

SWEET LAVENDER: As its name implies. Let this man from Maine tell about it. "A season of cold nights and blistering hot days, your Gladiolus Sweet Lavender has delighted me with blooms, so rare, so altogether different to anything else I've met in Gladioli; a masterpiece and one of the real honest to goodness Gladiolus." Sweet Lavender: Is extremely early. Price: Planting stock, 1/2 to 1-in., $3.00 per doz.; $25.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate.

GIANT NYMPH: A giant among Gladioli, and of a rich pink. Don't want to say much about Giant Nymph because our stock is limited. An Ohio grower writes: "We think it the best new thing out." Planting stock 1/2 to 1-in. diameter, $4.50 per 12, $35.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate.

POMMERT'S "PURITY."

This is the new commercial white that created a sensation at the Washington, D. C., convention of the S. A. F., was given a first class certificate and was presented to President Harding by the ladies of the S. A. F. with an appropriate speech dedicating it to the memory of his mother.

It is a pure white when cut in bud and opened in water; flower is size and form of America but has more substance making it the best shipper and keeper we have ever grown.

Strong healthy grower in the field and greenhouse; an ideal forcing variety but two weeks later than Lilywhite; an all season kind. You will have to have it eventually—Why not now? The best money-maker of all in the cut flower market. Be sure to get the right one "Pommert's." Our soil produces the best bulbs to be had.

S. BRYSON AYRES OFFERS

HARDY CARNATIONS—White, red, pink, violet, extra large plants, $15.00 per 100. These Carnations are perfectly hardy, withstanding the severest winters without protection and they bloom with us out of doors for Mothers' day and Decoration day sales, continuing in bloom throughout the summer and fall. Another feature of this hardy Carnation plant is the fact that it remains green all winter, making it a valuable winter decorative plant.

GYPHOPHILA—Double white; strong 3-year-old plants, $32.00 per 100.

HOLLYHOCKS—Double pink, red, white, yellow and maroon, $8.00 per 100.

GAILLARDIA—The beautiful Indian red shades; extra large plants, $8.00 per 100.

DELPHINIUM—This beautiful Chinese variety in the new Belladonna blue; a grand variety, $14.00 per 100.

PHLOX—Fine named varieties that have become slightly mixed; large plants, $7.00 per 100.

DAISIES—Hardy golden; large clumps, $9.00 per 100.

WINTERING CANNA ROOTS.

I should like to know the best method of storing cannas over winter. How should cannas be handled from the time they are taken out of the ground until they are again used in the spring. Our difficulty lies in our not being able to carry them through the winter properly and, therefore, we lose a great many of them.

H. S. W.—Ia.

Canna roots should be lifted when moderately dry. Be sure to leave a fair amount of soil on the clumps. They can be kept in fine condition on shelves in a potato cellar which will just exclude the frost. If the roots are bare, throw some loam over them. Many growers prefer to keep them in sheds which contain some fire heat; others put them below the benches in greenhouses where they are free from drip. In the latter case they must be elevated from the ground. Anything clear of actual freezing will winter cannas successfully, but an ideal temperature would be 40 to 45 degrees at night, with a dry atmosphere. Much fire heat will cause shriveling, so do not store the roots near the boilers. Look at the roots occasionally during the winter and remove any moldy portions.

Finck's first Bound Brook house. The eaves are 7 feet high. The glass is 20 inches wide, 7 lights to a rafter spacing.

Finck believes in boarded sides. Believes they are better for the plants, and has proved to his satisfaction that they are cheaper than concrete.

Concerning William Finck, of Bound Brook, N. J. Famous for His Sweet Peas

Right at the very start, we want to give Mrs. Finck the full credit she so abundantly deserves in helping her husband to be the success he is. Likewise to compliment him for being such a good picker in selecting her for his mate and partner.

Mr. Finck first had a range of Hitchings houses down on Long Island, but the salt air didn't agree with him, so he sold out and built in New Jersey one of our full Iron Framers 25 feet wide by 150 feet long.

Last year we built another for him 46 feet by 207, and one 25 by 125.

It's evident that nothing about Mr.

Mr. Finck isn't much of a talker. He's a doer. Not a sayer. While the other fellow talks, he grows sweet peas.

Finck's business is done by guess. Everywhere there are indications of forethought and careful planning. He takes absolutely no chances with his watering, having worked out a simple ingenious way of making it positive that each plant gets just so much—no more—no less.

That his growing methods are right is proved by the fact that his sweet peas always bring a notch or two above the high market price.

Just naturally we like to think their being grown in our houses, helps some.

You know we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

Murphy Brothers Build The First Iron Frame House In Cincinnati For Rose Growing

The Cincinnati section, as you know, has always been strong for pipe frame houses of ridge and furrow construction. So have a lot of other sections, but sooner or later the iron frame house, built separately, sells itself.

It's just one of those business changes which you follow or find your profits decreasing.

The time is past when it pays to put up a house that is not a permanent investment.

Even if the materials were the same price as before the war, labor costs so much, it's simply poor business to pay its high price to put up short-lived houses.

It's like putting a gold-plated harness on a lumbering old work horse.

Murphy Brothers figured all these facts out long ago.

But, just to prove to themselves they were right, each of them took extended trips among the growers, getting their views. Always they had a keen eye out for comparison in constructions.

As a result they decided to put up one of our Number One Iron Framers 60 feet wide and 287 feet long.

The order was placed last April.

Roses are their first crop.

Having a range of ridge and furrow houses of various constructions, they are in a position to fairly compare constructions and crop yields.

Already they have formed some rather definite conclusions.

You may incline to talk with them. Am sure you will find them only too glad to tell you their frank opinions.

To be exact, the house is 60 feet 1 inch wide. It is the width which we feel is about right for roses. From 50 to 60 feet seems to be the tendency. Several who have our wider houses, this year built these narrower ones. In fact, most of them were 40 and 50 feet.

SWEET PEA SEED

Early or Winter-Flowering Orchids or Spencers

THE IDEAL CROP TO FOLLOW CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Our Florist's Strains of Sweet Peas are thoroughly rogued in the field, seed being hand picked and true to name—an important consideration when comparing prices. A.B.C. "Supreme Quality" Early Flowering Varieties are planted by growers who appreciate the ultimate in results.

We mention below up-to-the-minute varieties that are making good in the various markets of this country this season. You will make no mistake, we believe, in planting them. However, our complete list of some 50 additional varieties will be mailed free for the asking.

The Queen of Early-Flowering Orchid Sweet Peas ZVOLANEK'S ROSE

Selected True Strain

This is the very best commercial variety to date. Everyone who has tried it wants it again in larger quantities. Beautiful self-rose color, double size of Mrs. Skach. Holds its color to the last and is free bloomer.

Per oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $4.00; 1 lb., $15.00.

BLUEBIRD—This is a charming shade of blue, somewhat similar to Wedgwood, but more of a true self, especially as the flower ages. The flowers are arranged on long stems—much the best of all blue sorts.

Per oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

BALL'S COLUMBIA—Color pink and white. Very early and one of the best florist varieties, like Xmas White and pink.

Per oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $4.00; 1 lb., $15.00.

EARLY GRENADIER (Novelty). This is the most brilliant Sweet Pea yet introduced. A truly early, everblooming type, of robust habit. The color may best be described as a glowing poppy scarlet.

Per oz., $2.00; per ¼ lb., $6.00.

IMPROVED SNOWSTORM—This is by far the finest of all white winter flowering varieties. The flowers are extra large, of fine form with a magnificent and boldly waved standard, a vigorous grower with enormous flowers which are invariably borne in fours on very long stems.

Per oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

MRS. KERR (Novelty). The first early flowering salmon. Created a sensation when exhibited at the great International Flower Show in New York, March, 1921; also at the National Flower Show, Indianapolis, Ind., 1922.

Per oz., $2.00; ¼ lb., $6.00.

GLITTERS—A variety which is unique in itself; the color is a bright fiery orange salmon. The flowers are of enormous size, are beautifully waved, usually borne four to the stem. A cut flower variety it is without a peer.

Per oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $4.00; 1 lb., $15.00.

HARMONY—An exceptionally choice clear lavender, very large flower.

Per oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $3.00; 1 lb., $10.00.

LAVENDER KING—Color rich, true deep lavender; flowers of large size, and beautifully waved form, extra good. Don't fail to include this variety in your list.

Per oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

PRINCESS—A vigorous grower, with large flowers, fluted and waved. Color a lovely shade of soft lavender suffused mauve.

Per oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

HEATHERBELL—Color rich but pleasing mauve, turning to a beautiful mauve lavender when cut and put in water.

Per oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

EMPRESS—Very fine. Bright deep rose pink.

Per oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $3.00; 1 lb., $10.00.

ROSE QUEEN—One of the choicest varieties. The flowers are borne on long stems, are of large size and free bloomers. Usually four flowers are produced on a stem. Color a most attractive shade of pink.

Per oz., 85c; ¼ lb., $3.00; 1 lb., $10.00.

Selected True Strain

SWEET PEAS—ZVOLANEK'S ROSE

A "Sure Fire" Money Maker

For the Winter and Spring Season

Calendula or Pot Marigold Special Orange King

Our grower has perfected a strain of this important cut flower and pot plant that has gained a National Reputation. Seeds being saved only from plants producing unusually double flowers of exceptional brilliancy. We highly recommend this unusually good strain. Cultural directions for the asking.

Trade pkt., 50c; oz., $3.00; ¼ lb., $10.00.

You Who Look For Something Better!

Commonwealth is better than existing roses. Montgomery's dark pink seedling will please you. We have confidence in Commonwealth and have shown our faith by placing plants of this new rose with the following firms for trial. These men have our full permission to tell the truth. We have not asked them to be charitable as regards any faults that the rose may have. We have placed the rose with these growers that the story of Commonwealth may be the story of honest endeavor to give the rose growers of America something better than we have had before. See Commonwealth with your nearest neighbor; or, better still, come to Cromwell and see it here. These men are growing it:

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the last few years to some of the leading Retail Florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays at 50c each; cut leaves, $5.00 per 100.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety than any firm in the country.

SEEKING FOR SIGNS OF CYCLAMEN MITE

In curing a disease, the first essential is to diagnose it correctly—to know its cause and symptoms. In this instance the cause, the cyclamen mite, is so small and elusive that it is not easily recognized. But the symptoms, the signs of the mite's presence, are almost unmistakable.

COMPARED with some other greenhouse pests, the cyclamen mite is a recent arrival. It was little known in this country until 1898, about a quarter century ago, when it attracted serious attention in New York state. In 1899 the first definite description of it was published and it received its scientific name, Tarsonemus pallidus. But it has made alarmingly swift amends for the lateness of its start. At present it is widely distributed over the United States and is a great menace to cyclamen culture. The pest is not only distressingly common in the eastern half of the Union, but has appeared west of the Mississippi and is decidedly troublesome in the north Pacific states. And it does not confine its attentions to cyclamens. Though cyclamens are its prime favorites, it has also shown a fondness for chrysanthemums, geraniums, snapdragons and some other plants.

Almost Invisible.

The cyclamen mite is especially difficult to identify or recognize, for at least three reasons—its diminutiveness, its paleness of color and its habitual avoidance of the light. It is almost microscopically small; in all its phases it is barely visible to the unaided human eye. The adult male, which is somewhat smaller than the female, is about one one-hundred-twenty-fifth of an inch in length, or less than half as long as the red spider. In hunting for such game, the principal weapon is a microscope.

Almost Colorless.

As to the second-mentioned hindrance to identification—indistinctness of color—the mite is described as hyaline; that is, glassy, crystalline, or almost colorless and transparent. Hence the significance of the word pallidus, meaning "pallid" or "pale," in its scientific name. Someone has suggested that pallid mite would be a more appropriate name than cyclamen mite. The hyaline quality persists through all stages of the creature's growth. The egg is whitish and pearl-like; the larva at first is similar to the egg in color—or colorlessness—and is translucent and glistening, but assumes a slightly yellowish tinge as it matures; the adult also is pale in hue, but becomes brownish or greenish hyaline with age. So the mite is not only protected by its smallness, but also by its colorlessness.

Proof of Mite's Presence.

As already intimated, a third hindrance to the identification of the mite is its propensity to shun the light by penetrating to the innermost recesses of the plant. The same characteristic makes it difficult to reach the mite with a spray or fumigant. One of the first acts of the adult mite, of course, is to seek its sustenance; it does this by piercing the young leaves and sucking the juices from the tissues. This operation produces a brownish discoloration or russetting of the leaves. As a natural result, also, of the removal of the juices, the leaves warp or curl over the injury. In the dark hollows provided by the curling of the leaves the mites usually deposit their eggs. Indeed, if the eggs chance to be in a position that is fully exposed to the light, they generally fail to hatch.

Let it be particularly noted here, as a vitally important point, that this curling, shriveling and deforming of the young, tender leaves is one of the first signs of the presence of the pest, and may be observed by the watchful grower in time to save the stock from ruin.

In Foliage and Flower.

Later, as the plants advance in growth and the mites multiply, the myriads of progeny prove true to their inherited secretiveness, concealing themselves in the deepest interstices of the leaves and flowers, and there carrying on their depredations. The leaves become distorted and shriveled; the flowers become discolored, blotched, streaked and stunted, so that they wilt and die prematurely. In many cases the flower buds do not open at all. The favorite hiding places of mites of all ages and stages are between the calyx and corolla, within the corolla and on the stamens and ovary. Perhaps a majority of them are found between the calyx and corolla.

Naturally, the mites show a preference for the youngest, most tender growths, as well as for undisturbed, shady seclusion. The injuries found on mature leaves were inflicted, undoubtedly, when the leaves were small. And the damage to the flowers, though most noticeable after they are open, was caused principally when they were in the bud stage.

Mites in Darkened Jars.

It is an interesting circumstance that the cyclamen mites' dislike of light makes it difficult even for scientists to study the habits of the creatures with sufficient clearness. So the scientists tried the expedient of tricking the mites by placing a battery jar, enclosed in black paper, over each infested plant in the experimental patch, and removing the covering at intervals to permit investigation. This plan was successful, with the one drawback that some of the plants, under such treatment, died before the life cycle of the mites was completed. In the dark jars, many of the eggs were deposited on the outer surfaces of the plants, where the incubation and later stages of development could be accurately observed during the brief intervals when light was admitted.

As Seen through a Microscope.

The color and size of the mite have already been indicated. It may be well to add that the creature, as seen through a microscope, is a typical mite in appearance, as it is oval in shape and has no eyes; the young larva has three pairs of legs and the adult has four pairs. A more detailed description of the pest might be useful to entomologists, but would probably be worthless to florists—even to the florist who possesses a good microscope. An account of the pest's life cycle, however, may be of real interest and value.

Its Life Cycle.

Let it be supposed that the cyclamen mite's life cycle begins with the depositing of the eggs. Relatively speaking, the eggs are extremely large, each egg occupying at least one-half of the female's body. Only one egg, therefore, is laid at a time. As many as two or three eggs, however, may be laid in a day, and the total number laid by one mite ranges from twelve to sixteen. The length of time required for incubation, or hatching, which is commonly called the egg stage, varies greatly, principally according to the temperature, but averages about eleven days in a temperature of 70 degrees, if some recent reports may be accepted as conclusive. An hour or so after emerging from the egg, the larva begins to feed. The larval stage is divided into two distinct phases, active and quiescent. The active period, during which the larva gorges and grows, lasts about seven days and is followed by the quiescent period, which continues about three days or a little longer. The duration of the entire larval period would thus be about ten to eleven days. At the end of the quiescent period the insect molts and the adult mite appears. The adult female lives about fourteen to twenty days; the male, only about six days.

According to those calculations, the entire life cycle of the cyclamen mite, from the beginning of the egg stage to the death of the adult, would occupy from twenty-seven to forty-one days, but some reliable observers have estimated the duration of the egg and larval stages as much briefer than in the foregoing figures—perhaps only about half as long.

Many Generations of Mites.

As to the number of mite generations in an entire season, computation is difficult and even the imagination may be baffled. It has been estimated that the individual mites produced from one egg would total at least forty at the end of one month. And the laying of the eggs, in the different mite families, continues for at least several months of each presence of the mite may be detected in time to prevent the destruction of the crop. With that purpose in view, the visible effects of the mite's ravages on the young, tender leaves, and the effects of its later attacks on the flower buds, have already been described. The accompanying illustrations will also aid in conveying a clear idea of the appearance of the mite-infested foliage and flowers. For the use of these illustrations The Review is indebted to the Journal of Agricultural Research, Washington, D. C., from which, also, were gleaned some of the data presented in the text of this article.

If the grower is sufficiently vigilant, he will note the curling of the young leaves, the first signs of the mite's presence, and will be able, by instant action, to protect his plants from serious harm. In many cases, however, the work of destruction is not observed until it manifests itself in the distorted, blotched and streaked condition of the flower buds. Then, if many of the buds are so affected, the most skillful and persistent use of remedies will probably be of no avail. The crop is doomed. The only logical procedure now—the last act of the tragedy—is to burn the plants and sterilize the soil.

Nicotine Spray as Preventive.

The wisest course, however, is not to wait even for the premonitory curling of the foliage, but to begin preventive measures when the seedlings are only one to one and one-half inches tall, soon after they have been transplanted from the seed flats. Usually the seedlings are ready for transplanting about eight to ten weeks after the sowing of the seed. And the best remedy or preventive yet discovered, apparently, is the use of a nicotine-soap spray every week or ten days from the time of the first transplanting until the flower buds begin to show color. Owing to the extremely primitive respiratory system of the mites, they are not readily affected by fumigation, even when the fumes are so strong as to injure the plants; hence spraying is generally preferred.

The spraying can be made more thorough and effectual if there is plenty of space between the plants. Besides, overcrowding the plants aids the spreading of the mites, as they do not migrate from one plant to another unless the leaves of the different plants are in contact. Moreover, the multiplication of the pests is favored by dampness and by lack of light and ventilation.

Formula for Nicotine Solution.

In preparing the solution for spraying, some growers follow this simple formula: Black Leaf 40 at the rate of a teaspoonful to each gallon of water, with the addition of a small quantity of soap—say three or four pounds of the soap to 100 gallons of the solution. Another manner of stating the formula is: Nicotine sulphate, one and one-half teaspoonfuls; soap, three-fourths of an ounce; water, one gallon.

The soap is an important ingredient; it makes the coating of liquid not only more adhesive, but also more uniform and penetrative. Without the soap, the solution, when applied, has a tendency to form into detached drops, leaving much of the plant surface poorly covered.

The nicotine spraying, as already year. Newly deposited eggs have been found from the beginning of November till the end of March and it is not likely that the laying is limited to those five months. Indeed, it is believed that the mites frequently appear in early June, on young plants grown from the previous summer's sowing, and produce generation after generation on the plants until about the end of March. Any reader who is fond of solving problems in arithmetical progression, geometrical progression, and so on, may here find a glorious opportunity, with startling results.

Successive generations of the mites, of course, overlap more and more extensively as the season passes, so that eggs, larvae and adults exist simultaneously in ever increasing numbers until spring. Then the mites gradually subside, but only to marshal their forces again early in the summer and attack another crop. It is supposed, though not definitely proved, that the female mites spend the inactive interval, between crops, in a dormant condition in the greenhouse soil.

Watching for First Warning.

The main purpose of this article, as indicated at the start, is to tell how the stated, should stop when the flower buds begin to show color, because the solution is likely to discolor the flowers and would be no longer needed, at any rate, as the plants would then be so far advanced as to be beyond serious danger from the mites. At this time, however, a daily or twice-daily spraying with clear water may be substituted for the nicotine spraying, if the weather is favorable.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Examining Committees.

The committees appointed by the Chrysanthemum Society of America to examine new varieties of chrysanthemums have submitted reports of the season as follows:

At Chicago, November 16, Monarch, white, incurved, submitted by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., scored as follows on the exhibition scale: Color, 14; stem, 5; foliage, 4; fullness, 15; form, 14; depth, 15; size, 28; total, 95.

At Chicago, November 16, Giant White, creamy white, incurved, submitted by the E. G. Hill Co., scored as follows on the exhibition scale: Color, 13; stem, 5; foliage, 4; fullness, 15; form, 14; depth, 15; size, 28; total, 94.

At Madison, N. J., November 4, Mrs. H. K. Knapp, yellow, single and large-flowered, submitted by Robert H. Lickman's Brookwood Gardens, East Islip, N. Y., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 18; substance, 18; stem and foliage, 17; total, 91.

At Cincinnati, O., November 4, Laelia, deep pink, anemone, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 37; form, 19; stem and foliage, 19; fullness, 18; total, 93.

At Chicago, Ill., November 6, Narada, yellow, pompon and disbudded, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., scored as follows: Color, 32; form, 20; stem and foliage, 20; fullness, 20; total, 92.

PROFIT IN TULIPS.

Grown in America.

Most of the tulip bulbs used in this country are imported, but good tulips can be grown here at a profit, says the United States Department of Agriculture, in department bulletin 1082, "The Production of Tulip Bulbs," by Dr. David Griffiths. The bulbs are already being grown in commercial quantities by three or four companies in southern Michigan, by an association in the Willamette valley, of Oregon, by a firm in northwestern California, another in the Norfolk region of Virginia and in a smaller way in a score of localities. The Department of Agriculture has been growing them successfully on Puget sound, in the state of Washington.

"There is no limit," says the bulletin, "to the quantity of bulbs which it is possible to produce in the United States. We have climates that are unexcelled, regions with an abundant moisture supply from October to June, dry summers, fertile sands, inexhaustible loams and deep, friable silts. The tulips already produced experimentally by the department are as good as the best. They bed, force, produce and reproduce normally under American conditions. The industry of bulb production on a large scale, however, must develop slowly, for experience is necessary, and it is probable that for a long time the home-grown supply will be only supplementary to existing sources."

Cultural Information Obtainable.

The bulletin contains full discussions on the culture of tulips, harvesting the flowers and bulbs, packing, shipping, enemies, and performance records of many varieties. Summed up in small space, some of the rules for successful tulip culture laid down by the department are: Do not plant on lean soil; use the most available source of fertility and utilize it to the utmost by thick planting; strive to plant back every year as large a per cent of the smallest bulbs that will grow to maturity in one year as is compatible with maintenance of stock; do not sell all the large bulbs, but plant back a small number of the largest and best, especially of the varieties that reproduce poorly; do not plant on the same ground more often than once in two or three years; dig and replant every year; practice clean culture and keep down the weeds; preserve the bulb coats, do not let the bulbs mold, handle them without bruising; avoid the broken tulips in proximity with the breeders of self-colored stocks; plant early, as the best results are to be expected from plantings made before the end of September.

BAUR-STEINKAMP INCORPORATE.

The partnership of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, which consisted of A. F. J. Baur, president of the American Carnation Society and vice-president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, and O. E. Steinkamp, secretary of the American Carnation Society, has been incorporated, the new name being Baur-Steinkamp & Co. The officers of the corporation are: President, A. F. J. Baur; vice-president, Edward J. Larsen; secretary-treasurer, O. E. Steinkamp.

The newcomer in the firm, Mr. Larsen, will be remembered by visitors at the range in Indianapolis. His hobby is chrysanthemums. He came into Mr. Baur's employ back in the days of Baur & Smith and has given Mr. Baur capable assistance in the work of breeding chrysanthemums and carnations. This work will be continued as before, as will the general operation of the company.

Charles City, Ia.—The greenhouses of Ray Ferris have been purchased by H. M. Fay, who has taken charge of them. The houses were purchased two years ago by Mr. Ferris, when they were known as the Wetherbee greenhouses. William Bishop, who has been in charge of the growing and who is the son-in-law of Mr. Fay, will continue in his position.

could do so would be burning oil. He had followed the oil business, he said, closely for the last three years, had looked over at least 300 installations in New England and he considered oil heating the greatest plan ever invented. There are various ways to burn oil, but there are no great variations in burners.

The different heating systems vary in cost; so do tanks, as well as burners. A person planning to use oil must investigate and use considerable judgment. Supply and installation are intimately connected. Roughly speaking, three and one-half barrels of oil equal a ton of coal. Tank cars can be run on any siding; pipe lines can carry the oil to the tanks. Fuel oil must be heated, as it will not flow below a certain temperature. As oil heating progresses, those using this system will store all they need in summer for the entire season. Deliveries are regularly made over the road within a 20-mile radius of Boston. Ernest Moore, of Arlington, the noted vegetable grower, heats 150,000 feet of glass with oil and considers it far superior to coal. To show how deliveries can be made over the road in bad weather, Mr. Thommen says he had three cars of oil delivered the day following a 24-inch snowfall.

Some Who Use It.

The Budlong Rose Co., Auburn, R. I., with over 300,000 feet of glass mainly devoted to rose culture, formerly employed fourteen men to care for its battery of 1,800-horsepower boilers; with oil the firm employs three men. Cellars are scrupulously clean. The firm has a 250,000-gallon tank and a contract, which runs until 1935, to keep the tank filled to a certain point. Mr. Budlong says he never now worries about his heating; everything is simple and works automatically. He would close up his entire establishment rather than return to coal heating. To show how fuel oil consumption is increasing, Massachusetts in 1918 used 112,000,000 gallons; in 1922 the amount would be over 1,400,000,000 gallons. In the case of electricity giving out, a small gas engine can be immediately started up.

Others' Opinions.

E. Allan Peirce spoke on his new installation and said it works like a charm; the boilers need practically no attention during the day and men formerly employed in shoveling coal, etc., can be used in the greenhouses. Harold J. Patten spoke interestingly on how he came to take up oil heating. He has a 65,000-gallon tank, oil being carried about 800 feet to this through a pipe line. He will save $1,500 in fuel, comparing his cost of oil with coal at present prices, and an additional $900 by storing it in summer. This will pay for his whole installation in two years, and the labor saving will be great.

F. A. Wilson said that the idea that coal would remain higher in price than fuel oil was erroneous. Fuel oil costs will, in his opinion, always closely approximate those of coal, especially as oil consumption increases. The quick burning out of flues by the greater heat secured from oil, as compared with coal, is an important matter and will be a costly one, unless great care is taken at the outset, according to Mr. Wilson. W. N. C.

OIL IN EAST

EAST HEATS WITH OIL.

Necessity Popularizes It.

At a meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Club, Boston, November 15, Gustave Thommen gave a most interesting lecture on oil heating for greenhouses; he has made a special study of this subject for two or three years. In the course of his remarks he said the reason that florists are taking an increasing interest in oil is that they are being forced to it. Many would prefer to keep on using coal, even at $20 a ton, because they are used to it. Conditions, however, have caused a decided change. The fuel oil industry is in our favor. There is a residue of as much as forty per cent in the production of gasoline, and millions of gallons of such residue have been wasted in the past as worthless. Refineries are unable to sell all their fuel oil today; many do not even take the trouble to try to sell it, but they simply pump it away.

How About Costs?

Of the questions asked regarding oil heating, fifty per cent are: "Can we get an ample oil supply?" Mr. Thommen's opinion is, "Yes," as so much now goes to waste and the supply is steadily increasing. The most pertinent question is: "When the greater demand comes, what about the price?" His opinion is that oil cannot possibly advance above the cost of coal. If coal goes down in value, so will fuel oil. The price of fuel oil will be regulated more or less by the cost of coal. There is a possibility of oil always being cheaper than coal. The supply and price of coal are utterly undependable, and even now there loom up the threats of another strike next spring.

If we except the Pacific coast, heating with fuel oil is farther advanced in New England than in almost any other part of the country. New York is far behind, but Chicago and the great west are becoming wide-awake as to its possibilities. Florists in New England are now thoroughly in earnest regarding oil heating. There are many reasons for using oil. There is the matter of cost; a year ago 160 gallons were classed as the equivalent of a ton of coal; this is now reduced to 143 gallons, but we shall call it 150 gallons for easy figuring. With a delivered price of $4\frac{1}{2}$ to $5\frac{1}{2}$ cents per gallon on fuel oil, this makes the cost about \$7.50 per ton, far below the present cost of soft coal, and we must remember that in each ton of coal there are at least 200 pounds of slack or rubbish. In fact, you do not know what you are buying when you get coal; nowadays anything black that will make smoke sells. Coal in B. t. u. varies from 8,000 to 14,800; oil is never below 15,000 and good quality runs to 17,000 and 18,000 B. t. u.

Oil Saves Labor.

There is an immense amount of labor in handling coal, rehandling and shoveling it, cleaning furnaces, hauling out ashes, etc. A vast amount of energy is expended before we get it in the furnace; much of it is never burned, much is lost in the grates, and it surely does not pay to stick to coal for the sake of cinders for making paths or cement work. When coal fires are banked, most of the heat passes up the flues; with fuel oil, the fire can be stopped at once and started immediately. With coal, heat goes up the smokestack, but not with fuel oil, as the door is never opened.

In ten years' time, Mr. Thommen predicted, all New England florists who

DENVER'S BIGGEST SHOW

DENVER'S FIFTH ANNUAL SHOW.

Best Yet.

"Better than ever" was the universal comment on the three days of the fifth annual flower show given under the auspices of the Denver Society of Ornamental Horticulture, assisted by the Garden Club and florists of Denver, Colo. During the course of the show thousands of people visited the exhibition, which was held in the Denver municipal auditorium, November 15 to 17, inclusive. One of the biggest features of the show, in comparison with other shows throughout the country, was the fact that no admission charge was made, enabling every flower lover in Denver to attend the wonderful exhibition, regardless of his financial status.

The society, in particular, and the florists of Denver, in general, are keenly appreciative of the splendid coöperative spirit of the city officials, who made it possible, through the free use of the city auditorium, to present the flower show free of charge to the public. "The coöperation of Denver florists and growers, in putting on a flower show of the quality of this one, free to the public and without a single money premium for the exhibitors, is wonderful. The spirit of the city officials in allowing the free use of this wonderful auditorium is an example of civic pride in beauty which is seldom seen. It is a unique method of fostering pride in civic achievements and of educating the people to the beauty and utility of flowers," were the remarks of M. E. Carter, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, Mo., who acted as official judge of the show.

Official Opening.

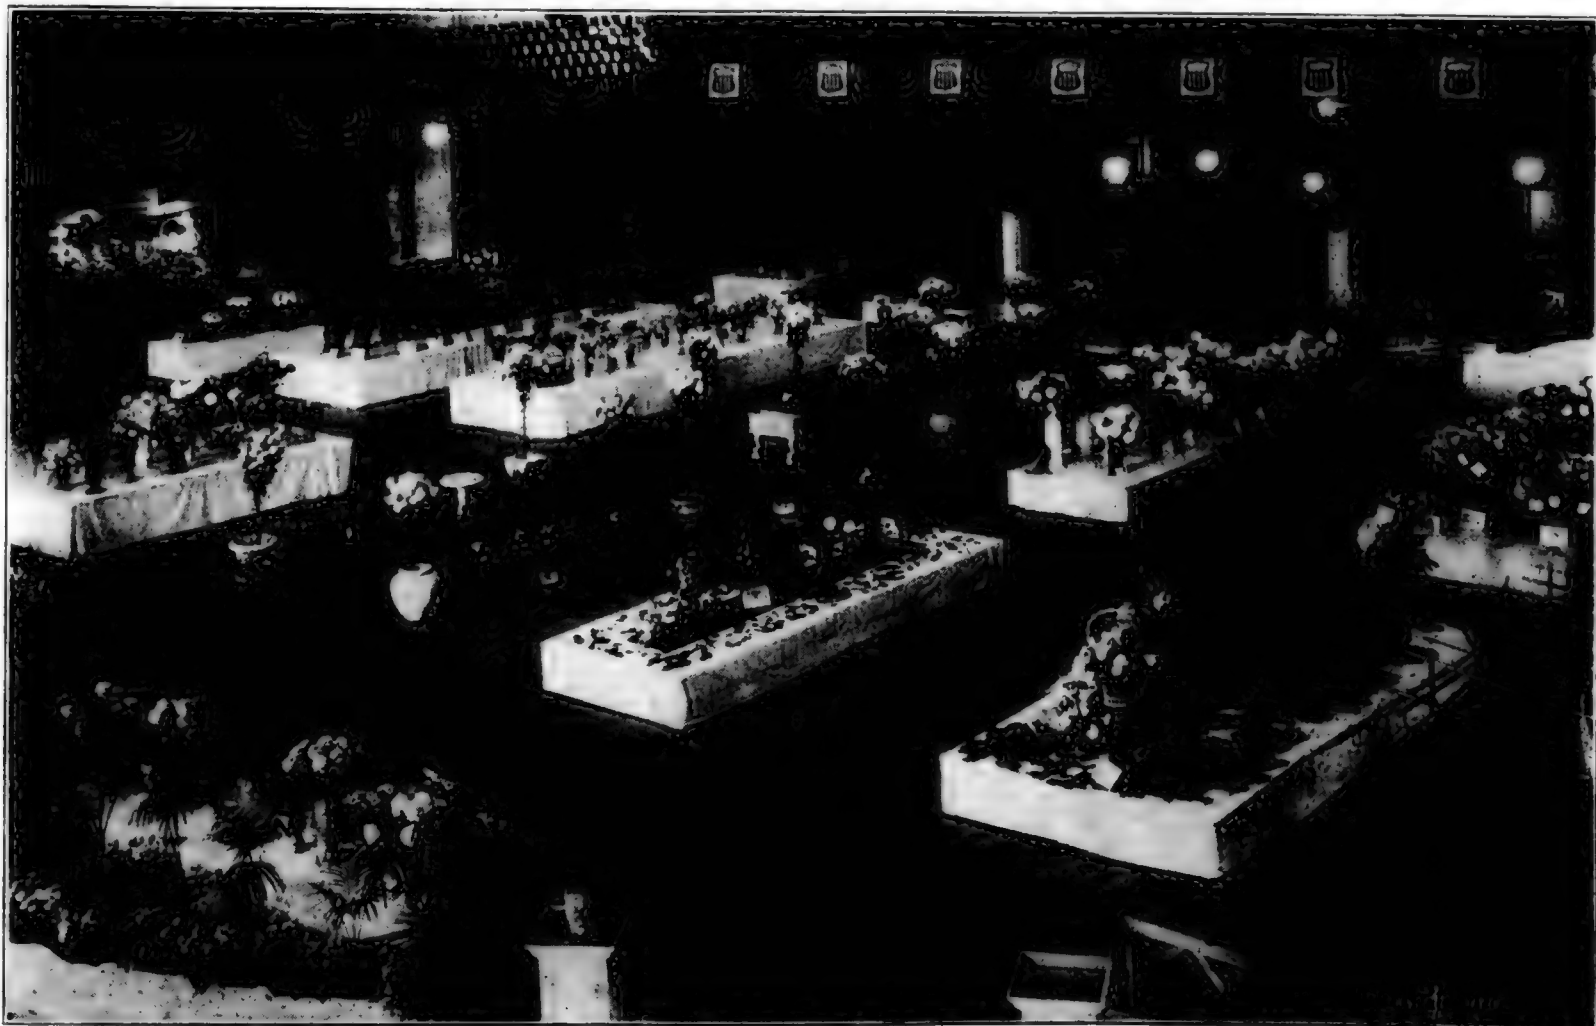

The show was officially opened Wednesday evening, November 15, when Mayor D. C. Bailey pushed a button, flooding the large auditorium with light and revealing the magnificent display of flowers, which the exhibitors had been arranging since early morning. A short program preceded the official opening. Mayor Bailey, in his opening remarks, said: "Since we have been giving these annual flower shows they have improved each year. The number of exhibits is larger, and the beauty and quality of the flowers, especially of the chrysanthemums, have increased yearly. The fact that outside states have sent exhibitions to the Denver flower show this year proves that Denver is fast becoming known as one of the big flower-producing centers of the country. I feel that a beautiful show of this kind should be encouraged in every way, and it will be my personal pleasure to offer another cup as one of the trophies for the 1923 flower show."

Adam Kohankie, superintendent of Washington park and general manager of the flower show, then made a few remarks in regard to the aims and purposes of the show. "Thirty years ago Denver was little more than a thriving western town, on the mountain edge of a great dry plain," declared Manager Kohankie. "And now our city has grown to be a garden spot of beauty. It is our aim to spread the fame of Denver far and wide as a great flower center by holding these annual shows. We want the love of flowers and green, growing things to become an integral part of every home in Denver. Certainly one of the ways to help secure our goal of 500,000 in 1930 is by making Denver a city of outstanding beauty."

Prominent Exhibits.

The showing of magnificent chrysanthemums entered by E. W. Burkhardt, of Glen Eyrie, Colo., was one of the outstanding features of the show, as it has always been. Among the other features of the show was a specimen of Madame Butterfly rose on a stem over six feet in length. It was produced at the greenhouses of the Park Floral Co., Denver. A particularly fine group of cyclamens, was exhibited by C. F. Maler, who also showed a most artistic display of orchids. Using a bank of palms and rubber trees so arranged with running water as to represent a section of a tropical river bank, Mr. Maler arranged a number of growing orchids of different varieties in the crotches of a large moss-covered tree, showing how the orchids grow in their natural habitat. He received a cup for this exhibit.

Among displays of foliage plants which aroused special interest was a new seedling coleus produced by John L. Russell, superintendent of City park. The display of foliage and ornamental plants shown by the Mauff Floral Co., Denver, was exceptionally good, and a specimen fern was the center of an admiring throng throughout the show. It was a specimen adiantum planted in an 18-inch tub, with fronds which measured from twenty-four to thirty inches in length.

The Booths.

A well arranged booth displayed a complete line of florists' supplies for the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co. The background of palms and ferns, with several baskets of chrysanthemums, made a fine showing. Decorated with hangings of old rose velvet and trimmed with gold braid, the booth of the America Flower Shop made an effective background for their display of baskets of Scott Key Roses, yellow and white chrysanthemums and pots of cyclamens and ferns. The showing of chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, pompons, ferns and palms by the Speth Floral Co., with its background of two large oil canvases depicting scenes of old English homesteads, gave one the impression of being in a well kept old English garden.

One of the largest single displays in the show was that of the City park greenhouses, of which John L. Russell is superintendent. This display included a large showing of potted chrysanthemums, pompons, begonias, palms and foliage plants, all of which are grown only for use in decoration of civic buildings and offices and for special civic occasions. An especially interesting plant was the South American ceshoui, a yellow-flowering plant, which resembles the cineraria in form and shape of leaf, but has a smooth leaf of dark green color. This plant has been successfully grown outdoors by Mr. Russell and will be carried outdoors throughout the winter.

The Crown Hill Florists showed a large assortment of chrysanthemums and pompons in their booth, which was constructed entirely of bamboo rods and decorated with Japanese lanterns and umbrellas.

Retailers' Displays Attractive.

George H. Cooper, on his display stand, the floor of which was covered with oak leaves, showed a wonderful assortment of basket arrangements of chrysanthemums.

A beautiful hand bouquet and a bridal bouquet were the features of the display of the Alpha Floral Co. Using a number of baskets of roses and chrysanthemums as a background, their features were well shown. The display stand itself was effectively decorated with green, royal purple and mahogany velvet runners.

The display table of D. S. Grimes' Sons showed a wonderfully large variety of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums which they produce.

Two large display tables were used to show the productions of the Elitch Gardens Co. One of the tables was devoted entirely to a display of their fine begonias. The other table showed examples of their productions in roses, chrysanthemums, carnations, cyclamens, poinsettias and foliage plants.

Fred C. Meyer, who specializes in the wholesale growing of fine cut flowers, displayed a large exhibit of roses, valley, carnations and chrysanthemums. His exhibit was well arranged and decorated with Scotch heather and cyclamens.

The artistic basket arrangements of the Fairmount Greenhouses effectively showed the different varieties of chrysanthemums which they produce. With readable name cards attached to each variety displayed, these made the neatest exhibit in the show.

The beautiful display of basket arrangements shown by the Park Floral Co. created much interest, and many favorable comments were uttered in regard to the artistic quality of the work. The dinner table, decorated with a beautiful floral centerpiece and set with a full dinner service, was one of the high spots of the show. The company's group of ornamental and foliage plants made a fine showing.

The Barteldes Seed Co., Denver, displayed a large number of carnations produced from their own stock.

The most artistic display booth of the entire show was that exhibited by Rockmont for Flowers, Inc. A narrow mahogany living room table, with a parchment-shaded floor lamp, at the side, was used as a centerpiece to display three different-sized basket arrangements. Grouped around this centerpiece was a number of larger baskets of chrysanthemums and roses. The background was composed of a white arch, after the Japanese style, decorated with lavender hangings and ferns.

Using royal purple velvet to cover their display table, the flower department of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co. exhibited fine basket arrangements of roses and chrysanthemums.

New Roses.

One feature of the Denver flower show this year was the large number of new varieties of roses that were shown through the courtesy of several eastern growers. America, the new pink rose of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., was favorably received by the florists of Denver and the visiting florists from the state of Colorado.

The condition in which Commonwealth, the new pink rose of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., arrived after being on the road for four days was splendid and proves that this rose will make an excellent shipper, which, outside of its other qualities, should make it a favorite with the trade.

Annie Laurie, the new rose of the Ophelia type exhibited by the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., was also favorably received. Certificates of merit were awarded by the judges to each of these three new varieties.

In the display of the Roberts Rose Co., Englewood, there were several new varieties of roses, which created great interest. Principal among these was the Souvenir de Claudius Pernet and Chervenka's Honeymoon, an orange variety. Two varieties which were produced by John T. Roberts, Jr., and which as yet are unnamed were also on display. One of these is a yellow rose after the type of Honeymoon and the other a sport of Premier, having a much deeper color than Premier. Several blooms of Red Columbia were also shown by Mr. Roberts. The Fairmount Greenhouses had on display a large vase of the new deep pink, Columbia.

Trophies.

First in importance among the ten or more trophies which were competed for this year was the mayor's cup, presented to the exhibitor of the twelve best mums in the show. E. W. Burkhardt, of Glen Eyrie, Colo., won this trophy, with the Oakes Home, of Denver, running a close second.

The next most important trophies were the Robert E. Speer memorial cup, offered by the Denver Civic and Commercial Association in honor of the late Mayor Speer, and the American Legion cup, offered by the Denver central committee of the legion. Both of these trophies are competed for each year and will be finally awarded to the exhibitor who has won them three times. This year the Speer memorial cup was awarded for the best centerpiece basket for a table seating twenty guests, the retail price of the piece not to exceed $35. It was won by the Park Floral Co. with a beautiful basket of red pompons. Last year the cup was won by the same exhibitor for the most artistic basket displayed. The Legion cup was awarded to the Park Floral Co. for the best basket of any kind of flowers, the retail price not to exceed $15 and featuring the national colors. The competition for these two trophies was keen, and the artistic work on all of the many entries gave the judges a real job to decide the winners.

Credit Due.

Great praise for the success of this year's show must be given to the following officials and committee members: Adam Kohankie, general manager; E. P. Neiman, of the Park Floral Co., secretary; M. E. Carter, of Kansas City, and Al. J. Reed, of the Morgan Floral Co., Fort Morgan, Colo., judges; Emil Glauber, of Denver, judges' clerk; C. R. Root, D. W. Thomas and P. L. Clarke, publicity committee; S. R. DeBoer, B. E. Gillis, Mrs. James Waring, Mrs. Adolph Coors, Jr., and D. W. Thomas, committee on show arrangements; M. W. Pesman, Mrs. Lute Wilcox, Mrs. John McDonough, P. L. Clarke and D. W. Thomas, program committee; Mrs. James Waring, finance committee; A. Mauff, Louis Kintzele and D. W. Thomas, committee on awards, and E. P. Neiman and D. W. Thomas, membership committee.

Awards.

The list of awards is as follows:

CHRYSANTHEMUM PLANTS.

Plant with not less than 4-foot stem—Park Floral Co., first.
Twelve plants, one variety and color—Park Floral Co., first.
Twenty-five single-stemmed plants—Park Floral Co., first.
Twelve pompom plants, any color—D. S. Grimes' Sons, first; C. F. Maler, second.
Twelve single or anemone plants, any one color—Park Floral Co., first.

MISCELLANEOUS PLANTS.

Group of ornamental and foliage plants—Mauff Floral Co., first; Park Floral Co., second; C. F. Maler, third.
Specimen palm—Mauff Floral Co., first.
Specimen fern, any variety—Mauff Floral Co., first; Park Floral Co., second; Crown Hill Florist, third.
Specimen orchid plant—C. F. Maler, first.
Specimen, any other ornamental plant—Mauff Floral Co., first.
Twelve begonias, Gloire de Lorraine type—Park Floral Co., first.
Twelve begonias, any other variety—Crown Hill Florist, first; Park Floral Co., second.
Twelve cyclamens—C. F. Maler, first; Park Floral Co., second; Ben Boldt, third.
Twelve Primula obconica—Park Floral Co., first.
Six ferns—Mauff Floral Co., first; C. F. Maler, second; Crown Hill Florist, third.
Twelve, any other blooming or foliage plants—Park Floral Co., first; C. F. Maler, second; Mauff Floral Co., third.

CUT CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Twenty-five blooms, not less than five varieties—Park Floral Co., first; D. S. Grimes' Sons, second.
Twenty-five blooms, any one variety—Crown Hill Florist, first; Park Floral Co., second.
Twelve blooms, White Turner—E. W. Burkhardt, first; Oakes Home, second; C. F. Maler, third.
Twelve blooms, Yellow Turner—C. F. Maler, first; Park Floral Co., second; Ben Boldt, third.
Twelve blooms, Louisa Pickett—D. S. Grimes' Sons, first; E. W. Burkhardt, second; Park Floral Co., third.
Twelve blooms, any other white—Park Floral Co., first.
Twelve pink blooms—E. W. Burkhardt, first; Crown Hill Florist, second; D. S. Grimes' Sons, third.
Twelve blooms, any other color—D. S. Grimes' Sons, first; E. W. Burkhardt, second; Crown Hill Florist, third.
Twenty-five sprays pompons, any color—Crown Hill Florist, first; D. S. Grimes' Sons, second; Park Floral Co., third.
Twenty-five sprays single or anemone pompons—Crown Hill Florist, first; Park Floral Co., second; Mauff Floral Co., third.
Twenty-five sprays of any new variety pompon—Park Floral Co., first.

CUT ROSES.

Twenty-five Columbia—Roberts Rose Co., first; Park Floral Co., second; Mauff Floral Co., third.
Twenty-five Premier—Roberts Rose Co., first; Park Floral Co., second; Mauff Floral Co., third.
Twenty-five Ophelia—Roberts Rose Co., first; Mauff Floral Co., second.
Twenty-five Milady—Park Floral Co., first; Mauff Floral Co., second.
Twenty-five Francis Scott Key—Roberts Rose Co., first.
Twenty-five Golden Ophelia—Roberts Rose Co., first; Park Floral Co., second.
Twenty-five Mrs. Charles Russell—Trimmer & Son, first; Mauff Floral Co., second.

Twenty-five White Killarney—Park Floral Co., first; Mauff Floral Co., second.
Twenty-five Madame Butterfly—Roberts Rose Co., first; Park Floral Co., second.
Twenty-five Angelus—Roberts Rose Co., first; Park Floral Co., second.
Twenty-five Pilgrim—Mauff Floral Co., first; Roberts Rose Co., second.
Twenty-five, any other variety—Roberts Rose Co., first with American Legion, and second with White Ophelia.

SHOW AT SCRANTON.

The second annual fall show held at Scranton, Pa., was an even more marked success than its predecessor. The local florists gave it strong support, displaying flowers and plants of fine quality and erecting booths to show the the orchids grow in their natural habitat. He received a cup for this exhibit.

Among displays of foliage plants which aroused special interest was a new seedling coleus produced by John L. Russell, superintendent of City park. The display of foliage and ornamental plants shown by the Mauff Floral Co., Denver, was exceptionally good, and a specimen fern was the center of an admiring throng throughout the show. It was a specimen adiantum planted in an 18-inch tub, with fronds which measured from twenty-four to thirty inches in length.

The Booths.

A well arranged booth displayed a complete line of florists' supplies for the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co. The background of palms and ferns, with several baskets of chrysanthemums, made a fine showing. Decorated with hangings of old rose velvet and trimmed with gold braid, the booth of the America Flower Shop made an effective background for their display of baskets of Scott Key Roses, yellow and white chrysanthemums and pots of cyclamens and ferns. The showing of chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, pompons, ferns and palms by the Speth Floral Co., with its background of two large oil canvases depicting scenes of old English homesteads, gave one the impression of being in a well kept old English garden.

One of the largest single displays in the show was that of the City park greenhouses, of which John L. Russell is superintendent. This display included a large showing of potted chrysanthemums, pompons, begonias, palms and foliage plants, all of which are grown only for use in decoration of civic buildings and offices and for special civic occasions. An especially interesting plant was the South American ceshoni, a yellow-flowering plant, which resembles the cineraria in form and shape of leaf, but has a smooth leaf of lark green color. This plant has been successfully grown outdoors by Mr. Russell and will be carried outdoors throughout the winter.

The Crown Hill Florists showed a

large assortment of chrysanthemums and pompons in their booth, which was constructed entirely of bamboo rods and decorated with Japanese lanterns and umbrellas.

Retailers' Displays Attractive.

George H. Cooper, on his display stand, the floor of which was covered with oak leaves, showed a wonderful assortment of basket arrangements of chrysanthemums.

A beautiful hand bouquet and a bridal bouquet were the features of the display of the Alpha Floral Co. Using a number of baskets of roses and chrysanthemums as a background, their features were well shown. The display stand itself was effectively decorated with green, royal purple and mahogany velvet runners.

The display table of D. S. Grimes' Sons showed a wonderfully large variety of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums which they produce.

Two large display tables were used to show the productions of the Elitch Gardens Co. One of the tables was devoted entirely to a display of their fine begonias. The other table showed examples of their productions in roses, chrysanthemums, carnations, cyclamens, poinsettias and foliage plants.

Fred C. Meyer, who specializes in the wholesale growing of fine cut flowers, displayed a large exhibit of roses, valley, carnations and chrysanthemums. His exhibit was well arranged and decorated with Scotch heather and cyclamens.

The artistic basket arrangements of the Fairmount Greenhouses effectively showed the different varieties of chrysanthemums which they produce. With readable name cards attached to each variety displayed, these made the neatest exhibit in the show.

The beautiful display of basket arrangements shown by the Park Floral Co. created much interest, and many favorable comments were uttered in regard to the artistic quality of the work. The dinner table, decorated with a beautiful floral centerpiece and set with a full dinner service, was one of the high spots of the show. The company's group of ornamental and foliage plants made a fine showing.

The Barteldes Seed Co., Denver, displayed a large number of carnations produced from their own stock.

The most artistic display booth of the entire show was that exhibited by Rockmont for Flowers, Inc. A narrow mahogany living room table, with a parchment-shaded floor lamp at the side, was used as a centerpiece to display three different-sized basket arrangements. Grouped around this centerpiece was a number of larger baskets of chrysanthemums and roses. The background was composed of a white arch, after the Japanese style, decorated with lavender hangings and ferns.

Using royal purple velvet to cover their display table, the flower department of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co. exhibited fine basket arrangements of roses and chrysanthemums.

New Roses.

One feature of the Denver flower show this year was the large number of new varieties of roses that were shown through the courtesy of several eastern growers. America, the new pink rose of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., was favorably received by the florists of Denver and the visiting florists from the state of Colorado.

The condition in which Commonwealth, the new pink rose of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., arrived after being on the road for four days was splendid and proves that this rose will make an excellent shipper, which, outside of its other qualities, should make it a favorite with the trade.

Annie Laurie, the new rose of the Ophelia type exhibited by the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., was also favorably received. Certificates of merit were awarded by the judges to each of these three new varieties.

In the display of the Roberts Rose Co., Englewood, there were several new varieties of roses, which created great interest. Principal among these was the Souvenir de Claudius Pernet and Chervenka's Honeymoon, an orange variety. Two varieties which were produced by John T. Roberts, Jr., and which as yet are unnamed were also on display. One of these is a yellow rose after the type of Honeymoon and the other a sport of Premier, having a much deeper color than Premier. Several blooms of Red Columbia were also shown by Mr. Roberts. The Fairmount Greenhouses had on display a large vase of the new deep pink, Columbia.

Trophies.

First in importance among the ten or more trophies which were competed for this year was the mayor's cup, presented to the exhibitor of the twelve best mums in the show. E. W. Burkhardt, of Glen Eyrie, Colo., won this trophy, with the Oakes Home, of Denver, running a close second.

The next most important trophies were the Robert E. Speer memorial cup, offered by the Denver Civic and Commercial Association in honor of the late Mayor Speer, and the American Legion cup, offered by the Denver central committee of the legion. Both of these trophies are competed for each year and will be finally awarded to the exhibitor who has won them three times. This year the Speer memorial cup was awarded for the best centerpiece basket for a table seating twenty guests, the retail price of the piece not to exceed $35. It was won by the Park Floral Co. with a beautiful basket of red pompons. Last year the cup was won by the same exhibitor for the most artistic basket displayed. The Legion cup was awarded to the Park Floral Co. for the best basket of any kind of flowers, the retail price not to exceed $15 and featuring the national colors. The competition for these two trophies was keen, and the artistic work on all of the many entries gave the judges a real job to decide the winners.

Credit Due.

Great praise for the success of this year's show must be given to the following officials and committee members: Adam Kohankie, general manager; E. P. Neiman, of the Park Floral Co., secretary; M. E. Carter, of Kansas City, and Al. J. Reed, of the Morgan Floral Co., Fort Morgan, Colo., judges; Emil Glauber, of Denver, judges' clerk; C. R. Root, D. W. Thomas and P. L. Clarke, publicity committee; S. R. DeBoer, B. E. Gillis, Mrs. James Waring, Mrs. Adolph Coors, Jr., and D. W. Thomas, committee on show arrangements; M. W. Pesman, Mrs. Lute Wilcox, Mrs. John McDonough, P. L. Clarke and D. W. Thomas, program committee; Mrs. James Waring, finance committee; A. Mauff, Louis Kintzele and D. W. Thomas, committee on awards, and E. P. Neiman and D. W. Thomas, membership committee.

READING, PA.

Flower Show a Marked Success.

So successful was the show staged by Reading florists the week ending with Armistice day that they already are considering plans for next year's exhibition. This autumn's exhibition, which was the first held in several years, met with marked success. The Reading florists hope that within the next few years such exhibitions will be regarded as an annual institution.

Friday, November 10, broke all attendance records. It was F. T. D. day, and many representatives of the trade were present from Philadelphia, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Pottsville, Harrisburg, Bloomsburg, Shiremanstown, Lancaster and other places. In the afternoon Edward Sceery, of Paterson, N. J., president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, gave an interesting talk before the members of the trade. He was introduced by J. C. Bauder, president of the Reading Florists' Association, who also presented Mr. Vorkiller, of Bethlehem; Arthur Nissen, of Philadelphia; Guy Paine, of Pottsville; B. F. Barr, of Lancaster; William J. Uttley, of Harrisburg, and T. J. Nolan, of Scranton. They also made remarks.

The visiting florists were tendered a dinner in the banquet hall of Odd Fellows' hall. The hosts and hostesses included Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bauder, H. C. Huesman, J. Stanley Giles, Wilbert Abel, William Luppold, Paul Bachman, Jr., Harry Heck, Layton Butts, John Downing, William Kern, Fulmer Lauck, Alfred Lunden, Ferdinand Heck, Fred Frank and A. W. Masser.

Other out-of-town guests were William Sykes, William Eschem, John Horne, Mr. and Mrs. Keeney, William Girvin, D. K. Kehone, Henry F. Michell, Charles Grakelow and W. A. Rupp.

The speeches were enjoyed and a most congenial evening was spent.

The Awards.

The sweepstakes prize for winning the largest number of ribbons went to Holm & Olson, St. Paul. Most of the awards were given in last week's Review; the later ones made by Judges W. J. Smyth, Philip Breitmeyer and J. J. Hess were as follows:

One hundred white carnations, any variety—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Will Bros., second.

Fifty Laddie—Holm & Olson, first; John Sten, Red Wing, second.

One hundred light pink carnations, any variety except Laddie—Will Bros., first.

Twenty-five sprays Bouvardia, any other variety or color—Holm & Olson, first.

Vase twenty-five spikes mignonette—J. A. Weber, first.

Radio Message.

Among the many publicity features arranged to promote interest in the show was a radio message from the Minneapolis news station. At the request of the flower show committee, the following message was sent broadcast by radio by C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, Tuesday evening, November 14, from the north radio station, Minneapolis, which sends out a great many news items each evening between 6 and 7:

To all the people and especially those of the Twin Cities and Hennepin county, I send this message to tell you that you have here in Minneapolis, housed under the expansive roof of the Kenwood Armory, one of the finest horticultural displays ever attempted in America. Visitors came hundreds of miles to see this grand exhibition and how fortunate you are who are in this vicinity to have this beautiful show brought to your very doors!

Come and see the new rose, Galli-Curci! Also, the wonderful display of roses, the gorgeous chrysanthemums at their best, and the classic arrangement of flowers as you would love to see them.

One of the grand features of this show is the sunken garden, a feature alone worth coming to see. This garden was put in by the courtesy of the park commissioners, guided by that magic hand of the superintendent of parks, Theodore Wirth. It is a sight to behold and one that will long be remembered.

Set aside a few hours of your time to visit this show, to show your appreciation of what has been done by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society, the Minnesota State Florists' Association, the Twin Cities Florists' Club, the park commissioners and exhibitors from distant points.

Come and spend a few hours among the maze of flowers and stroll through the gardens in an atmosphere of sunshine and happiness that will repay you.

TOPEKA FLOWER SHOW.

More than 25,000 people from Topeka and towns within a radius of thirty

AT TWIN CITIES

TWIN CITIES SHOW SUCCESS.

Large Attendance.

The Minneapolis flower show closed Sunday night, November 19, after a highly successful week in point of attendance. In spite of the rainy weather interfering on three days, 30,000 people attended. It was thought best to extend the time of closing from Thursday, November 16, to Sunday night, November 19, because of bad weather early in the week. About 2,200 people visited the show on the closing Sunday afternoon and evening. Saturday forenoon, November 18, school children accompanied by their teachers were admitted free. About 500 took advantage of this offer and saw the show. The boys from the disabled soldiers' hospitals and from some of the charitable institutions of the city were admitted the same forenoon.

The closing Saturday and Sunday each lady was presented with a chrysanthemum or rose, and Sunday evening the cut flowers and all flowers from the park board exhibit were sent to the hospitals.

The people of the Twin Cities who saw the show were most enthusiastic in regard to it, and it will be much easier to put over another show in the near future. The newspapers gave liberal space. Something over 100 columns of news material were used, in preparation for the show and during the show. The success of the show can probably be laid pretty largely to the advance sale of tickets. This gave a working fund and insured against the lack of attendance on rainy days.

One noticeable feature of the show was the large number of the wealthier class of the Twin Cities who attended the show. It was noted by one who has had much experience in handling shows that more of the wealthy people seemed to be interested in this than in any other show which has been held in the Twin Cities. A large proportion of the people spent some time in the balcony, viewing the exhibits from above and listening to an especially good orchestra, which played both afternoon and evening. Only high-grade music was played during the week. A large number of out-of-town visitors attended the show on the early days of the week; all spoke highly of it and in some cases interested their townspeople in making a visit to the Twin Cities to see the show.

Arrangement Wins Praise.

In commenting on the exhibition, C. C. Pollworth, whose extensive experience has included many large flower shows, said: "While not, perhaps, on so large a scale as the national shows, it was a most complete show for this season of the year. The general arrangement was wonderful and a credit to the management. All groups of plants, both flowering and decorative, were arranged most effectively. Also, all the cut blooms were staged in such a way that they showed up in most attractive fashion. A great deal of credit should be given the Twin Cities' florists for the way they worked together. The wonderful sunken garden put in by Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, was a revelation; a feature of this kind would be a great thing for a national show. It was entirely unique. Altogether, this was a show worth coming a long way to see."

The decorations of the armory were much admired. A carload of smilax came from Chas. S. Lee & Co., Glenwood, Ala., for the festoons overhead.

The banquet Monday evening, November 13, was well attended, 168 being present. Many florists from out of town timed their visit to include this event.

miles attended the flower show held at Topeka, Kan., Thursday and Friday, November 9 and 10, in the building of the W. H. Imes Motor Car Co., at Eleventh street and Kansas avenue. The entire show room was attractively decorated with palms, baskets of cut flowers, potted plants and ferneries filled with mum plants, and the display of C. E. Hubbard was prominently placed in the center of the show room. Fancy table decorations, wedding decorations, brides' bouquets and telegraph delivery service were given prominent places.

Among the table decorations was a crystal wedding display composed of white roses, carnations and alyssum. The center of the table held a cut glass candle holder. A bride's bouquet was made of white carnations, roses and lilies of the valley. A light blue silk ribbon added color to the delicate flowers. There was also a golden wedding decoration, which attracted much attention.

Two small dolls dressed to represent the bride and bridegroom marching down the aisle hand in hand, attracted the visitors. The decorations for this exhibit were entirely of yellow mums, while the aisle was executed in gold lace.

The space which the show occupied was about 75x100 feet. The Western Union Telegraph Co. staged a table containing advertising matter, with an operator to show the people how it is possible to send flowers by wire. There were also reminders for births, birthday parties, wedding anniversaries and hospital decorations.

Telegrams of congratulations were received from Albert Pochelon, secretary, and Edward Sceery, president of the F. T. D.; S. S. Pennock, president of the S. A. F.; Louis Flindt, president, and Loyd C. Bunch, secretary of the Kansas State Florists' Association.

Firms exhibiting are Hubbard Garden Co., C. E. Hubbard, Hayes Floral Co., Frank Sachs, Topeka Floral Co., Rosery, Roland Kreig, Thomas Kesham, Ed. Bass and Mrs. J. E. Lord.

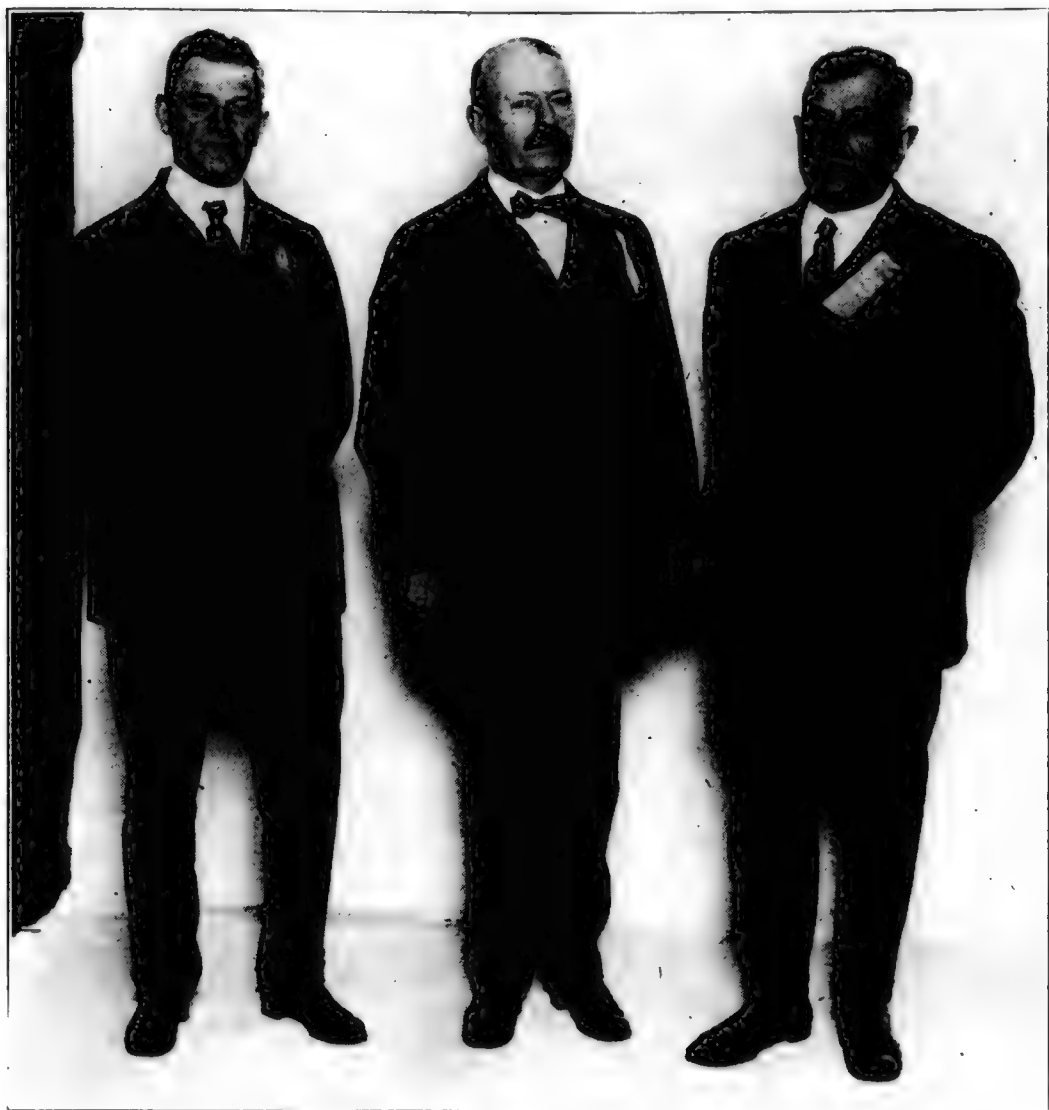

MUM SHOW AT PROVIDENCE.

Largely Attended.

The annual fall show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the armory November 17 to 20, at Providence. Coöperating societies were the Rhode Island Commercial Flower Growers' Association, the Rhode Island Poultry Association, the Rhode Island Fruit Growers' Association, the state board of agriculture, and the Rhode Island Market Gardeners' Association. There were fine educational displays from the Rhode Island State College, the Rhode Island Farm Bureau, etc. The combined displays filled the entire armory and attracted an attendance of more than 100,000 people.

For a large group of flowering and foliage plants, the Westminster Greenhouses won over two other competitors with a fine display of palms, ferns and mums. Cibotiums were used to good advantage. John S. Doig, superintendent for F. S. Peck, Barrington, R. I., was second. His group contained a fine lot of mums, standard heliotropes and geraniums, but was lacking in foliage plants.

For a circular group, Scott the Florist had a charming display, artistically arranged; a low, white-painted fence enclosed it, and ferns and berried plants and sprays of ilex were tastefully used. Hampers, baskets and single specimens of mums were pleasingly arranged among palms and other foliage plants.

Some of the Winners.

John S. Doig had the best chrysanthemums in pots and was second for specimen orchid, with a fine Calanthe Veitchii; he also had a fine group of calanthes and cypripediums.

The Butler hospital in its display had some fine winter-flowering begonias of the English type, and with a splendidly flowered Cypripedium insigne took first for best specimen orchid.

The nursery groups were a fine feature at this show. Too much cannot be said in praise of the display from Daniel E. Clarke, proprietor of the Red Oak Nurseries, Fiskeville, R. I. It was extensive, most pleasingly arranged and contained not only a fine collection of evergreens, but specimens of many deciduous trees, shrubs and fruit trees; also, boxes of young rooted plants, and boxes and bundles of mature wood cuttings, shrub fruits and about everything that could make such a display varied and pleasing. This secured the gold medal. Second prize went to L. F. Kinney, Wakefield, who featured rhododendrons and kalmias in his group.

For the best bridal shower bouquet, the Colonial Flower Shoppe captured first with a pleasing arrangement of gardenias and valley. Johnston Bros. took second and Eugene McCarron, third. Each had excellent bouquets of white roses and valley.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe led for the best basket of mums; Johnston Bros. were second and Eugene McCarron, third.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe won for the best mantel decoration and also had a fine collection of old-fashioned bouquets and various floral arrangements.

Mum Classes.

For thirty vases of mums, incurved, ten blooms of each, the Warwick Neck Greenhouses, Warwick, R. I., were first; John McRae was second.

For thirty vases of mums, reflexed, John McRae took first and John S. Doig, second.

For three vases of any variety not included in the other classes, the Warwick Neck Greenhouses were first and John S. Doig, second.

For a vase of white, first and second went to John McRae. He took first and second also for a vase of yellow.

For six blooms of any new variety, John S. Doig took first with splendid Pink Turner; John McRae was second.

For twelve White Turner, Warwick Neck Greenhouses were first and John S. Doig, second.

Carnations.

Carnations were not so numerous as usual. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., secured a gold medal for the best general display and also captured first for light pink, with Morning Glow; first for dark pink; first for scarlet; first public their wares. Description of the show was given in these columns last week. Here appear a general view of the exhibition and a picture of the booth of B. E. & J. T. Cokely, who were energetic in show work. And the trade at Scranton is already talking of an even better display next year.

Radio Message.

Among the many publicity features arranged to promote interest in the show was a radio message from the Minneapolis news station. At the request of the flower show committee, the following message was sent broadcast by radio by C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, Tuesday evening, November 14, from the north radio station, Minneapolis, which sends out a great many news items each evening between 6 and 7:

To all the people and especially those of the Twin Cities and Hennepin county, I send this message to tell you that you have here in Minneapolis, housed under the expansive roof of the Kenwood Armory, one of the finest horticultural displays ever attempted in America. Visitors come hundreds of miles to see this grand exhibition and how fortunate you are who are in this vicinity to have this beautiful show brought to your very doors!

Come and see the new rose, Galli-Curci. Also, the wonderful display of roses, the gorgeous chrysanthemums at their best, and the classic arrangement of flowers as you would love to see them.

One of the grand features of this show is the sunken garden, a feature alone worth coming to see. This garden was put in by the courtesy of the park commissioners, guided by that magic hand of the superintendent of parks, Theodore Wirth. It is a sight to behold and one that will long be remembered.

Set aside a few hours of your time to visit this show, to show your appreciation of what has been done by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society, the Minnesota State Florists' Association, the Twin Cities Florists' Club, the park commissioners and exhibitors from distant points.

Come and spend a few hours among the maze of flowers and stroll through the gardens in an atmosphere of sunshine and happiness that will repay you.

AT TWIN CITIES

TWIN CITIES SHOW SUCCESS.

Large Attendance.

The Minneapolis flower show closed Sunday night, November 19, after a highly successful week in point of attendance. In spite of the rainy weather interfering on three days, 30,000 people attended. It was thought best to extend the time of closing from Thursday, November 16, to Sunday night, November 19, because of bad weather early in the week. About 2,200 people visited the show on the closing Sunday afternoon and evening. Saturday forenoon, November 18, school children accompanied by their teachers were admitted free. About 500 took advantage of this offer and saw the show. The boys from the disabled soldiers' hospitals and from some of the charitable institutions of the city were admitted the same forenoon.

The closing Saturday and Sunday each lady was presented with a chrysanthemum or rose, and Sunday evening the cut flowers and all flowers from the park board exhibit were sent to the hospitals.

The people of the Twin Cities who saw the show were most enthusiastic in regard to it, and it will be much easier to put over another show in the near future. The newspapers gave liberal space. Something over 100 columns of news material were used, in preparation for the show and during the show. The success of the show can probably be laid pretty largely to the advance sale of tickets. This gave a working fund and insured against the lack of attendance on rainy days.

One noticeable feature of the show was the large number of the wealthier class of the Twin Cities who attended the show. It was noted by one who has had much experience in handling shows that more of the wealthy people seemed to be interested in this than in any other show which has been held in the Twin Cities. A large proportion of the people spent some time in the balcony, viewing the exhibits from above and listening to an especially good orchestra, which played both afternoon and evening. Only high-grade music was played during the week. A large number of out-of-town visitors attended the show on the early days of the week; all spoke highly of it and in some cases interested their townspeople in making a visit to the Twin Cities to see the show.

Arrangement Wins Praise.

In commenting on the exhibition, C. C. Pollworth, whose extensive experience has included many large flower shows, said: "While not, perhaps, on so large a scale as the national shows, it was a most complete show for this season of the year. The general arrangement was wonderful and a credit to the management. All groups of plants, both flowering and decorative, were arranged most effectively. Also, all the cut blooms were staged in such a way that they showed up in most attractive fashion. A great deal of credit should be given the Twin Cities' florists for the way they worked together. The wonderful sunken garden put in by Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, was a revelation; a feature of this kind would be a great thing for a national show. It was entirely unique. Altogether, this was a show worth coming a long way to see."

The decorations of the armory were much admired. A carload of smilax came from Chas. S. Lee & Co., Glenwood, Ala., for the festoons overhead.

The banquet Monday evening, November 13, was well attended, 168 being present. Many florists from out of town timed their visit to include this event.

miles attended the flower show held at Topeka, Kan., Thursday and Friday, November 9 and 10, in the building of the W. H. Imes Motor Car Co., at Eleventh street and Kansas avenue. The entire show room was attractively decorated with palms, baskets of cut flowers, potted plants and ferneries filled with mum plants, and the display of C. E. Hubbard was prominently placed in the center of the show room. Fancy table decorations, wedding decorations, brides' bouquets and telegraph delivery service were given prominent places.

Among the table decorations was a crystal wedding display composed of white roses, carnations and alyssum. The center of the table held a cut glass candle holder. A bride's bouquet was made of white carnations, roses and lilies of the valley. A light blue silk ribbon added color to the delicate flowers. There was also a golden wedding decoration, which attracted much attention.

Two small dolls dressed to represent the bride and bridegroom marching down the aisle hand in hand, attracted the visitors. The decorations for this exhibit were entirely of yellow mums, while the aisle was executed in gold lace.

The space which the show occupied was about 75x100 feet. The Western Union Telegraph Co. staged a table containing advertising matter, with an operator to show the people how it is possible to send flowers by wire. There were also reminders for births, birthday parties, wedding anniversaries and hospital decorations.

Telegrams of congratulations were received from Albert Pochelon, secretary, and Edward Sceery, president of the F. T. D.; S. S. Pennock, president of the S. A. F.; Louis Flindt, president, and Loyd C. Bunch, secretary of the Kansas State Florists' Association.

Firms exhibiting are Hubbard Garden Co., C. E. Hubbard, Hayes Floral Co., Frank Sachs, Topeka Floral Co., Rosery, Roland Kreig, Thomas Kesham, Ed. Bass and Mrs. J. E. Lord.

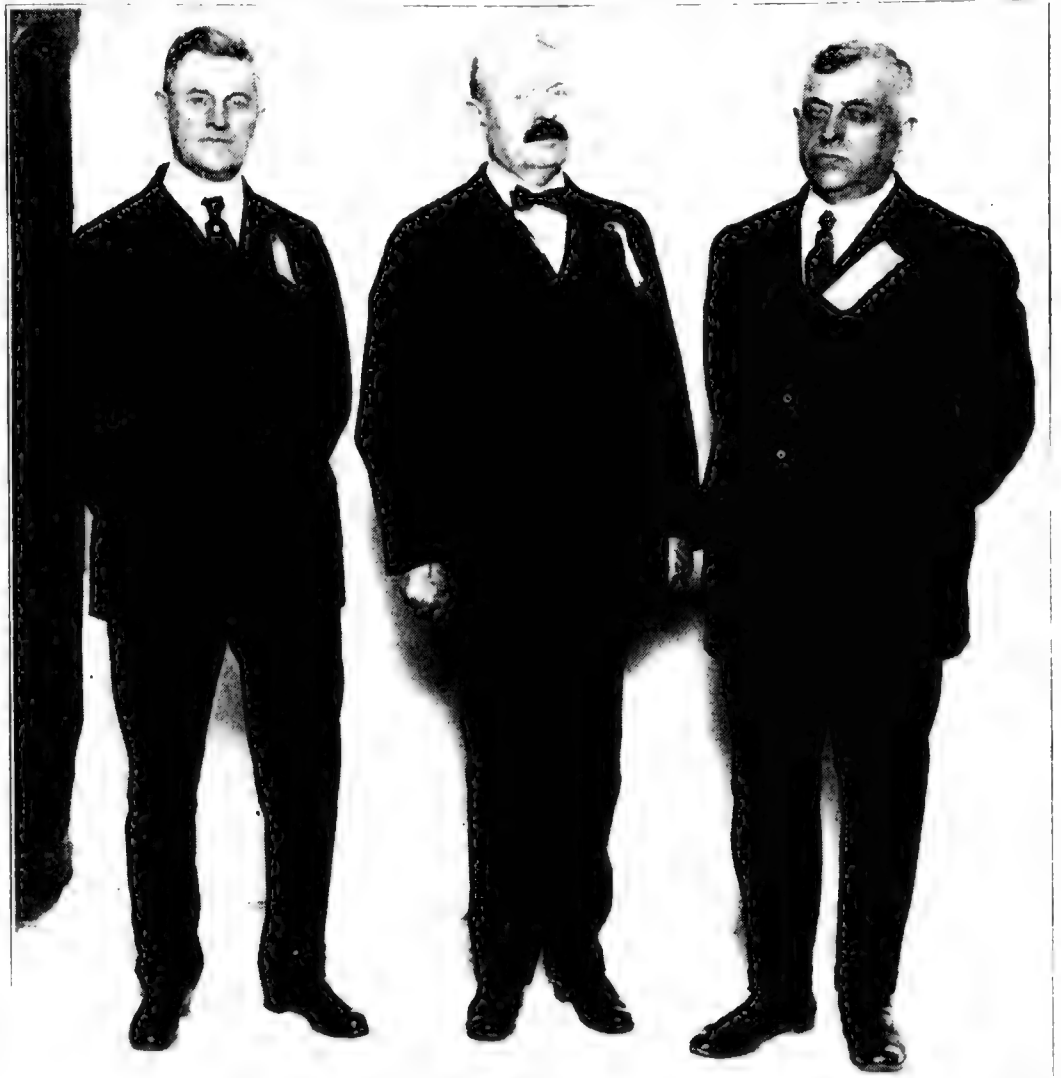

MUM SHOW AT PROVIDENCE.

Largely Attended.

The annual fall show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the armory November 17 to 20, at Providence. Coöperating societies were the Rhode Island Commercial Flower Growers' Association, the Rhode Island Poultry Association, the Rhode Island Fruit Growers' Association, the state board of agriculture, and the Rhode Island Market Gardeners' Association. There were fine educational displays from the Rhode Island State College, the Rhode Island Farm Bureau, etc. The combined displays filled the entire armory and attracted an attendance of more than 100,000 people.

For a large group of flowering and foliage plants, the Westminster Greenhouses won over two other competitors with a fine display of palms, ferns and mums. Cibotiums were used to good advantage. John S. Doig, superintendent for F. S. Peek, Barrington, R. I., was second. His group contained a fine lot of mums, standard heliotropes and geraniums, but was lacking in foliage plants.

For a circular group, Scott the Florist had a charming display, artistically arranged; a low, white-painted fence enclosed it, and ferns and berried plants and sprays of ilex were tastefully used. Hampers, baskets and single specimens of mums were pleasingly arranged among palms and other foliage plants.

Some of the Winners.

John S. Doig had the best chrysanthemums in pots and was second for specimen orchid, with a fine Calanthe Veitchii; he also had a fine group of calanthes and cypripediums.

The Butler hospital in its display had some fine winter-flowering begonias of the English type, and with a splendidly flowered Cypripedium insigne took first for best specimen orchid.

The nursery groups were a feature at this show. Too much cannot be said in praise of the display from Daniel E. Clarke, proprietor of the Red Oak Nurseries, Fiskeville, R. I. It was extensive, most pleasingly arranged and contained not only a fine collection of evergreens, but specimens of many deciduous trees, shrubs and fruit trees; also, boxes of young rooted plants, and boxes and bundles of mature wood cuttings, shrub fruits and about everything that could make such a display varied and pleasing. This secured the gold medal. Second prize went to L. F. Kinney, Wakefield, who featured rhododendrons and kalmias in his group.

For the best bridal shower bouquet, the Colonial Flower Shoppe captured first with a pleasing arrangement of gardenias and valley. Johnston Bros. took second and Eugene McCarron, third. Each had excellent bouquets of white roses and valley.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe led for the best basket of mums; Johnston Bros. were second and Eugene McCarron, third.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe won for the best mantel decoration and also had a fine collection of old-fashioned bouquets and various floral arrangements.

Mum Classes.

For thirty vases of mums, incurved, ten blooms of each, the Warwick Neck Greenhouses, Warwick, R. I., were first; John McRae was second.

For thirty vases of mums, reflexed, John McRae took first and John S. Doig second.

For three vases of any variety not included in the other classes, the Warwick Neck Greenhouses were first and John S. Doig, second.

For a vase of white, first and second went to John McRae. He took first and second also for a vase of yellow.

For six blooms of any new variety, John S. Doig took first with splendid Pink Turner; John McRae was second.

For twelve White Turner, Warwick Neck Greenhouses were first and John S. Doig, second.

Carnations.

Carnations were not so numerous as usual. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., secured a gold medal for the best general display and also captured first for light pink, with Morning Glow; first for dark pink; first for scarlet; first for any new variety, with Hope Henshaw; second for white, with Thomas C. Joy.

Warwick Neck Greenhouses were first for white, with fine White Enchantress, and second for light pink.

John Macrae was first for yellow, with Maine Sunshine, and second for dark pink.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed pompon mums, among them being Sarah Townsend, Edna Mainwaring, Betty Watkins, Julia Nicholson, Governor Lake and November Gold. There was a grand display of fruits and vegetables, which formed one of the great features of a splendid exhibition.

HOOSIERS HOLD MUM SHOWS.

The firms of H. O. Meikel, at Frankfort, Ind., and Meikel & Warner, at Noblesville, Ind., recently staged chrysanthemum shows which mark progress in the trade at these places. The event at Noblesville was held November 4 and 5, and at Frankfort November 11 and 12. The arrangements for both were practically the same, roses and winter bouquets being shown with the handsome Japanese flowers. In Noblesville some 1,600 people called to inspect the flowers, and in Frankfort the number went a little above this. Souvenir carnations and roses were given to the visitors.

Chrysanthemums on display included Chadwick and William Turner, among the large-flowered varieties, and many kinds of pompons. An excerpt from a Frankfort newspaper says: "The chrysanthemums stood almost six feet in height, the stems strong and sturdy, bearing at their tops great balls of soft, flowery petals fully eight inches in diameter."

The roses shown were Ophelia, Columbia, Premier and Hoosier Beauty. The winter bouquets were many and varied in form, being the handiwork of Mrs. Meikel.

Pink—Iowa State College, first; Vaughan's Seed Store, second.

Red—Vaughan's Seed Store, first.

Any other variety—Vaughan's Seed Store, first.

Decorative Plants in Pots.

For decorative plants in pots or tubs the following awards were made:

Three specimen palms—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; Wilcox, Florist, second.

Collection of ferns—O. H. Herman, first; Mrs. O. Stevens, second; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, third.

Twenty-five cyclamens in 8-inch pots—Greeve Floral Co., first; F. L. Lainson, second; C. H. Hargadine, third.

Cyclamen in 5-inch and 6-inch pots—Greeve Floral Co., first; F. L. Lainson, second; Mrs. O. Stevens, third.

Show on Credit Side.

The flower show as a whole was a success. All in all, it was a well balanced show and many report it the best of its size. The peculiar part of the show was that the firms which have been exhibiting and winning at the Nebraska fair each year failed even to make an entry. Competition was especially keen and close in the cyclamen class.

The chrysanthemum showing was not up to standard, as everyone was backward, feeling that the other fellow had better stock, and after the growers came to the show, they were sorry they did not bring along some of their blooms. Judges of the show were Edward Williams, of Grand Island, Neb., and Irwin Frey, of Lincoln, Neb.

Out-of-town visitors were Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; Grover May, York, Neb.; T. V. Wee, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago; Floyd Sims, Marysville, Kan.; D. S. Geddis, St. Louis; Charles Green, Fremont, Neb.; James Novak, St. Joseph, Mo.; Dr. B. W. Murphy, St. Joseph, and Mr. Simanton, Falls City, Neb.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed November 15 against Maurice Fuld, Inc., dealer in seeds and bulbs, at 7 West Forty-fifth street, by Henry Schob, creditor, for $1,901; John C. Rankin Co., $1,000, and Henry G. Eckhoff, $33. Judge A. N. Hand appointed Joseph P. McDonough receiver under $1,000 bond. It is stated the liabilities are about $20,000 and assets about $3,500.

Louisville, Ky.—Mrs. E. S. Iring, who bought from H. G. Walker the shop, name and good-will of the F. Walker Co. two years ago, was adjudged bankrupt November 17. At the sale of assets held that day the store was bought in by the former owner, who was the largest creditor, $800 being due him for rent and over $4,000 on open account. Mrs. Iring's liabilities were about $14,000 and her assets, about $9,000. H. G. Walker will resume operation of the F. Walker Co. store and put the business back on its former solid basis.

"IT DOES THE WORK."

It is interesting to note that advertisers located in the east find The Review an especially effective advertising medium. Like this:

Kindly stop my little ad of pansy plants in the Classified section. A little ad in The Review certainly does the work. We have sold out clean on pansy plants in a very short time. Thank you for your good service.—Guy L. Curchoe, Pottstown, Pa., November 14, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

IOWA'S PRIDE

MID-WEST SHOW SUCCESS.

Many Exhibit.

The fourth Mid-West Horticultural Exposition, under the auspices of the Iowa State Horticultural Society, with the Council Bluffs Chamber of Commerce coöperating, opened at Council Bluffs, Ia., November 13, and before its ending November 18, has proved itself a success. Those in charge were satisfied with the outcome and all look forward with interest to the next show. Likewise, the public was satisfied and the inability of the governor of Iowa to speak was about the only disappointment.

Among those having exhibits in the auditorium, where the show was held, were the Greeve Floral Co., Oskaloosa, Ia.; Grant Newport, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; F. L. Lainson, Council Bluffs; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs; Mrs. O. B. Stevens, Shenandoah, Ia.; O. H. Herman, Council Bluffs; Hess & Swoboda, Omaha; J. S. Wilson Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia.; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; Wilcox Florist, Council Bluffs; Charles Green, Fremont, Neb.; C. G. Hargadine, Florence, Neb.; Simanton & Pence, Falls City, Neb., and the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

Winners of Mum Awards.

Many entries were made in the chrysanthemum classes and those in charge of the division of plants and flowers, including Superintendent Blaine Wilcox and Assistant-superintendent Roy Kemble, of Ottumwa, were pleased with the spirit shown. Awards were made as follows:

Twelve William Turner—Greeve Floral Co., first; Iowa State College, second; Grant Newport, third.

Twelve white, any other variety—Iowa State College, first; F. L. Lainson, second; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, third.

Twelve yellow—Iowa State College, first; F. L. Lainson, second; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, third.

Twelve pink—F. L. Lainson, first; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, second; Grant Newport, third.

Twelve red—Iowa State College, first; F. L. Lainson, second.

Twenty-five Turner—Iowa State College, first. Twenty-five white, any other variety—Iowa State College, first; F. L. Lainson, second; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, third.

Twenty-five yellow—Iowa State College, first; F. L. Lainson, second; Greeve Floral Co., third. Twenty-five pink—Mrs. O. B. Stevens, Shenandoah, first; Iowa State College, second.

Twenty-five red—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first. Twenty-five pompons, white—Greeve Floral Co., first; Iowa State College, second.

Twenty-five pompons, yellow—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; F. L. Lainson, second; Greeve Floral Co., third.

Twenty-five pompons, pink—Greeve Floral Co., first.

Twenty-five pompons, any other color—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; Grant Newport, second. Fifty white—Iowa State College, first.

Fifty yellow—Iowa State College, first; F. L. Lainson, second; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, third.

Fifty any other color—Greeve Floral Co., first; Iowa State College, second.

Competitors for Rose Awards.

Those who competed for the rose awards had exhibits that were well worth coming a good many miles to see. The specimens shown were beautiful and showed careful culture. The awards in these classes were as follows:

Twenty-five American Beauty—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first.

Twenty-five Columbia—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; O. H. Herman, second; F. L. Lainson, third.

Twenty-five Mrs. Charles Russell—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first.

Twenty-five Premier—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; O. H. Herman, second.

Twenty-five Butterfly—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; O. H. Herman, second; F. L. Lainson, third.

Twenty-five Hoosier Beauty—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; O. H. Herman, second.

Twenty-five white—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, first; O. H. Herman, second.

Awards for Carnations.

Awards in the carnation classes were made as follows:

Fifty white—Hess & Swoboda, Omaha, first; Mrs. Stevens, second; J. S. Wilson Floral Co., third.

Fifty dark pink—Hess & Swoboda, first; Grant Newport, second; F. L. Lainson, third.

Fifty light pink—Hess & Swoboda, first.

Fifty red—Grant Newport, first; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, second; Hess & Swoboda, third.

One hundred, any variety—F. L. Lainson, first; J. F. Wilcox & Sons, second.

Mums in Pots.

Awards were made for chrysanthemums in pots as follows:

White—Iowa State College, first.

Yellow—Iowa State College, first; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, second.

BIG TIME AT NASHVILLE

TENNESSEE CONVENTION.

Closes at Nashville.

The convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, held last week in Nashville, Tenn., was a surprise to the members. A show and a good time were promised to the local society, but the most sanguine of the visitors did not foresee as large an exhibit as was staged. A number of good exhibits came in too late to be reported in last week's Review. In fact, the morning of the second day of the convention and show, every bit of the floor space of the show hall, 100x125 feet, was filled.

The association program outlined the convention as it was rendered, with the exception of Irving Gresham, of Atlanta, Ga.; E. H. Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; W. Murekal, with B. D. Kapteyn & Son, Sassenheim, Holland; A. M. Belle, of Holland, discussing subjects of timely importance in the place of J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill.; Edward Sceery, of Paterson, N. J.; W. F. Güde, of Washington, D. C., who sent telegrams announcing their inability to be present.

The members of the state association were enthusiastic over the success of the show, and are planning to stage an even better one at the meeting to be held next year at Knoxville. The association is not only one of the liveliest of the state associations in the country, but one of the largest, the membership having reached the 300 mark during this meeting. The policy of keeping the same man as secretary and treasurer of the society, and allowing him to be the active member of the board of directors during the interim between meetings, has enabled him to build up a strong society.

The spirit of good fellowship is evidenced in the Tennessee State Florists' Association and, as a result of its organization a few years ago, the members throughout the state are proving a great help to each other in a business way. The spirit of petty selfishness that used to be so evident in many places, has largely disappeared, and when one florist makes a discovery that means dollars and cents he is not slow to tell his brother florists in the state.

Questions on Bulbs.

Each year certain subjects seem to occupy the special interest of the society. This year the question of growing tulips, hyacinths and narcissi at home was the one that created greatest interest. Several florists stated that they had for several years been growing a considerable quantity of their bulbs and find that they not only forced as well as anything that can be imported, but that they are much earlier. Nashville florists, for instance, use as many of these bulbs as they ever used, and yet do not import more than a quarter as many as they did five or six years ago.

The Joy Floral Co. reports that it has been its custom for a number of years to plant out daffodils and jonquils that have been forced and use them for cut flowers for a year or two, and then force them again. Several others reported similar success.

All admit that hyacinth growing presents the most formidable problem, but at least two growers reported success, and it was significant that these were the only two who had made the effort. Several reported having experimented with lilies, and the consensus is that lilies can be produced, especially in the mountain districts of Tennessee, that are of high-grade quality.

Baum's Home of Flowers made an exhibit of five kinds of lily bulbs, grown in the open on the firm's place in Knoxville. They have been working into lily growing gradually for the past five years, and report now that they have five acres in this crop. This is probably the largest planting of lilies in the south, if not in the United States.

Exhibits.

The Joy Floral Co. showed large vases of its two new carnations, Thomas C. Joy and Natalie, both of which came in for favorable comment; but a bright Enchantress pink, unnamed seedling perhaps attracted more attention than either of these varieties, both because of its unusually fine color and its large size. When, on the last day of the show, the trade visited the leading greenhouses and parks of the city, this carnation again was a surprise, because of the wonderful crop of bloom it was showing in the greenhouses.

Mr. Moulter, in charge of Centennial park, exhibited tulip bulbs grown from small offsets in a small nursery in Centennial park. These bulbs had been grown for four generations in the park, and certainly were as fine as anyone ever could ask for. Centennial park is now growing practically all of its tulip bulbs.

Mr. Connel, regional vice-president of the American Iris Society, showed a set of lantern slides of the best of the newer varieties, and gave a talk on how these flowers may be used to advantage by the florist in bouquet and decoration work. A number of florists were interested, and expressed the determination to try out these flowers.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, made an exhibit of a complete line of its baskets, wreaths, chiffons, greens and other florists' accessories.

W. F. Richter, of Cullman, Ala., who has been breeding chrysanthemums for some time, sent an exhibit of four of his best. For purity of color his white Japanese was exceptionally good, although the flowers were not of unusual size.

The Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind., brought several cases of preserved autumn leaves, immortelles and other holiday goods.

The last day of the convention there was a crowd of people from morning until night about a great vase of America roses sent by E. G. Hill. These roses were of such unusual size and quality that the newspapers gave them due publicity and many people came to the show merely to see this rose. Mr. Hill exhibited also a number of unusually good chrysanthemums.

The A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, not only sent an exhibit of roses, carnations and other cut flowers, but showed a complete line of novelty baskets and other supplies. The exhibit of this firm was one of the largest from out of town.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, sent a complete line of palms, ferns, hydrangeas and other pot plants. This exhibit attracted much favorable comment among the trade.

The Purity Products Co., Nashville, made an exhibit of a new remedy for thrips, scale, aphids and other greenhouse pests, claiming it to be much superior to older remedies.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., exhibited some twelve or fifteen of their new chrysanthemums. The exhibit attracted a great deal of attention. It ran largely to varieties suited for pot plants, none of the large varieties being exhibited. Several of the anemone-flowered sorts received especially favorable comment for their perfection, both in form and size. For flowers that had been shipped so great a distance, they stood up beautifully during the show.

Lion & Co., of New York, made an exhibit of ribbons, chiffons and similar florists' accessories.

The William Murphy Co., Cincinnati, O., sent a good display of cut flowers, Ray Murphy himself coming with the display.

The American Bulb Co., Chicago, had a representative on the ground with a display of Dutch bulbs.

The J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind., made the most complete exhibit of crotons and other ornamental plants for window boxes and other indoor decorations that was made at the show.

The M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, had a booth well filled with a complete line of florists' accessories.

The Metcalfe Floral Co., Hopkinsville, Ky., made a fine display, which included practically all lines of cut flowers. The company exhibited two or three of the new Burpee creations in sweet peas, which were remarkable for their size and quality so early in the year; in fact, they compared favorably with the best we see even in the spring.

The Bristol Floral Co., Bristol, Tenn., showed a remarkably fine vase of Jonkheer J. L. Mock roses, as well as a good general line of cut flowers.

The following firms had well decorated booths: Lewis Haury, Jr., Haury & Sons, C. G. Green, McIntyre Floral Co., Geny Bros., C. C. Tritschler & Sons, Hudman Seed Co., all of Nashville; T. L. Metcalfe, Hopkinsville, Ky.; Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O.; W. L. Valentine & Sons, Crosby, Tenn.

The most noticeable feature of the show was the enthusiasm and good fellowship exhibited. The members came early and remained late. The evening of the first day, all went in a body as guests of the local florists to see a play at the Princess theater. The afternoon of the second day they were taken for an automobile trip through the better part of the city, through the city parks and to the larger greenhouses. On returning from this trip they were taken direct to the Golf and Country Club, where a banquet was served. After-dinner speech-making and a general good time was the order of the day, until it was necessary for many of the members to leave to catch their trains for home. F. B.

COLORADO BODY FORMED.

State Association Organized.

The beginning of a state-wide organization of everyone interested in or allied with the florists' trade was made at a banquet held at the Adams hotel, Denver, on the evening of Friday, November 17. Representative florists, with their wives and friends, were present from Sterling, Greeley, Colorado Springs, Denver, Loveland, Fort Collins, Boulder and Fort Morgan.

A few well chosen words of welcome to the visiting florists by John T. Roberts, Jr., of Denver, opened the banquet. During the evening the singing of old and new popular songs was led by Herbert Claussen, Harry Harlow, Fred Meyer and H. Trimmer, all of Denver. E. W. Burkhardt, of Colorado Springs, was tendered a rising vote of thanks for his enterprise in exhibiting his chrysanthemums at the recent St. Louis flower show and carrying away some of the major awards, thus advertising the quality of Colorado-grown flowers.

A constitution and by-laws prepared by L. A. Kintzele, of Denver, and J. E. Johnson, of Colorado Springs, were accepted by the meeting, and this acceptance, by order of the chair, constituted the formal organization of a Colorado State Florists' Association. The following officers were then elected: President, E. P. Neiman, Denver; first vice-president, J. E. Johnson, Colorado Springs; second vice-president, Carl Espelin, Fort Collins; secretary, Herbert Claussen, Denver; treasurer, Harry Harlow, Denver.

F. T. D. Unit.

Fourteen of the thirty-eight Colorado members of the F. T. D. met after the banquet and received a report from George H. Cooper, of Denver, on the recent Baltimore convention. Plans were then made for the immediate organization of a Colorado unit in accordance with the plans of the national association. These state units are being organized for the purpose of gathering data, which will be useful to the association as a whole and to the members as individuals. The following temporary officers were elected: Chairman, George H. Cooper, Denver; vice-chairman, J. Edward Johnson, Colorado Springs; secretary, E. S. Kennedy, Denver. Necessary committees will be appointed later. N. H. N.

MICHIGAN FLORISTS' MEETING.

At Ann Arbor.

The annual meeting, held in conjunction with a flower show, of the Michigan State Florists' Association at Ann Arbor, November 10 and 11, was the most successful the organization has had. In consequence of the good year the association has just passed through, the present officers were reelected for the ensuing year: President, S. W. Coggan, Battle Creek; vice-president, Henry Smith, Grand Rapids; secretary, Robert M. Plumb, Detroit; treasurer, W. S. Wells, Ann Arbor; director, Harvey Kidder, Ionia. On the invitation of Henry Smith and Mrs. Eli Cross, it was voted to hold the next annual meeting at Grand Rapids.

President S. W. Coggan greeted the thirty-two members who gathered in the Barbour gymnasium, Ann Arbor. To the welcoming address of Dean E. Bursley, of the University of Michigan, A. Bonisteil responded. Secretary Plumb reported a membership of 159, and Treasurer Wells showed a healthy balance. J. F. Ammann explained the district organization plan of the F.

T. D.; he was followed by M. Bloy. Upon organization of the district unit, Arthur H. Dew, of Albion, was elected chairman; A. H. Vogt, of Flint, vice-chairman, and Alex Laurie, secretary.

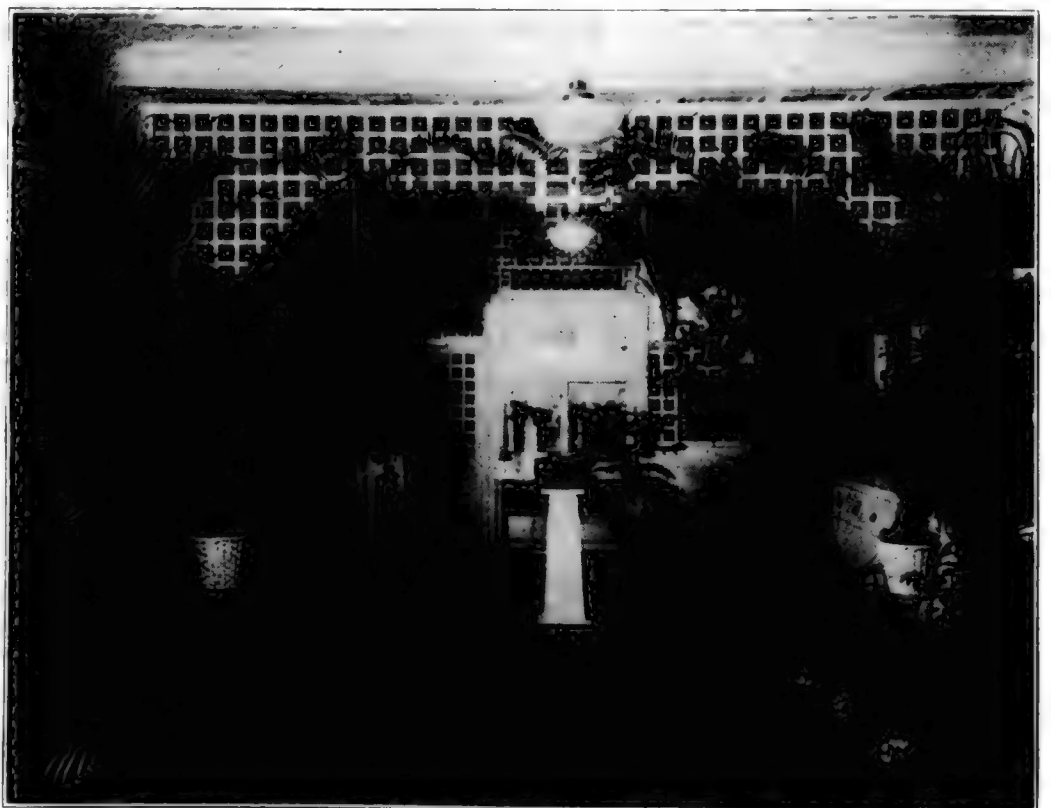

Upon the suggestion of Professor V. Gardner, of the Michigan Agricultural College, President Coggan appointed Philip Breitmeyer, Arthur H. Dew and Alex Laurie a committee of three to assist the horticultural work of that institution.

The organization, in its final resolutions, gave particular credit to the members of the Blu-Maize Blossom Shop, W. S. Wells and Alex Laurie, for their efforts in making the exhibition and meeting a success.

One of Elmer D. Smith's new chrysanthemums was formally christened "My Michigan" in an impressive ceremony at the exhibition hall November 10.

Exhibits.

A committee consisting of Henry Goetz and M. Bloy gave the association's certificate of merit to the Henry Smith Floral Co., Grand Rapids, for its group of flowering plants; to Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, for the best display of roses; to Eli Cross, Grand Rapids, for the best display of cut chrysanthemums; to the botanical garden of the University of Michigan, for the best group of chrysanthemum plants; to Charles H. Plumb, Detroit, for the best group of foliage plants, and to Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, for novelty chrysanthemum. Other trade exhibitors were the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, Bassett & Washburn, W. W. Barnard Co., A. L. Randall Co., J. A. Budlong Co. and Kennicott Bros., all of Chicago; Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont.; S. S. Skidelsky & Co., New York; Hughes Greenhouses, Hillsdale; J. L. Schiller, Toledo, O.; Fred Bauerle, Lansing; A. Vogt, Flint; Vogt's Greenhouses, Coldwater; Charles Frueh & Sons, Saginaw; Detroit-McCallum Co., Detroit; Doemling & Schimmel, Mt. Clemens; Bemb Floral Co., Detroit; G. R. Flowerday, Ann Arbor; Blu-Maize Blossom Shop, Ann Arbor; J. W.

NEW STORE AT KNOXVILLE.

Not many weeks ago announcement appeared in The Review that Brockway Crouch, Knoxville, Tenn., in company with A. J. McNutt, was about to open a retail store in that city. It has been accomplished, and the illustration on this page succeeds in showing that, in common parlance, it is "some store."

Here is a store which, according to the illustration, is pleasing to look at. It appears as though the place has been arranged with a great deal of thought. Everything has its place, the large ferns offsetting the smaller plants arranged in neat formation to the fore. Practicability prevails as well as artistry, and the tile floors and the convenient work tables point to the fact that the firm expects to do a considerable amount of business. In spite of the excellent refrigerator, the indirect lighting system succeeds in throwing an inviting warmth over the floral assemblage.

MILEAGE BOOKS BEFORE I. C. C.

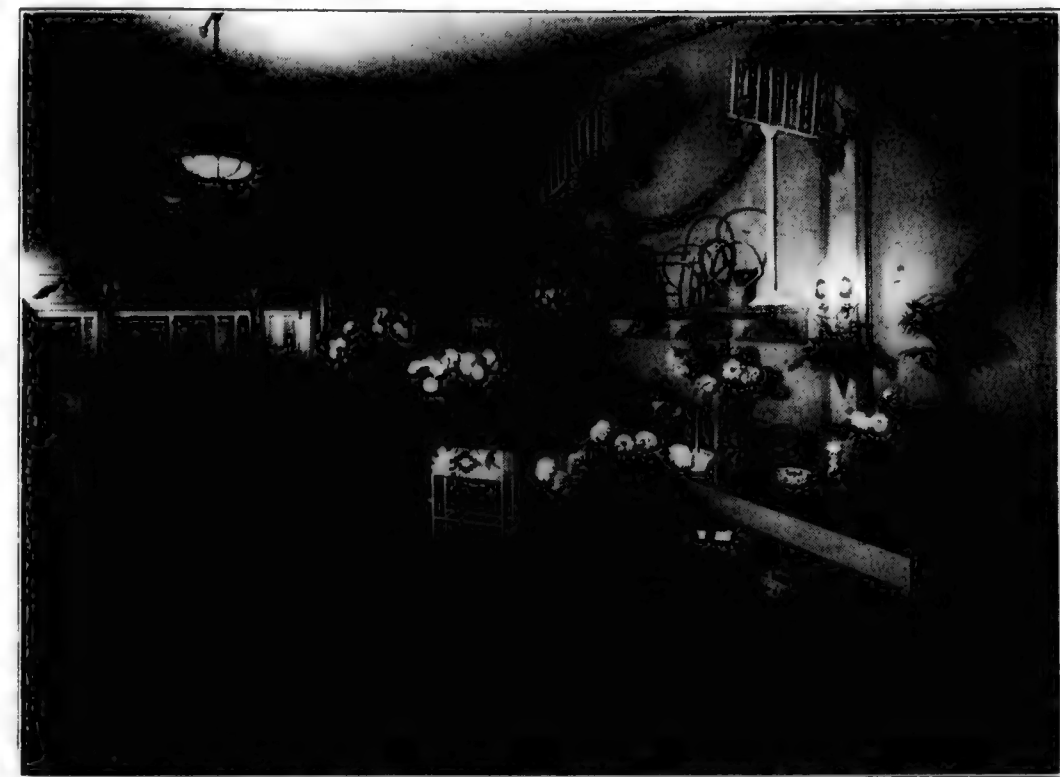

Opposed by Railroads.

The interstate commerce commission now has before it all the testimony submitted during its recent hearings on the question of interchangeable mileage, which were ordered by Congress in a law passed several months ago, and a decision will be rendered within a few weeks. Under the terms of the law, the commission was required to hold hearings and determine whether it was practicable at this time to put into effect the system of interchangeable mileage or scrip coupon tickets, for the benefit of traveling men. Traveling men for the florists' supply houses and others in the trade whose work requires them to spend considerable time on the road would be benefited by the issuance of such tickets.

The evidence offered by the railroads indicated that their finances at this time are not sufficiently healthy to stand the drain which would be occasioned by the issuance of tickets at rates lower than those now in effect. It was also argued that unless a reduction was included in the order, the tickets would be of no material benefit to those for whom they are issued. It was asserted that the rates on the railroads throughout the country vary to such an extent as to make the use of interchangeable mileage unprofitable. Mileage books would cover transportation over a certain distance, regardless of the rates of fare charged, while the scrip coupon, which was also under discussion, would provide for transportation to a certain amount, and the distance would vary according to the rate on the different railroads.

Scrip Plan, if Any, Favored.

If any form of interchangeable ticket was issued, the railroads urged, it should be the scrip coupon, under which the differences in rates would be automatically adjusted. They strongly opposed, however, any reduction in the rate of fare, and intimated that if the commission ordered the issuance of scrip tickets the courts would be asked to determine the constitutionality of the law.

The traveling men and the manufacturers associated with them in their side of the case, urged also that the scrip coupon ticket be issued. They realized that the differences in railroad rates on the various roads make mileage impossible, but urged that a scrip coupon ticket good on any road be ordered, and that a rate be set which would provide for the sale of a scrip coupon book good for $100 of transportation at a flat rate of $66.67. This reduction of thirty-three and one-third per cent would greatly stimulate travel, it was pointed out, and would result in a larger number of men being put on the road, and the greater traffic would more than offset the loss occasioned by the lower rates to the railroads. The present rates are making it impossible for many business men to put as many men on the road as they would in normal times, and business is thereby hampered in its attempt to regain normalcy. The lower rates would greatly stimulate business in all lines and result in a tremendous amount of freight being moved which can not now be moved because there are no men on the roads to sell it. The railroads, it was pointed out, would thereby benefit not only by the increased passenger traffic, but also by the greater freight movement.

METZ BROS. SERVE TOLEDO.

Last year when Armistice day came around there was no wreath to show that the city of Toledo, O., remembered the "unknown soldier," buried at Washington, D. C. This fact was no doubt the origin, or the cause of the origin, of a great idea on the part of Metz Bros., of Toledo.

This year at Armistice day, Metz Bros. made a beautiful wreath three feet in diameter, of oak leaves, poppy pods, bittersweet and cyeas, and presented it to the city, to be presented by the municipality, "In Memory of the Unknown World War Hero from the City of Toledo, O.," as the inscription on the wreath stated. The wreath was sent to Washington, to be presented at Arlington cemetery at the proper time.

This "stunt," as the firm calls it, has gained much publicity in Toledo newspapers. Pictures of the wreath have been shown and in every case Metz Bros. have been conspicuously mentioned. And, as Earl Metz says, "hereafter every year this firm will make and present to the city a wreath similar to the one sent this year."

NEW STORE AT ASHEVILLE.

One of the finest florists' establishments in the south is the Middlemount Gardens, at Asheville, N. C., which has been the subject of description in these columns before. The type of quality which it represents is what the trade's clientele in that place desire, evidently, for Otto Buseek has opened a new store, at 33 Haywood street, a view of which appears on page 38. The opening took place November 13. The firm has operated a store at 45 Patton street. The greenhouses and the attractively arranged grounds are at Sulphur Springs.

Arkansas City, Kan.—At a meeting of the Rotary Club last week, the A. C. Floral & Seed Co. acted as host. Under the guidance of A. C. Flindt, all the Rotarians were shown through the firm's houses. After viewing the houses, a new section was visited where a table had been spread with a delightful luncheon prepared by Mrs. Flindt.

Greensboro, N. C.—The Van Lindley Co., of which Paul C. Lindley, president of the American Association of Nurserymen, is the head, has opened a new branch store at 121 North Main street, High Point, N. C. A. J. Sykes is manager of the retail florist's department of the business. For the opening of the new store an announcement was sent out which might be called a model of its kind; a straightforward business announcement, well printed but without furbelows, which should appeal to the class of people who become good customers for the florist who wins their approval.

"A. B. C." IN NEW YORK

CHICAGO INVADES THE EAST.

An Announcement of Interest.

The American Bulb Co., of Chicago, will be doing business in New York city by December 15, according to the announcement made November 18 by A. Miller, president. The New York branch will be in charge of J. J. Karins, widely known in the trade, who will be the general manager. Mr. Karins also will become a vice-president of the A. B. C.

The plan does not contemplate retail business, at least for the present. The purpose is to extend the scope of the dealings with the trade, principally in bulbs, but also in flower seeds, plants and supplies.

As chief assistant to Mr. Karins, and in direct charge of the bulb department at New York, will be A. Rynveld, formerly a member of the Dutch firm of Rynveld Bros. Mr. Rynveld has had years of experience as grower and exporter and will make frequent trips to Holland during the buying and packing season.

J. H. Bockman, well known in the east, has been engaged to travel his old territory, reporting to the New York manager, and the plan is to add to the traveling staff until the trade in the east is as thoroughly covered as the middle west now is, by men of the same likable personality as Mr. Bockman.

The American Bulb Co. has not yet decided on the location of its New York headquarters. Negotiations are understood practically to have been closed for the building at 114 Chambers street, long known as the address of Weeber & Don, but other propositions developed of such interesting character that decision was postponed. However, it is expected that a temporary, if not a permanent, headquarters will be ready for business by December 15.

Six Years' Progress.

The American Bulb Co. was organized August 1, 1916. In its issue of August 10 of that year, announcing the new concern, The Review said:

"The company has made ambitious plans. The organization is composed of young men, full of energy, possessed of wide acquaintance with buyers and their needs, with connections that reach the sources of supply in all the countries of the world. They have complete confidence in the opportunity for the development of a larger business than any now existing in these lines and they start with the determination to reach this goal at as early a date as possible."

Now it seems that the way to opportunity leads through New York. Circumstances have so developed that the business prospects there seem particularly attractive at this time. The most populous section of the United States presents a field which only awaits tilling with the energy of youth to yield a harvest of orders.

The general direction of the affairs of the American Bulb Co., from the inception of the idea of organization, has rested, and will continue to rest, with A. Miller, president, while the financial and office management is in the hands of Albert Koehler, secretary and treasurer. Headquarters will continue to be at 172 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

The New York Manager.

James J. Karins was born at Riverton, N. J., in 1873, and has spent his entire business career in the famous establishment of Henry A. Dreer, where he began work as a boy of 14 years—thirty-five years at it. Beginning as an apprentice, he served in all departments, became familiar with the growing end, and, for many years, was connected with the order department, where the bulk of the wholesale trade orders came under his direct charge and where he became exceptionally well fitted for his next position, that of traveler. Mr. Karins took to the road in 1905 and for the last seventeen years has been on the move almost continuously. His territory has been the United States and Canada and there are few nooks or corners of America he has not visited. It is doubtful if any other man has a wider acquaintance in the trade or a more thorough knowledge of the trade's requirements in the various sections of the country. He has enjoyed the confidence of his house and of his customers in an unusual degree.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Last week at this market was brisk; the season's debutantes were blossoming out in full glory. Some attractive things were used on these occasions.

Mums are at their best and the outlook is good for some time to come. Some of the leading varieties are Chadwick, Chieftain, White Chieftain, Turner and Helen Frick. Roses are clearing better this season than at any previous season, but they still do not move so fast as they might. Snapdragons have made their appearance and are used quickly because of the limited supply.

Sweet peas are arriving in larger quantities than before; still, they move out quickly. Carnations are getting larger and have better stems. They find a ready market, because the absence of small mums makes them popular funeral work flowers.

Miscellaneous stock, such as valley, violets, pansies and stevias, are still scarce.

Various Notes.

Cincinnati is making preparations for the meeting and show of the American Rose and American Carnation societies, in January. The committee in charge reports that it is going to make this meeting one that is to be remembered. H. W. Sheppard, vice-president of the American Carnation Society, reports that the committees he appointed are working hard.

The growers of Cincinnati have a local growers' association that works with the state and national associations in the way of advertising. Now the retail florists have come together to cooperate with the growers. A large meeting was held at Julius Baer's establishment and the officers were elected as follows: President, C. J. Jones; vice-president, J. F. Maunders; secretary and treasurer, George Kessen. The board of directors is composed of H. W. Sheppard, Julius Baer and R. A. Kelley. Everyone at the meeting was enthusiastic over the idea and it seems evident that this is a step forward for Cincinnati.

Charles Garvey, of Peter Weiland's, surprised almost everyone when, Thursday, November 16, he went to Covington, Ky., to be married. Mr. Garvey and his bride are to live in a new subdivision in Covington. Letters of congratulation have been pouring in since the news spread.

Julius Baer reports a good week in funeral work and also an extensive amount of debutante work. He reports that the fall business so far at his place has been most brisk.

H. W. Sheppard's shop has been busy the last week taking care of funeral work and debutante decorations.

Gustave Wickley, since he has been abroad, has uncovered many novel arrangements he learned about over there; they are working out well.

Irvin Gebhardt, of the Tromey Flower Shop, has been seen frequently in the market the last week, and he reports that funeral work orders are numerous.

Ray W. Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., was away a few days of last week, attending the Tennessee State Florists' Association's convention at Knoxville, Tenn. G. H. K.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

So far as supply and demand goes, there is little change in the cut flower market. The supply has shortened a trifle in some lines, but there has been little of a strengthening character in the demand. Still, arrivals clean up fairly well; so business in general may be said to be good.

Chrysanthemums dominate the market, and there is plenty of choice. All the late varieties are in, and the quality is quite satisfactory. The poorest seller in the large varieties seems to be Chadwick, and it looks as though it has the passé mark in this market. Scraggly mums do not seem to move well any more, buyers seeming to prefer the more compact forms. Medium-sized varieties, too, seem to have preference from purchasers; at least, the bulk of quick sales would lead to this opinion. A few of the exhibition sorts arrive, such as William Turner, and meeting a moderate demand, they do not cut much of a figure in the market.

Roses are not in particularly large supply, but the large arrivals of chrysanthemums prevent any increase in price over last quotations. There is a good supply of American Beauty, arrivals meeting only a moderate demand. Hybrid teas move slowly after the early morning sales, although there is a fair clearance each day; long-stemmed grades, which are only in light supply, are harder to move than the shorter grades.

There is an increase in the supply of carnations, but prices are holding, selected flowers of varieties such as Laddie and Mrs. C. W. Ward running above the others. The flowers of Laddie so far seen do not seem to be up to the standard of quality formerly noted.

J. J. Karins.

Arrivals of cattleyas are somewhat lighter, although there is no advance in prices. Cypripediums are in good supply, and there is no rush for oncidiums, which are ample for requirements. Gardenias are a little more plentiful and sell a little better.

White lilies are plentiful enough for the demand, which is rather small. Valley continues druggy. White bouvardia meets a fair demand. Violets are not in great supply, growers probably holding stock for the Yale-Harvard football game, November 25, for which occasion no wholesaler cares to quote violets at this time. Of other flowers there are sweet peas, blue lace flowers, wall-flowers, calendulas, strawflowers, snapdragons and stevia. A few Paper White narcissi arrive, but prices are not yet quotable.

Various Notes.

Among the bankruptcy petitions filed last week was one against Maurice Fuld, Inc., 7 West Forty-fifth street. Joseph P. McDonough was appointed receiver. It is stated that the liabilities are about $20,000, and assets about $3,500. Further information appears on another page under the heading, "Business Embarrassments."

Park Commissioner John N. Harman, Sunday, November 12, opened a splendid chrysanthemum show in Prospect park, Brooklyn, in the big greenhouse.

Last week's list of New Jersey incorporations included one by the Belford Nurseries, of Oradell, N. J., with a capital of $125,000. H. J. Ware and Leah J. Ware, Oradell, and William Good, Westwood, N. J., were the incorporators.

The wife of John H. Troy, New Rochelle, N. Y., died November 14, and funeral services were held at the home, on Mayflower avenue, November 17.

The national horse show was in progress all last week, at the Squadron Armory. There was a good deal of entertaining in society circles during the week.

B. O. Nielsen, who has been gaining experience in the florists' business at the Poehlmann establishment, Morton Grove, Ill., during the past several months, is in the city spending a week or two before sailing for his home in Christiania, Norway, where he plans to associate himself with his father, who is a leading florist there.

Solly Midler, who was killed in the collapse last week of the storage house of S. D. Woodruff & Son, on Washington street, was formerly for some years in the employ of the defunct seed firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co.

The seed firm of Weeber & Don has given up its quarters, on Chambers street, and, it is understood, gone out of business. The building they occupied, it is reported, has been leased by the American Bulb Co., Chicago, which will take possession January 1. J. H. P.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report great activity in the metropolitan district.

Allerton, Florist, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $5,000. The place of business of the firm is 41 East Forty-second street. The incorporators are L. B. Case and A. Fagerland.

Changes in the lighting arrangements have been made at the store of Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., 561 Fifth avenue, and the icebox has been made over, in the process of remodeling the store. Manager Robert A. Hale reports regular business quite good. Funeral work has been important.

OBITUARY

Henry H. Barrows.

In the death of Henry H. Barrows, of Whitman, November 15, Massachusetts lost her most noted fern specialist. Mr. Barrows had made a trip to New York and was taken ill on his return. He was taken to the Brockton hospital and only lived five days, being unconscious the last twenty-four hours. An autopsy showed peritonitis to have been the cause of death.

The deceased was born at West Sumner, Me., in 1856. His father fell in the Civil war. When Henry H. Barrows was 6 years old, his mother, with five children, moved to Abington, Mass. Henry helped his mother to support the family. When 12 he went to work in the nurseries of his uncle, Henry Harvard Robbins. When 19 he married Abbie Louise Fadden. Four children, Henry H., Jr., Percy, Ernest and Grace, survive him, as does also his 90-year-old mother, Mrs. Butt P. Barrows, of Abington; a sister in Greenfield, Mass., and a brother in Florida. The Barrows are of old Pilgrim stock.

When Mr. Barrows started in the florists' business he had two small houses. He grew a general line of stock and was specially proud of a banana tree, which produced two large bunches of fruit. Some twenty-five years ago, he owned and operated three flower stores, one each in Whitman, Rockland and Lynn. A little later he started to specialize in ferns and continued in this until his death. There are many who will well remember his introduction of Nephrolepis Barrowsii, followed by N. Whitmanii, the Whitman fern, still popular, of which the deceased grew large quantities to the last, there being a strong demand for cut fronds, greater, indeed, than he could meet. Several other distinct and beautiful sorts of nephrolepis originated in his greenhouses, but Whitmanii will for a long time keep his name fragrant among fern lovers.

The deceased was of a pleasing personality. He was democratic and always welcomed anyone interested in ferns. At home he was ever the kind and thoughtful father. He stuck so close to business all his life that he had no time to become associated with any fraternal organizations.

Funeral services were held at the Church of the Holy Ghost, Whitman, November 17. There was a large attendance of mourning friends and relatives, and many beautiful floral tributes came from his friends. W. N. C.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Progress and Poverty.

The campaign fund is moving slowly up to the $40,000 mark, considerably below the point the publicity committee had hoped it would reach. Some good advertising has been planned for December, a good deal of which will appear in the magazines for that month, now about on sale. Judging from the reports from different markets, the florists' industry is greatly in need of stimulus, a stimulus which can only come from publicity work of this kind.

Were the committee in a position to expend $100,000 within the next two or three months, it would not be a penny too much—and when the extent of our industry is considered, it would not be more than might reasonably have been expected. When it is considered that there are 20,000 or more florists in the country, all to be benefited by the campaign, it does seem that thousands of otherwise astute business men are not alive to their opportunity to give their businesses a good boost. Of the several other industries that have been prosecuting publicity campaigns similar to our own, hardly one can be mentioned whose efforts have slackened in an appreciable degree; nor do they appear to have the difficulty in getting funds together that we have. Just why the florists' industry hangs back is hard to understand. We have the greatest slogan ever conceived and it has taken the public by storm, as it were. "Say It with Flowers" has taken root everywhere, but if we want to see it develop into a vigorous growth, we must pay the price, and it is up to the florists to furnish the where-withal. Nobody can deny that every branch of our calling has reaped benefit, and still we have only scratched the surface of our immense field. If you, Mr. Reader, have not already contributed to the fund, won't you sit right down and write a check for what you think you ought to give, or can afford? It is rather hard on those who have generously contributed to be expected to do it all—you would not like it yourself. The season is ripe for greater effort, and through you it can be made.

Just a word to the many who have sent in pledges, but have not fulfilled them. The committee, quite properly, has counted upon your contributions materializing and have been put to much trouble because you have not made good. The dull season has passed, and surely there can be no great reason for further delay. The committee will feel gratified for an immediate fulfillment of these pledges, and the receipt of checks at this time will be most timely aid to the campaign.

ADIANTUM IN BENCHES.

I have some adiantum which has been in the same bench for four years, and it seems to me now that the plants need either feeding or renewing. Which would you advise? If it is well to feed them, what should the nature of the mulch be? Where can I procure some new stock and how should this be treated? C. R. P.—Pa.

If you prefer to carry over the old plants for another year, in the spring you can give them a mulch of cow manure. Waterings of liquid cow manure and soot, not too strong, will also prove beneficial if applied twice a month during the growing season. You can divide and replant these plants this fall, if you wish, but younger plants set out in spring usually give better results. You should be able to locate some growers of adiantum in the Classified section of The Review. C. W.

HYACINTHS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Kindly tell me how soon to give heat to hyacinths for Christmas and what temperature is necessary. The bulbs I have are especially prepared for Christmas forcing and have been potted three weeks. S. C. R.—Cal.

Hyacinths potted as late as the time mentioned will, undoubtedly, be too late for Christmas. They should have at least six or eight weeks in the soil before they are fit for forcing and the longer period is the better. It is of no use trying to force them unless the tops have started a couple of inches; if you do, the spikes will be poor, miserable little stubs. It will be better to leave the hyacinths until a couple of months after potting, and force them so as to flower in January, in order to get a decent stem on the flowers. Give them a temperature of 55 degrees, and invert a flower pot over each top, plugging the hole to keep the tops dark and help to give the plants better stems. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

POINSETTIAS.

We have now reached a critical period with poinsettias. Bracts are already developing and some plants will be quite salable, even for Thanksgiving. Careful watering is now necessary; an excess is more dangerous than an under-supply. Weak liquid manure applied once a week will help to build up large bracts and, if a little soot is added, it will help to keep the foliage a rich green color. The temperature at night should range around 60 degrees; a few degrees lower on a cold night will do no harm, however.

CHRISTMAS FREESIAS.

This popular sweet-scented bulbous flower proves exceedingly welcome at Christmas, when chrysanthemums have practically petered out and no other bulbs are really available but Narcissus Paper White and Soleil d'Or. Of course, there may be a few tulips, hyacinths and trumpet daffodils from so-called "prepared bulbs," but these latter are uncertain and much of a lottery. Give the early freesias a shelf in a house where a night temperature of 55 degrees is maintained, and give them plenty of water. Go light on fumigating, as the tips of the leaves are easily injured. We can already see spikes showing in our earliest plants and, barring something unforeseen, these will be o. k. for Christmas. It is necessary to support freesias; this can be done by sticking short, stocky pieces of brush among them; or, better still, by running a few thin stakes around the pots or pans and by running white twine around these as the plants progress. The colored freesias, like General Pershing, require a little longer season than F. refracta alba and Purity, and it will not pay to force them for the holidays.

PROTECTION FOR HARDY ROSES.

In some favored spots, roses need no winter protection. With most of us, however—if we want an outdoor rose to stay with us and prove creditable—considerable winter protection will be found necessary. For ramblers of all kinds, it is the best plan to cut all varieties loose, lay them down and scatter a little soil or old straw manure over them. For hybrid teas and hybrid perpetuals, some hilling with soil generally suffices. In the case of plants of doubtful hardiness, it pays to dig them up and pack them away on the floor of a cold cellar, where the roots must be covered with moist soil, and not dry sand as in many commercial storage houses. A coldframe, if not otherwise occupied, makes a good winter storage place, and, if neither cellar nor frame is at disposal, bury the lifted plants outdoors, root and branch, and replant them in the spring. For thorough outdoor protection, the plants can be tied or laid down and then covered with soil. The more soil we can bank about our plants, the better will they winter, but it is a slow and tedious job to do the protecting properly. The hybrid perpetuals are much harder than hybrid teas and, where minimum readings rarely go to zero or below it, they will not need much winter protection. A winter covering of manure is undesirable. The covering lacks lightness and nearly all the food value is worked away while the ground remains frozen. When coatings of leaves, or other light materials, are placed over the plants while the ground is soft, there is much danger of field mice or rats coming in and doing serious damage.

PLOWING VACANT LAND.

Before the ground freezes, all vacant land, on which were such crops as carnations, dahlias, gladioli, asters and the various other annuals used for cutting, should be plowed and left rough over the winter. This is of special value where the soil is stiff and not retentive, as the action of the frost will pulverize and improve the texture of such soils. Furthermore, such land, plowed now, will be freer from soil pests, many of which will be exposed and destroyed by the weather, animals or birds. All debris of a light nature should be collected and burned. General cleanliness will mean fewer insect pests. The tarnished plant bug, the European corn borer, which is an increasing menace, and other pests pass the winter on many weeds and a thorough cleaning will mean the destruction of many of them. It is a great mistake to leave all this work until the strenuous spring season.

THE COMPOST PILE.

Endeavoring to get in the necessary supplies of potting compost with the ground hard frozen, the temperature zero and maybe a blanket of snow thrown in for good measure, is not a pleasant job. Most of us have had this disagreeable experience at some time and know what it means. This is a good time to lay in an adequate supply of loam, manure, leaf-mold, sand, and whatever else may be needed in the potting of a miscellaneous lot of plants. Even if you have not an ample space to store compost where it is out of the reach of frost, you probably have an open shed where some can be stored and where the snow will not cover it. In such a place, a generous coating of straw or leaves will keep out most of the frost and make the compost readily available at any time. While on this subject, it is well to warn those who are not experienced in our business never to use frozen compost or one which may not contain frost, but is exceedingly cold. There is no better way to destroy a nice batch of rooted cuttings or to give soft-wooded plants, like cinerarias, calceolarias and primulas, a bad chill than to use soil at potting time which is not moderately warm.

HARDY PLANTS IN FRAMES.

Many florists carry over a considerable amount of hardy stock in coldframes. Such plants as pansies, daisies, forget-me-nots, foxgloves, Canterbury bells, and such doubtfully hardy perennials as pompon chrysanthemums, Japanese anemones, tritomas, double helianthus, Thalictrum dipterocarpum, incarvilleas, Artemisia lactiflora and young seedlings of larkspurs, lupines, columbines and Shasta daisies will all winter finely in coldframes, if they are given a covering of dry leaves when the soil is frozen stiff, and if sashes are placed over them, some air being given in mild weather.

Perhaps there are quantities of Dutch bulbs stored in frames. Usually these are covered with six or eight inches of soil and that answers well when it is not allowed to freeze solidly. A good method for flats, pots or pans of bulbs, the writer has found, is to lay a covering of sand on them to prevent heaving; then, as the weather becomes cold and there is danger of the pots freezing, cover the plants with six or eight inches of dry sawdust. This latter is a great excluder of frost and, when it is desired to take out the bulbs, sawdust is much more easily removed than loam or coal ashes.

WATERING EVERGREENS.

It may seem strange to some to recommend the watering of evergreens outdoors, just as winter is setting in. It may not be necessary where there have been recent copious rains, but often the ground will freeze with the soil quite dry; deciduous trees and shrubs, bulbs and hardy perennials will not mind that, but it means a great deal to evergreens which need moisture for their foliage all the time. This is especially true of newly planted evergreens, and the heavy death toll of these each spring is usually due far more to dryness at the root than to winter's cold. Therefore, it is a good policy to soak thoroughly newly planted evergreens, like rhododendrons, thujas, retinisporas, taxus, juniperus, etc., before frost seals the ground. To water these properly, make a basin around each plant; fill this a couple of times; then push back the dry earth. This treatment is especially necessary for the many evergreens planted around the bases of new houses, often in rather poorly prepared and porous soil. Advise customers to whom you have sold plants, such as those named, to soak them thoroughly now, and the death toll next spring will be reduced to a minimum. Advise any who are growing rhododendrons to mulch them heavily with leaves, after watering.

OBITUARY

Henry H. Barrows.

In the death of Henry H. Barrows, of Whitman, November 15, Massachusetts lost her most noted fern specialist. Mr. Barrows had made a trip to New York and was taken ill on his return. He was taken to the Brockton hospital and only lived five days, being unconscious the last twenty-four hours. An autopsy showed peritonitis to have been the cause of death.

The deceased was born at West Sumner, Me., in 1856. His father fell in the Civil war. When Henry H. Barrows was 6 years old, his mother, with five children, moved to Abington, Mass. Henry helped his mother to support the family. When 12 he went to work in the nurseries of his uncle, Henry Harvard Robbins. When 19 he married Abbie Louise Fadden. Four children, Henry H., Jr., Percy, Ernest and Grace, survive him, as does also his 90-year-old mother, Mrs. Butt P. Barrows, of Abington; a sister in Greenfield, Mass., and a brother in Florida. The Barrows are of old Pilgrim stock.

When Mr. Barrows started in the florists' business he had two small houses. He grew a general line of stock and was specially proud of a banana tree, which produced two large bunches of fruit. Some twenty-five years ago, he owned and operated three flower stores, one each in Whitman, Rockland and Lynn. A little later he started to specialize in ferns and continued in this until his death. There are many who will well remember his introduction of Nephrolepis Barrowsii, followed by N. Whitmanii, the Whitman fern, still popular, of which the deceased grew large quantities to the last, there being a strong demand for cut fronds, greater, indeed, than he could meet. SUGGESTION for a card in the show window this week: "Flowers Are the Best Symbol of the Sincerity of a Thankful Heart."

WHAT we need is quality. All praise to the man who has the courage to dump any stock he would not be satisfied to receive if he were the buyer.

THE dissemination of Carnation Winsome, by Hartje & Elder, will take place in 1924. It was the gold medal winner at the last meeting of the A. C. S.

If we will but remember that what we really sell is satisfaction, it will help us on our way. If it is difficult to sell, the degree of satisfaction given is not great enough. Think it over.

No man ever had a better florist's business than those who have as their first rule the golden one. He who invariably does as he would be done by seldom lacks for customers and seldom has difficulty getting stock.

WHEN a florist has a message for the public he should "tell it to Sweeney," as Mrs. Van Stuyvesant also will understand. Too much highbrow stuff in the advertising matter makes it miss fire with the majority of flower buyers.

SINCE the Thanksgiving holiday falls on the publication date of The Review next week, the paper must go to press one day early in order to reach readers at the usual time. Therefore, mail your copy, for either advertising or reading columns, one day earlier than usual. Don't be late and risk missing the issue.

It is becoming increasingly necessary to limit credits and watch collections in this trade. Margins of profit are not what they once were and a bad loss may wipe out the profits for a considerable period. If a customer can not keep up his payments, stop selling to him for a time; let someone else share the risk.

It is well established that there are one-third too many coal mines and twice as many men as there should be in the industry, with the result that consumers are paying them a full-time living for working half time or less. Show us something we can do as individuals to correct the situation and the American people will quickly put an end to it, the greenhouse trade doing its full share.

HIGH prices check business and reduce volume, but it is to be hoped that fair prices will prevail in the cut flower markets this season. The cost of growing never was so high as now.

EVERY week we read of some new organization in the trade; there are, already, so many that no man could, from memory, state all their names, to say nothing of having any sort of acquaintance with their objects, activities or accomplishments, if any.

AN advertiser in The Review admonishes the trade: "Do your business cheaply and carefully by mail, instead of expensively and hastily by wire." Here! Here!! It is no uncommon thing to receive Classified ads over the long-distance telephone, the call costing more than the ad, when a 2-cent stamp would have done the job, with less chance of misunderstanding, only it would require being abreast of the play instead of one day behind. Most things people do could better have been done yesterday.

MORE FLOWER SHOWS.

A prominent advertising man recently said that the difference between a peasant immigrant from Europe, of simple tastes and plodding habits, and the ambitious, one might say covetous person he becomes after a short while in this country is due to the things he sees about him. In the old country, the brookside was the laundry, an open fireplace heated his house, water was hauled in buckets from a well; in this country, he and his wife soon aspire to an electric washing machine, a hot-water heating system and hot and cold water constantly on tap in a porcelain-enamel bath. He and his family want those things because they see them constantly; their better neighbors have them.

The sight of flowers makes customers for us in just the same way. That is the reason flower shows stimulate business as they do. When many people pay admission to view and to examine an armory full of flowers and floral arrangements, they see the things they have lacked, the things their better neighbors have. They are, in consequence, moved to buy flowers.

But flower shows are too few and far between. When a decade passes between them, the public has forgotten the last show when the next is announced. It has been evident, at the big exhibitions held this autumn, that the attendance was heaviest, not at the beginning, but at the close. The public had to learn whether the show was worth seeing, for it had forgotten the one years before. Where shows are held annually, there is a cumulative interest, for last year's spectators want to see the next show and, in recollection of what they saw before, bring their friends to share the pleasure. Witness the New York spring shows. Note the annual automobile shows, which have become an event looked forward to.

There have been a fairly good number of sizable flower shows in the weeks just past, but still they are too few, and in most localities they are too infrequent.

SELLING FLOWERS EVERY DAY.

Every florist is thankful for holiday trade, no matter how arduous it may seem at each occasion of rush and hurry, but he is particularly desirous of developing business that will fill the lulls between those events. To this end the coöperative advertising campaigns in the principal cut flower markets are bending their efforts. In New York, for instance, newspaper advertising copy is devoted to urging friend husband to remember his wife oftener with flowers. If the average man can be induced to buy a few flowers in the same casual way that he says, "Let's go to a show," or, "How about a movie tonight?" much, indeed, will be accomplished for the trade.

In Chicago another idea is being presented the public, but in a more roundabout way. The object is to revive the boutonniere habit. It was started by J. E. Cornelius, head of H. O. Stone & Co., a pioneer and influential real estate house of Chicago, introducing a resolution in the Chicago Council of Kiwanis Clubs to make the first day of the week "Cheer Monday," instead of "blue Monday." With this initial move, it is proposed by the Allied Florists' Association to have the same resolution passed by the Board of Trade, Association of Commerce, automobile and athletic clubs, lodges and business organizations, so that men throughout the city will be induced to "wear a flower, wear a smile and be cheerful" as he begins each business week. Undoubtedly, if they wear a flower on Monday, before long they will wear one the rest of the week as well. The resolution being presented reads as follows:

Be it resolved, That the time-worn phrase, "Blue Monday," be forever stricken from the vocabulary of our members and that hereafter "Blue Monday" be known only as "Cheer Monday," that all members do and act only in accordance with the sentiment of the new name for Monday and make it a day of cheer, wear a flower, wear a smile and be cheerful.

Here are two ideas worthy of other cities' promoting. You can get the husbands in your town to buy flowers more than once or twice a year. And, by unostentatious and diplomatic effort, a resolution of this nature can be put through your local business and fraternal organizations.

CORN BORER SPREADING.

Maine and Rhode Island have been added to the states that have been quarantined because of the presence within their borders of the European corn borer, under an order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, November 17. The new order covers the following townships in Maine: Alfred, Berwick, Biddeford, Eliot, Kennebunk, Kennebunkport, Kittery, Lyman, North Berwick, Old Orchard, Saco, Sanford, South Berwick, Wells and York, in York county. In Rhode Island the quarantine is made effective in Barrington, in Bristol county, and East Providence, North Providence, Pawtucket and Providence, in Providence county.

In discussing the corn borer, Dr. Marlatt states that the presence of the pest in Maine and Rhode Island is due to its natural spread during the year. The pest is still limited, so far as is known, he points out, substantially to the old districts, and these districts represent for the most part the original areas of infestation which resulted from importation of broom corn from Europe in 1909 and 1910. The fact that no wide jumps of the insect have been determined during the year, he contends, may be credited in large part to the quarantine enforced by the department in coöperation with the states concerned.

ST. LOUIS.The Market.

The local wholesale market had splendid business all last week, but the demand for the greatly increased shipments of mums and other seasonable stock did not consume the supply. Fine, spring-like weather brought out an abundance of all kinds of stock. Mums are in great demand and the big supply of roses and carnations has to suffer for it. Wholesalers say that if the fine weather continues there will be an overabundance of seasonable stock for Thanksgiving.

Roses are many and some good stock of Premier, Columbia, Ophelia and Butterfly were noted all last week. Only prime stock is holding up in price; the same may be said of carnations.

Among other seasonable flowers are orchids, valley, sweet peas, violets, Paper White narcissi and calendulas. All of these are much in demand.

In greens, the market has a good supply daily.

Various Notes.

The recent fall flower show, the opening days of which were reported in the last two issues of The Review, greatly improved in attendance the last two days of the show, and there were to be seen some fine retailers' displays. Many displays arrived from growers and retailers, not for competition. The attendance was not up to expectations the first three days. However, the people liked the show, the first since 1917, and, according to the management, the exhibition will become an annual affair from now on. The management wishes to thank all exhibitors, as well as the Missouri Horticultural Society, the St. Louis Florists' Club, the St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association, Missouri Botanical Garden, Missouri State Florists' Association, St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association, St. Louis park department and the Garden Club of St. Louis, for the great success of the show.

Saturday night, November 8, fire broke out in the basement of the George H. Pieser Wholesale Floral Co. and destroyed the contents of the 5-story building, the ground floor of which the firm occupied. The fire was of unknown origin and the building housed a number of manufacturing and wholesale concerns. The Pieser firm was fully protected by insurance, according to George H. Pieser, president. The company has taken quarters at the place of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., just across the way, until new quarters can be found.

The store of Grimm & Gorly, on Washington avenue, looked the part of a floral palace last week. White, yellow and bronze-colored mums filled the store. The special sale of mums at 19 cents each cleaned up a big surplus of cut mums at the wholesale markets.

The death of Harry Rieman, recorded last week, recalled the old-time firm of Rieman & Chandler, which thirty-two years ago opened a floral shop at 705 Olive street. Mr. Rieman had not mingled with the trade for several years and he was almost forgotten until his death was announced. He died at St. Luke's hospital November 14, after a few weeks' illness. Besides his wife, he leaves a brother and cousins, who reside in Minneapolis. He was employed the last few years as gardener for the Campbell estate, at Westmoreland place. The funeral took place November 16, and a considerable number of his old-time friends in the trade were present.

The annual mum show at the Missouri Botanical Garden opened November 13, and the usual great crowds attended the free exhibition. George H. Pring, L. P. Jensen, Paul Kohl and the students, after a hard week's work at the fall flower show, again put their shoulders to the wheel and staged a fine exhibition of pot-grown mums in the big floral display house. Sunday, November 19, with the fine, spring-like weather, there was recorded one of the largest attendances for many years back.

William Trillow, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind., called on the trade last week. Mr. Blackshaw displayed his wares at the Hotel Statler. Both men report splendid trade in their lines.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., made nineteen entries at the fall flower show and came out with flying colors, having captured nineteen firsts. No wonder Earl H. Mann left for home with a broad smile on his face. Next in line came H. W. Buckbee, while W. A. Rowe was far ahead of any of the local exhibitors.

Miss Gussie Malloy celebrated her thirty-seventh birthday last week by giving a flower to each of her customers and by entertaining a large party of friends, in the evening, at her pretty florists' shop, on South Vandeventer avenue.

Joseph Witek, who won the silver cup offered by the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. for the retailer winning the most first prizes, had the cup on display in a most tastefully decorated window in his McPherson avenue store.

Joseph Braun, one of the oldest of the working force of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., has been confined to his home with sickness for the last three weeks. His friends in the trade hope for his early recovery.

The A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co. reports a splendid shipping trade the last week in cut stock and plants. Mr. Gumz says the plant department is now well established and the local trade makes its daily purchases of plants.

Theodore Horn, with H. G. Berning, was taken suddenly ill November 12 and was rushed to the hospital, where an operation was performed. From last reports "Teddy," as he is better known to the trade, was resting easily. A complete recovery is looked for by his many friends in the trade.

The florist bowlers, after a week's lay-off, had a great night, November 15, when the Violets won the odd game from the Daisies, and the Orchids won the odd game from the Sweet Peas, while the Roses retained the lead by winning two of the three games from the Carnations. The Roses now lead the league by two full games.

Every day during the last week, the office of the St. Louis Flower Show Association has been a busy place. Secretary Beneke, assisted by Treasurer Rowe and Vice-chairman Berning, has his hands full paying all premiums and bills in full. After all the committees make their final reports, a meeting of the executive committee will be called, at which the affairs of the recent fall flower show will be wound up and work will begin at once for the 1923 fall flower show on a larger scale than ever. J. J. B.

CHICAGO.The Market.

There really is little to be said of the market at present, things have been so medium. Business is good; it might be worse; it might be better. The supply of stock has been, in a general way, equal to all requirements, but we are past the peak of the chrysanthemum season without a glut, something which should be recorded and remembered. In most Novembers there comes a time, with mums at floodtide, when it is impossible to move all the receipts through regular channels and when average prices are painfully low. There has been nothing like that this November; really good mums have commanded excellent prices from the start of the season. Pompons have not done so well as the big flowers, but they have sold at profitable prices. Nor have roses or carnations suffered during chrysanthemum time as they have in many other years. On the whole, conditions have been good and many wholesale houses are able to report sales for the month as slightly ahead of last year.

Last week, and the same is true at present, the supply of roses was light. Weather conditions earlier in the season were responsible for autumn crops being early, while most of the rose plants were pinched for Christmas. The result of this combination of circumstances is that right now cuts are small. The supply of shorts has been so small that prices have stiffened, but the demand for roses above 25 cents has been so small so far this season that the higher the buyer can go the more he gets for his money. Columbia is less plentiful than last season, Premier more so, in relation to the total supply.

Bonnaffon has been, for a week or more, the principal and best selling mum on the market. Most of the Bonnaffons are fine and there seems to be no room for complaint as to prices received; they never have sold for more money than this year, sometimes for much less. All good mums are doing well, marketwise, but poor stock is not wanted at any price.

Pompons have been in large supply and sometimes have dragged, but there has been no glut. The anemone-flowered varieties now are in and hold all their popularity of former years.

Carnations are in steady crop, but are not in oversupply. There are few violets and not many sweet peas. Valley is equal to all demands. Cattleyas are more plentiful than at an earlier date, mostly from the east or Canada. Paper Whites have become a daily item, but are slow sale at the price necessitated by this season's bulb prices. Lilies now include callas, giganteums, rubrums and auratums, all but the first named from cold storage bulbs and not abundant.

The greens market is quiet. Boxwood is arriving in quantity. Red berries are everywhere, and fine.

growers will be in full crop, but Thanksgiving is a week nearer Christmas than is usual and it is just between crops with most rose growers. The principal supply will be of chrysanthemums and pompons—of these there will be more than ever before at this date, due to so many growers planting late varieties. Carnations, too, will be in fair supply. There will be few violets or sweet peas.

The demand promises to be excellent; there are more handlers of flowers than ever before and the market is broadening steadily. But the call is not for high-priced stock; there is likely to be a shortage of medium-priced flowers and an abundance of the more expensive grades.

"Poehlmann Day."

Secretary Lautenschlager, of the Florists' Club, contributes to this column the following note:

"The Chicago Florists' Club has accepted the invitation of Poehlmann Bros. Co. to hold the next meeting at the Poehlmann establishment at Morton Grove, Thursday afternoon and evening, December 7. It is our intention to designate this event as Poehlmann day.

Inspection trip, 1 to 4 p. m.
Flower show, 1 to 9 p. m.
Address of welcome and refreshments, 5 p. m.
Florists' Club meeting and election of officers, 7 p. m.

"Everybody in the trade is cordially invited. A special invitation is extended to retailers and the ladies.

Growers of novelties are invited to make exhibits. A special invitation is also extended to out-of-town florists. It is expected that Poehlmann day will bring out one of the largest gathering of the trade in recent years. The place will be in its prime at this season of the year."

It is reported that the famous Lincoln Inn has been engaged for supper and the meeting.

Growers' Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago was held at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, November 16. In the absence of the secretary, Otto Amling, the chair appointed Henry Neve to assume his duties. The discussion of the evening was mostly with regard to the proposal of a flower show and to publicity. The sentiment seemed to be general that Chicago was ripe for a large exhibition, and the success of the shows in other cities this autumn encouraged the local growers in the belief that one of similar caliber might be staged here. President Pearson invited the visitors from other branches of the trade to speak on this subject, and Paul Klingsporn and T. E. Waters gave it as their opinion that such a show would be well worth the effort and expense, if only as a publicity project. Ernest Oechsli, Joseph Kohout, Hans Jepsen and others also spoke favorably with regard to the proposal. Joseph Kohout finally moved that a committee be appointed to co-operate with the committee appointed by the Chicago Florists' Club at its last meeting to consider this project, and upon the second of Robert Windler, the motion was unanimously carried.

H. V. Swenson, in reporting on the progress of the Allied Florists' Association, stated that collections had been satisfactory during the summer. There had been no expenditure for advertising space since the $6,000 in June, and he said the association now had a bank balance of $3,412, which would be considerably augmented when all the returns for October were in. He called attention to the free publicity obtained in the local newspapers by means of pictures containing flowers and items regarding them in the news columns. He said that since May 1, 887 illustrations and news stories relating in some way to flowers had appeared in the Chicago newspapers. The total circulation of such items and the sum which they would have cost, had they been paid for at the one-time advertising rate, amounted, he said, to extraordinarily large figures. Charles H. Porter, who has handled this work for the Allied Florists' Association, said that, while a considerable portion of this material could not have been kept out of the newspapers had anyone wished to have it excluded, the insertion of such pictures and stories was of cumulative sales value to the trade and was deserving of the effort and expense of the association in getting more of it in. Len Elder, who brought blooms of Carnation Winsome from Indianapolis for display at the meeting, was called upon to speak. He extended a cordial invitation to members of the organization to visit the trade in his city when they could and emphasized the value of getting away from home occasionally in order to see how the other fellow does things.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the organization in conjunction with that of the Chicago Florists' Club at Morton Grove, December 7, as the regular meeting date would come too close to Christmas.

The most important feature of the evening was the exhibition of chrysanthemums, carnations and calendulas. There was a good-sized assortment of excellent stock. The chair appointed J. L. Wiltgen, E. H. Blameuser and F. W. Busse to judge the carnations and calendulas. They reported the award of a certificate of merit to Carnation Winsome, the pink variety of Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, which won the American Carnation Society's gold medal and took three blue ribbons in the pink classes at the St. Louis show recently. This variety has been grown by Hartje & Elder since 1916 and has been found by them to be an exceedingly free and early bloomer. The flowers exhibited showed a particularly pleasing hue under the artificial light.

Honorable mention was awarded E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, for his exhibit of three carnation seedlings, one white, one pink and one variegated. E. E. Schmeltkopf, of Park Ridge, was awarded honorable mention on his vase of Carnation Multiflora.

A certificate of merit was awarded George J. Ball for his vase of a new yellow calendula, a cross between Lemon Queen and his orange strain.

The chrysanthemums were judged by Hans Jepsen, George J. Ball and Henry Ludeke. They awarded a certificate of merit to E. G. Hill's seedling, Giant White, an incurved exhibition variety, creamy white in color. Two other white seedlings were shown by the E. G. Hill Co., Mrs. G. W. Burke and Monarch.

A number of vases of both large-flowered and pompon mums were exhibited by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich. The judges awarded a certificate of merit to them as a group. A certificate of merit was awarded also to Corneto, a dark pink incurved exhibition variety; to Orange Queen, a large commercial flower, and to Bronzito, a bronze button pompon. Honorable mention was awarded Florera, a sulphur yellow anemone variety. The other varieties shown by Mr. Smith were Rosa Raisa, a light pink, incurved exhibition variety; Lucia, a yellow pompon; Rose Delight, a rose-pink, incurved exhibition variety; White Surprise, a large commercial flower, and Pink Treasure, a large commercial pink.

Peter Pearson was awarded a certificate of merit on his display of pompon chrysanthemums. The varieties included Louise Davenport, a fine bronze; the flower business appears to have felt this autumn has made it seem a favorable time for the elder Mr. Papatony to resume his former occupation as florist.

Elaborate preparations are being made at Morton Grove to entertain a large number of visitors on the occasion of the meeting of the florists' club there, December 7. All the members and employees of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. are determined that the affair shall class with the highly successful outings at Niles Center and at Maywood.

The marriage is announced of John Wietor, son of Henry Wietor, a member of the rose-growing firm of Wietor Bros. & Borst. The bride was Miss Schmidt. The wedding took place November 9.

Street improvements in Grand boulevard have temporarily disturbed conditions at the store of John T. Muir, but the new pavement passing his door will eventually be a trade accelerator.

Edward Goldenstein celebrated his thirty-sixth birthday anniversary November 19.

John Poehlmann motored to Peoria November 18, to spend Sunday with his sister, whose residence is there, returning November 20. It was a trip of 450 miles.

the store of Peter Reinberg, Inc., was reported November 20, by Louis Hoeckner.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has removed its supplies factory, warehouse and shipping room to the new location, on the fourth and fifth floors at 67 and 69 East Lake street. The salesroom and office of the supplies department probably will not be removed to the second floor at 163 and 165 North Wabash avenue until after the Christmas rush of shipping.

Announcement of A. B. C. plans for opening a wholesale bulb, flower seed and supplies store in New York city appears on a forward page of this issue. It is known to have been one of A. Miller's long cherished plans.

At Hinsdale F. R. Crane, Jr., is making good progress with the oil burning installation for Bassett & Washburn. The trade will be invited out to see it work in cold weather. Mr. Washburn says Thanksgiving orders for cut flowers already are coming strong, but that they contain many reminders Thanksgiving is distinctly a low-priced day.

Within the next few days the County court will confirm the assessments for the paving of Seventy-first street, an improvement which will add materially to the value of the location of Johnson & Jensen, at the corner of Euclid avenue.

November 21 John Kruchten received many congratulations from those who remembered that it was his fortieth birthday anniversary. Mr. Kruchten is of that favored disposition which makes the best of each day as it passes, whatever its troubles, and looks as youthful as when he first started in the wholesale cut flower business. His house recently has taken on several new growers and is doing the largest business in its history.

Florists' Club Meets.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held Wednesday, November 15, at 1228 Grand avenue. About thirty-five members were present and the session was one of the liveliest yet held. Miss Hayden, who served last year as chairman of the publicity fund committee and had been reappointed to that office for the present year, asked to be relieved. She said she thought someone else should assume that work for the next twelve months. W. J. Barnes, president of the club, appointed William L. Rock. Mr. Barnes made a brief address, in which he earnestly requested the members to attend every meeting of the club and to be alive to every question pertaining to the trade. He suggested that Kansas City have a flower show and that the national trade organizations be invited to hold their meetings in Kansas City more frequently. The possibilities of All Saints' day as a flower day were shown by the figures from other cities, particularly in the south. Retailers were urged to have sales when there is a glut on the market and to advertise their business by giving the public the benefit of the surplus, instead of throwing the flowers away. Many excellent ideas were embodied in Mr. Barnes' talk.

John Klaus told the members that a meeting of the growers and wholesale florists had been held several days before and they had decided to do some special cooperative advertising in The Review. He said they felt that this method would bring the growers better results than advertising in local newspapers before the big holidays. Robert Fields asked if this meant that the growers and wholesalers would repudiate their contracts for local publicity. T. J. Noll said the wholesalers were as much interested in publicity as the retailers, but they wished to make the Kansas City market known to the country at large. Under the new arrangement, if an order is sent to one wholesaler and he has not the stock called for, he will get it from another wholesaler. Prices will be the same in all the wholesale houses. Mr. Noll said that sales could be put on at times when the market is glutted with stock and the growers would have the benefit of even a small return on their stock, rather than have it thrown away. These sales would be advertised with the statement that it was on account of a surplus and the price was less than the cost of production. Such a sale was to be put on the wished to withdraw contributions. The growers, he said, felt that they should have more benefit from the publicity fund, and wished to use part of it in a different manner and for the benefit of all the florists.

Glenn K. Parker said that the growers must be considered, for, unless the growers produced stock, there would be no market; the growers would not produce stock if it had to remain on their counters. Mr. Parker said that the average cost of growing a rose is 6 cents, and of the vast quantity of roses cut since last August, the price had not averaged 2 cents. Shipping growers, as well as local growers, were turning part of their houses to the culture of vegetables, Mr. Parker said. "When there was a glut of roses three weeks ago, the retail stores asked from $3 to $7.50. The department stores sold roses for 50 cents a dozen." John Stevens said that the growers had no fault to find with the publicity already given the florists, but they consider the new plan a step forward for Kansas City florists, as a whole.

Longview Farm has about 4,000 mums to be cut for Thanksgiving.

A. Newell sold about 200 art bowls in the Caroline glassware last week. These goods have been on display less than two weeks and some numbers have been sold out.

Rau & Kupfer will have a good cut of Loyalty for Thanksgiving. They have cut the last of their Bonnaffons.

M. E. Carter has returned from Denver, Colo., where he was one of the judges at the flower show. He said the show was exceedingly interesting and the attendance was gratifying. The two nights that he was present about 12,000 persons visited the show.

Mrs. Ray Holt, of the Kirkwood Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia., was a recent visitor.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges is getting many Thanksgiving orders and selling wreaths for that day. Saturday, November 18, she sold fourteen wreaths.

The rose Annie Laurie, of the Stuppy Floral Co., won a blue ribbon at the Minneapolis flower show. The rose is taking well wherever shown and is a good seller.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is still receiving good rose stock.

John Lambert, of the Ove Gnat Co., La Porte, Ind.; H. A. Bertoli, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and E. C. Amling, of Chicago, called on the trade November 17 and 18.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its regular meeting November 16, after a 6 o'clock dinner at the Stevens House. Forty members were in attendance. The meeting was called to order by President Harry K. Rohrer. The first speaker was Professor E. K. Hibshman, assistant to the president of Pennsylvania State College, who spoke on the efforts being made to help the florist directly with his many problems and of the efforts being made to raise $2,000,000 to be used for dormitories, a hospital and other buildings to care for the thousands of young men and women who annually cannot be cared for at that institution. The Lancaster county florists will join with the other floricultural bodies of the state in doing their bit to aid in this worthy cause.

The next speaker was the newly elected president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, Edward Reid, who gave a practical talk on "Common Sense in the Greenhouse Business," asking whether men are careful enough in determining costs and whether crops are produced at a sufficient profit to the growers to meet the continually mounting overhead and the gradually declining prices received by them for their flowers. Mr. Reid also spoke of what concerted action by florists with respect to the express company would do for them and declared himself favorable to coöperative buying by communities of florists.

On motion by Charles B. Herr, it was decided to hold the next meeting of the club at the Stevens House December 14. One new member was elected. A. K. Rohrer and A. F. Strickler were appointed auditors of the treasurer's accounts.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The season has opened in earnest. The stores are really busy. Flowers are selling; only white is overdone. The week, November 13 to 18, opened poorly, but by Saturday, November 18, activity was general. The surplus of roses has disappeared. Chrysanthemums are in heavy supply and the demand for them is fair. The show stock, chiefly Turners, is over. They were exceedingly fine, but soft for commercial purposes. Bonnaffon, Whittier, Chadwick, Golden Chadwick, Seidewitz and other late varieties are in full crop. The troubles are in poor and bruised flowers. Pompons are in oversupply. The poorer varieties are disappearing; in their place better varieties are coming. There is an oversupply of white carnations; poor whites, especially, are almost impossible to market. White roses also are difficult to sell. Paper White narcissi have come, but they receive no encouragement.

Orchids are scarce. Good Cattleya Trianae bring high prices. There are some of the smaller Percivaliana and both fancy and common cypripediums. Gardenias have declined in value. There is no special demand for them. There are a good many sweet peas, but they sell slowly. Violets are selling fairly well. Valley is higher in price than it was. There are some fair snapdragons. Callas and Easter lilies are in moderate supply. There is a large supply of greens in excellent assortment.

Godfrey Aschmann.

There are orders picked out in the packing sheds, and the force is busy spacing the stock that will be ready for Christmas sales; so it is a good chance to look over the place that has for so long made a specialty of plants for the holidays. You find here varieties that are not generally grown by the wholesale plantmen—the serviceable plants that do well in the home, but are of modest, rather than showy, appearance. plants are just coming into bloom. Begonia luminosa is one of those lovely little house plants that seem to breathe modesty and health, and it has always been a favorite here. The other begonias are divided 'twixt Lorraine, Cincinnati and Melior. The first-mentioned was extremely robust.

Ferns are an exceedingly important part of the stock. Scottii, Teddy, Jr., Whitmanii, Macawii and good old Boston are the varieties. They are growing freely. Pteris Wilsonii, Pteris rivertoniana and the holly fern, Cyrtomium falcatum, are prized in the fernery sizes. A large block of Solanum Cleveland was potted last month, to give berry plants for the holidays. There is a house of palms and a promising lot of cinerarias, for which the

An Insult.

There was a table decoration staged for competition for the prizes offered by the Garden Club of America at the recent exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, held in the Academy of Music, that excited much comment. This table, arranged by one of the members of the Garden Club, was perfectly appointed in every detail, save one. It lacked flowers. Those who saw it thought at first that it was say, "What's wrong?" Gradually, however, it dawned on the visitors that this was not the object of the decorator, but that she seriously intended her table to compete with the others and honestly believed that it would capture the blue ribbon. There was the loveliest of the loveliest of old china, charming candelabra, and, by way of final touch, two large bunches of grapes, one purple, the other pink, laid side by side, the better to display their perfect proportions, just enough to one side of the center of the table to make it quite clear that there was no effort at formality of arrangement. Those of the spectators who were wholly unbiased were delighted with this table; it was so artistic. But those loyal to the P. H. S. and those tainted by commercialism were shocked at the affront. A table competing in a flower show without flowers! What are we coming to? Worse still, the judges fell in love with the table, many of them, and voted for it. Fortunately, however, a majority voted the other way, and the tempest in the teapot happily subsided.

The Germantown Show.

Mrs. Hutchinson was so much pleased with the Germantown show held in the library of Vernon park, November 13, that she promised to add to her already liberal list of special prizes. There were entries in every class, both regular and special, and good entries right straight through. There were numbers of Japanese and hardy pompon chrysanthemums in several sizes and in fans, pyramids and standards. They came from the private gardeners, who loyally support the society. Richard Rothe spoke on fruit culture. There was a good attendance.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums continue to be abundant, and the market for a few days longer will be comparatively weak. Conditions, however, are far ahead of those a year ago, when there was such an agitation that markets were thrown open after a certain hour for retail trade. While values seem low compared with two or three weeks ago, growers are pretty well satisfied with returns, and the near approach of Thanksgiving makes certain the cleaning up of the bulk of mums and better prices for other flowers.

Chrysanthemums are selling much the same as a week ago. Of the single-bloom varieties, Bonaffon far overtops all others in number and popularity; Rager comes next, and Chieftain, Harvard and a few other sorts are seen. Of the pompons and singles, some of the most popular are bronze and pink Buckingham, white and pink Doty, Yellow Climax, Source d'Or, Soleil d'Or and yellow and white Mensa.

Roses are moving fairly well, with prices a shade better than a week ago. Cuts are all more or less reduced during the mum season, anyway. Carnations continue quite weak, but they will soon assert themselves. Violets are not plentiful and easily hold up to $1.50 per hundred. There are some excellent sweet peas coming from several growers. Calendulas are in increased supply and meet with a good sale. There are small lots of snapdragons; prices vary from $3 to $6 per hundred. All are quite short-stemmed as yet. Callas are more plentiful and bring $2 to $3 per dozen. There are small lots of Easter lilies, and Paper Whites have appeared. Valley is in better demand for weddings, and the quality is much improved. White bouvardia continues in favor for weddings. Cattleyas and cypripediums are both available in good numbers. Gardenias continue scarce, at $6 per dozen.

Some camellias are now added to the available flowering plants, also standard heliotropes. There are good Erica melanthera, as well as the usual supply of cyclamens and begonias. Oranges are now being freely shown in the windows and are well fruited. Yellow and scarlet solanums are seen about everywhere. Scarlet berries for the holidays are already seen, as well as wreaths. Pine cones in sacks are among the articles being received from northern New England points.

Club Field Day.

The field day of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, at the range of the Halifax Gardens Co., Halifax, Mass., November 18, attracted a large attendance of growers, private gardeners and flower salesmen, and proved both interesting and profitable. The weather was ideal, with a shade temperature of 60 degrees and clear skies. Visitors were present from Nashua, N. H.; Framingham, Concord, Jamaica Plain, Brookline, Hingham, Plymouth, Pembroke, Braintree, Leominster, Taunton, New Bedford, Weymouth, Milton, Readville and other towns and cities.

Everyone was surprised and delighted to see this big range in such splendid condition. There were some 75,000 carnations, and all were in first-class shape; all are planted in solid beds. White Delight was doing finely, as were Matchless and Thomas C. Joy. Pink Delight is not grown, Enchantress Supreme being preferred. Morning Glow was blooming heavily here, as it is everywhere; it is a wonderful producer. Miss Theo, while small, proves profitable. Doris is grown as a crimson, and Aviator and Belle Washburn as scarlets; the last named will be dropped as unprofitable. Maine Sunshine was smothered with bloom. Ward succeeds well and is largely grown, as is Laddie. Other sorts are Cottage Maid and Rosalia.

About 35,000 roses are grown, and not a speck of mildew or black spot could be seen. Premier, Columbia and Butterfly could hardly have been better. Ophelia, Hadley, Pilgrim, Double White Killarney and Angelus are also grown; the last-named is well liked on account of its freedom from mildew and splendid keeping qualities. A couple of new houses, 300 feet long, will be built next spring. At present the demand for roses is well ahead of the supply.

Chrysanthemums filled one of the largest houses. Some varieties were, of course, all cut, and calendulas or snapdragons were planted in their places. Grand lots of Bonnafon, Harvard and Rager were right for Thanksgiving, while beautiful batches of such pompons as Romaine Warren, Hilda Canning, Golden Climax, Doris, Leilah, Soleil d'Or and Eugene Languelot were seen. One large division contained cattleyas and Oncidium splendidum and O. varicosum Rogersii. Some cauliflower and string beans are also forced.

There is a large poultry farm here. Turkeys, guinea fowl and many hundred Rhode Island Reds and Barred Rocks were noted. A ton of manure from these each week is useful as a fertilizer. A large dairy herd in a good, modern barn furnishes the needed cow manure.

Interesting experiments were noted on roses, carnations and mums, in which bacteria had been used in lieu of cow manure, with apparently just as satisfactory results. Everything in the houses was exceedingly neat, not a weed or dead leaf to be seen—a credit to Eber Holmes, the able manager, and his efficient staff.

An excellent lunch was served in the commodious packing room. Dr. Bernard Field gave an interesting talk on "Bacteria vs. Fertilizers," his paper being read by W. N. Craig. Quite a number of questions were asked, and Dr. Field amplified his paper and promised big things for growers in the near future. He was cordially thanked for his address, and thanks were also extended to Mr. Holmes, on motion of Boxwood is today the classic decorative material for all occasions. We, of the present generation, are studying for unique decorations and are always looking for something new — there is nothing new under the sun — we just reflect back to the description of those old colonists whose holiday festivities were most unique, especially at Thanksgiving and "Ye Auld Yule Tide." Garlands of boxwood sprays and fruits intermingled were used. Wreaths for the doors and windows were made of boxwood sprays interwoven with holly, bayberries and bittersweet. We ship anywhere in the United States and Canada. A few pounds of our sprays will make a good-sized wreath. All good, clean, merchantable fancy tips. We are ready to make delivery now or at any date desired. Place your order today and be assured of good, merchantable stock. Price, per 100 lbs.....$22.50. Price on larger quantities on application.

HEADQUARTERS FOR XMAS GREENS Boxwood Sprays

Mistletoe

Of course nobody, particularly the florists and young folks, wants to miss MISTLETOE for Christmas. Last year we were compelled to decline some late orders. Your orders will be greatly appreciated. Our Mistletoe is of prime quality, especially selected stock from Southern Mexico. Bright, healthy, glistening berries with clean, bright foliage. It will facilitate matters greatly at this time if you will get your orders to us AT ONCE. Please bear in mind that we are obliged to fully book our purchases by December 1st. Price, per pound.....25c. Put up in 10 and 25-lb. corrugated cartons.

President William H. Judd. The field day was one of the most enjoyable ones the club has ever held.

Various Notes.

Victor Heurlin, of the Blue Hill Nurseries, South Braintree, Mass., with Herbert Fox, left November 12 for California, going over the road in a Chandler car. They plan to spend the winter in California and may stay even longer.

November so far has proved to be a warm and pleasant month, easy on the fuel piles. Many people have not yet had any occasion to start furnace fires in their homes. For the last twelve years we have had an average excess of 636 degrees of heat. So far this year, we have already had over 700 degrees excess. Precipitation is much below normal. Pompon chrysanthemums outdoors are still blooming freely in many places.

Robert Hutecheon, the Stoughton florist, has bought thirteen acres of land in Abington. He will move there and devote all his time to gladiolus culture, which he took up several years ago and of which he has made an excellent success. He has produced some fine hybrids, and in his new location he will have a chance to do more hybridizing.

The Beacon Florist, Inc., 6 Beacon street, has constructed an elevated office, filling the upper part of the huge show window, for the bookkeeper. Other decided improvements have been made in the store. When the reporter called, Mr. Eisemann was just sending a cable order to Southampton, England, for flowers to be delivered to Colonel A. A. Gaston, recently Democratic candidate for senator, who nearly succeeded in displacing Henry Cabot Lodge. A neat delivery car has recently been put in commission.

The death of Henry H. Barrows, of Whitman, noted in another column, removes one who was well known locally as the introducer of the Barrows and Whitman ferns and who for many years had been a fern specialist.

William H. Elliott is much pleased with the behavior of Rose Angelus and finds it remarkably immune from mildew, a free bloomer and a splendid keeper when cut.

James Wheeler has about 20,000 plants of his pink sport from Matchless planted in his largest house, and it is rendering a good account of itself.

Oil heating is getting a strong hold locally. When such prominent growers as Thomas Roland, Harold J. Pat-

The Houghton-Gorney Co. is showing some nice camellias. The firm's big bunches of pansies are again a striking feature, also.

Victor B. Olson, of the Bay Street Greenhouses, Taunton, has installed oil heating in his greenhouse range and finds that it gives him satisfactory results.

Norris F. Comley, of Burlington, is sending in extremely good single violets, in addition to quantities of carnations and chrysanthemums.

Harold J. Patten, of Tewksbury, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fisher, of Ellis, visited the Providence fall exhibition November 18, and also looked over the fine oil heating installation at the Quidnick Greenhouses, Quidnick, R. I. Mr. Patten cleaned up the lion's share of the carnation premiums at the flower show, for the second successive year.

The annual meeting and election of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held November 18. The following officers for 1923 were elected: President, Albert C. Burrage; vice-president, Thomas Allen; trustees for three years, Arthur Lyman, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Edwin I. Webster and Fred A. Wilson; trustees for two years, Robert Cameron and E. G. Wilson; trustee for one year, Mrs. Homer Gage; nominating committee, C. S. Sargent, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, John I. Ames and Thomas Roland. The committee on prizes and exhibitions has held two meetings lately and has drafted the schedule of premiums for the 1923 shows.

Young's hotel November 15. Among those present from a distance were R. T. Brown, Queens, N. Y., and C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me. Mr. Strout showed some handsome vases of Improved Ward, Donald and Rosalind carnations. Gustave Thommen spoke on oil heating and an animated discussion followed, in which A. W. Butterworth, E. A. Peirce, H. J. Patten and F. A. Wilson participated. W. N. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business was slow the early part of last week, and it was almost impossible to move the stock that was on hand, but, by Saturday, November 18, the situation completely reversed itself, and the market was stripped clean of salable flowers of all kinds. Roses could not be had after noon Saturday, November 18, in any quantity worth speaking of.

Roses have been coming into the market in extra fine quality from many sources of supply. The prices range from $4 to $15 per hundred, with $20 per hundred for some few specials. The favorites last week were Columbia and Premier, in the less expensive grades, and there were many calls for Legion and Crusader. These, with the addition of Butterfly, represent the best roses now being offered by local producers. American Beauty roses are still scarce and are bringing $6 to $9 per dozen.

Carnations were pretty well taken up throughout the week at $3 to $4 per hundred, for ordinary varieties, and $6 to $8 per hundred, on specials, such as Laddie and extra fine Ward. Some poor stock was marketed at around $2 per hundred.

Chrysanthemums were offered in large quantities and ranged in price from $15 per hundred to $3 and $4 per dozen for the best of the ordinary varieties. Special stocks sold at from $4 to $8 per dozen, and included among these were the Turners, Golden Glow, Jones and several fancy varieties.

Cattleyas have been scarce and the supply does not come up to the demand. The average price is $150 per hundred, but orders have to be turned down often, due to the inability of the local wholesalers to secure needed stock.

Valley still brings $8 per hundred, but its sale last week was somewhat draggy. Snapdragon brings 50 cents.

per bunch. At times there is a heavy call for this flower; it is popular here all the year around. Single violets are in some demand and are priced at 75 cents and $1 per hundred; doubles have not yet become popular and there is little demand for them at 50 cents per hundred.

Pompons have not been selling well, and it is thought that the quality of these flowers, generally speaking, has not been as good this year as in previous seasons. Fifty cents per bunch has been almost the top price at all times, except for a few novelties which brought 75 cents and $1 per bunch.

"Say It" Week.

The various big events of last week were more or less marred by the rain that visited Washington, but, undaunted, those responsible for "Say It with Flowers" attractions went ahead with their plans. Included were the big luncheon meeting of the Washington Rotary Club tendered by William F. Gude and the floral parade staged Saturday, November 18, by the Louise Flower Shop.

About 200 persons accepted the invitation of Mr. Gude and included among these were several florists from out of town, to whom a special invitation had been sent. An open invitation to all Rotarian florists within 500 miles of Washington to attend was broadcasted by Mr. Gude and a considerable number of the recipients sent letters or telegrams of regret at their inability to come here for the event.

There were many of the city's notables present. Following the luncheon, little Miss Wilhelmina Gude entertained her father's guests with dialect recitations and later the assembled guests were divided into parties and conducted through the greenhouses. It was a big day for Big Bill and all who participated were loud in their praise of his hospitality and the flowers that he produces.

A considerable number of Washington's debutantes braved the elements to help Miss Louise Daugherty, head of the Louise Flower Shop, make a hit with her floral parade. In the line were about a dozen floats depicting the various uses to which flowers are put. At the head of the parade was a band and messenger boys on wheels followed closely.

The F. T. D. floats attracted a great deal of attention. One float showed a telegraph operator taking a floral message over the regulation desk receiving sets, while a messenger boy with his bicycle stood nearby ready to race with the order to the Louise Flower Shop for quick delivery. Another "action float" showed a young lady at a switchboard taking orders in a similar way.

The bride stood amid a bridal decoration, undismayed by the falling rain. Santa Claus, depicting the forthcoming holiday season, when floral orders will be placed in large numbers, and old Father Time, on the last float, representing Thanksgiving day, were excellent examples of the florist's art.

A group of young ladies on horseback and a score or so of Studebaker automobiles, each decorated, gave further life to the parade. The automobile people cooperated with Miss Daugherty in putting the event across. She deserves a great deal of credit, and it was a matter of considerable regret on the part of her friends that the rain took away some of the beauty and prevented a large number of people from viewing the event.

Various Notes.

Miss Daugherty is staging a flower show at the Louise Flower Shop, displaying a collection of blooms representing all the varieties that can be obtained locally at the present time and many others brought here from nearby markets. She sent out 500 attractive invitations and the attendance at the store was large.

A. B. Price, who handles boxwood, ferns, etc., is the happiest man in town these days. A baby boy came to stay at his house. T. N. S.

Shelbyville, Ind.—L. P. Ford & Son have a fine, up-to-date greenhouse, 16x75. The firm grows cut flowers for the market and is enjoying a good business.

Stevensville, Mont.—Fire, caused by an overheated furnace, partially destroyed the greenhouse of H. C. Raymond. The loss is estimated at $5,000, which was not covered by insurance.

Marion, Ill.—Mrs. Minnie Lilley Copeland, proprietor of the Marion Greenhouses, has opened a store and display room in the Pride building, 202 West Main street, at which she will keep a full stock of greenhouse products. She held an opening Thursday, November 16, at which nearly 300 visitors registered. Mrs. Copeland says that the store is getting a fine start.

FOR SALE

One of the best income producing nurseries in California. Situated in a large and growing suburb of Los Angeles, established for 16 years, it has become now one of the largest ornamental nurseries in southern California. The annual sales total approximately $50,000, as books will show. It enjoys a large select retail and wholesale trade. Covers about 15 acres of ground with the choicest nursery stock of an inventory value of $70,000. Besides this there are glass houses, lath houses, buildings, delivery trucks and other equipment in the best of condition; land where office and sales yard are located is near business center and valuable. A good opportunity for an individual partnership or corporation.

Owner wishes to retire from active business, but would consider keeping a small interest therein. Anyone interested

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Stock has shortened considerably and the local demand is better than usual for this time of year. Everything good is cleaned up daily. Dahlias are lasting well and the rain of last week did not damage the mums any, as it came all in a day or two and was quickly over. It is the drizzle, long drawn out over the weeks, that softens the flowers and makes them unfit for shipment. The growers have been extra fortunate this year.

The demand and supply have been good and there has been practically no glut. Of small flowers, the less said the better; they are not a credit to the market. Roses are arriving in nice shape. The demand for extra lengths is not big, but medium and short lengths clean up daily. Good carnations sell on sight. The shortage of gypsophila is quite marked.

Berried stock, greens of all kinds and maidenhair ferns are in fine demand.

In plants there is little but ferns, palms and cyclamens, with a few dwarf mums.

Various Notes.

As recently noted in The Review, G. L. Crego has been on the lookout for land here. He has now purchased acreage in the San Fernando valley, near San Fernando. Mr. Crego will go largely into bulb culture and, while developing stock, will grow asters, zinnias and other cut flower items for the local market.

Guy French, representing the American Bulb Co., of Chicago, called on the trade last week.

Henry Bailey, of Montebello, recently returned from a trip to Carlsbad to look over the freesias, and he is greatly pleased with the progress the bulbs are making. L. L. Gage and Mr. Bailey are associated in freesia culture there, and both are enthusiastic over the prospects. Mr. Gage grew some last season and the bulbs were wonderful, clean, large and of splendid development. This year a much larger quantity will be grown.

L. D. Jackson, who recently bought five acres here, has added another ten.

Fine cyclamens are being sent into the market from Wright's Flower Shop greenhouses in all the best sizes. While many of the roses are in short and medium lengths, they are of good quality and sell well. At the store business is keeping up well and T. H. Wright is putting in a little more time now preparing for Thanksgiving and Christmas trade.

The cut of plumosus at the Artesia Nurseries is extra good, over 50,000 sprays being cut on the occasion of a recent visit. Mr. Gorini has his staff busy planting Dutch bulbs, about 40,000 tulips being one of the items.

E. C. Amling has returned from his Chicago trip and H. Amling is busy at the store. Baskets in all sizes and patterns are the leaders here now.

The Broadway Florist has now a staff of twenty employees and all are kept busy in the different departments.

The sympathy of the trade is with L. Wolfskill in the death last week of his sister, Mrs. Hurlbert.

A. Donohue, the veteran florist of Omaha, Neb., is spending the winter at Long Beach. He called recently on his old friend and coworker, Louis Lecluse, who came here from Omaha about twelve years ago. Mr. Donohue is 81 years young, brisk and hearty, and takes considerable interest in the flower business here.

Big shipments of various stocks are leaving the store of W. Armacost & Co. daily, the fall trade having started in with a rush. The output of cyclamens and other plants and greens from the Sawtelle plant is also increasing weekly. According to the inquiries and future orders in the office at East Fourth street, the holiday trade is going to be a record-breaker.

Albert Goldenson was on the sick list last week, thus putting double duty on Louis Dubin. Business is good at the Sixth street store.

Frank Lichtenberg reports an increasing business at his store on Seventh and Figueroa streets. W. Armstrong, son of R. Armstrong, of Santa Barbara, and recently on the staff of Jaeger & Son, San Francisco, is now on the Lichtenberg staff.

C. Ross, recently with Paul Howard, on West Seventh street, has opened the "Sign of the Rose," at Fourteenth and Main streets, Riverside. Mr. Ross was formerly in business in Riverside at the Orange Blossom Shop, but sold out his interest to Mr. St. John some years ago. He was formerly with Henry Penn, of Boston, and his long and varied experience seems to foreshadow success.

Paul Ecke returned from a business trip to the northern part of the state last week. He says that he found the demand for his poinsettias good. The stock looks fine in the Hollywood fields.

C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., arrived in the city last week and has been visiting the growers, looking up stock for his Christmas trade. Mr. Morton has increased the size of his store and says the outlook there is extra good.

HEMET, CAL.

Say "Heather"

—we don't care if you are busy!

We want you to sit right down now and drop us a line about like this: "Please send us, post-paid, a free sample of your 4-inch Christmas Heather."

If this is too long, cut out the "Please" and simply say, "Send me a Heather plant."

Some time ago I took a bunch of Boy Scouts off on a hike. After tramping over a few square miles of mountains, we stopped and cooked dinner. They didn't waste much time on unnecessary language. They just shoved out their plates and said, "Bread!" "Meat!" "Potatoes!" "Butter!" I knew exactly what they meant. So if you just say, "Heather," I'll know what you mean too, and you'll get a free sample by return mail.

Lots of folks would like to see just what our Heather looks like. Some of them come to the nursery to see it growing. These people always buy Heather. We like a chance to show our stock; to knock a plant out of the pot and show that it has been pot-grown from the very beginning. We grow a very large plant in a small pot. Many of our 4-inch plants would not look overpotted in a 6-inch. Our plants are all heavily budded this year. We know that you can use them to good advantage in making up your fancy pots and baskets. So please let us send you the sample.

We told you last week that the 4-inch Cyclamens are all sold. We have a wonderful stock in 5-inch, 6-inch, 8-inch and 9-inch. We published the prices last week. Better be getting your order in at once.

But the first thing you do, sit right down and write "Heather" on a postal card, with your name and address, and send it to—rains and light frosts at night were seen in the sudden falling off of outdoor stock. Plenty of marigolds and gillyflowers were still in evidence, but the other outdoor summer stock, such as cosmos, zinnias and cornflowers, was almost gone. The weather was excellent for violets, and stock was plentiful and good. Chrysanthemums were a strong factor in the market, despite the fact that the heaviest of the mum crop had been cut. Pompon chrysanthemums were much in evidence and some large mums were being cut. The chrysanthemum crop will, in all probability, last well over Thanksgiving. Roses were reported to be somewhat scarce last week, though some firms were well supplied. The price of roses had gone up. Gardenias were in good shape and there were enough to take care of the demand. Lilies of the valley were not too plentiful and orchids were still short, although there were a number of varieties being cut. There were plenty of cut and potted cyclamens in the market.

Various Notes.

Sacramento held its second annual flower show November 11 and 12, under the auspices of the Woman's Council of Sacramento. The display took place in the Crocker art gallery and crowds flocked to see the flowers. The Rotary, Lions', Kiwanis and Exchange Clubs all contributed cash prizes for the best specimens shown.

Through the combined efforts of San Francisco shippers, refrigerator cars will now leave with flower shipments for the east Mondays and Thursdays, instead of on every Tuesday and Friday, as formerly proposed. The peak of the chrysanthemum season being past, the daily refrigerator service has been discontinued, but the Monday service enables florists in the east to receive their consignments of violets, chrysanthemums, etc., late in the week, but in time for the week-end trade, instead of having the flowers held up over Sunday.

J. A. Axell secured a splendid crop of Waite chrysanthemums for the Thanksgiving trade. The grower who specialized in them began sending in the flowers some weeks before the festive season. They are large and more brilliant in color than the usual combination of cardinal and old gold of the Waite mum. Mr. Axell is handling quantities of excellent violets.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is still ill in St. Mary's hospital, but he is recovering and his condition is reported to be satisfactory. J. Young, buyer for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is at home, suffering from a serious illness.

E. W. McLellan has a large crop of gardenias coming in and is successfully sending them all over the country by refrigerator car. The firm is meeting with encouraging returns from sending cut roses as far as Montana and British Columbia.

Miss Helen Alling, of Sacramento, has accepted a position with Darbee's. According to her enthusiastic friend, A. J. Gooch, of Darbee's, Miss Alling is an all-around girl, who can sell flowers, drive a car, pack flowers for shipment as well as a man, and, generally, perform all the sales and decorative work of a skilled florist. Darbee's is handling large crops of violets and has a good demand for shipments of greens and huckleberry sprays.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. is ending a successful season of imported Dutch bulbs. It was stated at the Market street store that the firm could have sold a good many more of some varieties. Rose bushes, berry vines, etc., will be featured after December 1. The catalogue, which will be out on that date, is bigger and better than ever.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are just putting a new delivery car into operation. F. C. Jaeger, Jr., said: "The firm is doing a large amount of retail advertising, and results are proving the wisdom of this course of action."

T. Oishi, manager of the United Flower & Supply Co., said: "From now on we shall have enough strawflowers to take care of all demands. The place at Half Moon Bay, where our strawflowers are grown, is practically free from frost. We have a special drying room at Half Moon Bay."

Enomoto & Co. have good rose crops coming in. Mr. Enomoto has recently had so much success with shipping his roses that he is now sending them all over, and states that they are arriving at distant points in fine condition.

S. L. Pritchard, of the flower department of Goldberg, Bowen & Co., ordered Christmas wreaths and novelties somewhat heavily early in the season. He states that he is almost sold out on this line and that the result has justified him in ordering these somewhat expensive novelties.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been kept busy with social orders. The coming-

The Market.

With a cold wave and a light frost occurring last week, business is on the increase. Chrysanthemums and pompons are the chief features of the market and these are in heavy supply. Valley is more plentiful. Roses are cleaning up every day and are of good quality. All indications point to the fact that there will be a fair cut for the holiday trade, as the bright, cool weather of the last two weeks is bringing stock in splendidly. Some Lorraine begonias are coming in. Ferns are plentiful and are moving fairly well.

Flower Show Held.

The second annual flower show of Portland opened November 14 in the Green room of the Chamber of Commerce, offering a display of chrysanthemums, roses, carnations and other flowers. The show was arranged by the

The meeting of the Florists' Club was held November 7 and the matter of taking up with the undertakers the withdrawal of the funeral notices from the papers was given consideration. This withdrawal is already being felt by the florists. Heretofore the death notices have been published free of charge, while now the papers want a charge of $3 for each notice, which charge the undertakers do not wish to pay.

EARN CUSTOMERS WITH CARDS.

What the Public Wants.

Granting that it is return trade which proves the customer is pleased, it is logical to strive toward accomplishing whatever will work in the direction of pleasing the customer.

What does the customer want? First of all, let us, say, he desires quality stock; second, he wishes service; thirdly, and quite important, he certainly wants style to as great an extent as possible. He does not want to receive flowers, even first-class ones, wrapped in newspaper; he does not want his flowers to arrive in a cheap box and he does not want the name and address to be scribbled across the box in a slipshod manner.

No doubt, the above explains why so many of our foremost retailers have spent a considerable amount of time in selecting artistic and stylish cards to bear the address of the recipient of their flowers.

Some Are Plain.

Some retailers prefer a plain card. Charles Thorley, of New York, uses a plain white card, $4\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches, upon which the firm name and address are inscribed with gold lettering in the fashion of script. Attached to one end of the card is a receipt, which can be detached by the delivery boy after the recipient has received the flowers. In this way an accurate record of the flowers' reception can be kept.

John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich., employ a card simple in its effect and yet quite artistic. It is a plain white card, about $3 \times 3\frac{1}{2}$ inches, with the firm's name engraved in gold letters upon it. In the upper left-hand corner is a conventional plant design, with the firm's monogram in and through the foliage of the plant. Under the plant so designed is a boost for the telegraph delivery business in "Flowers delivered anywhere by wire."

Others Are Elaborate.

Other retailers prefer more elaborate cards, which are none the less striking. Ralph H. Tinkham, of Fort Wayne, Ind., has a brilliant card. Upon the left side of the card a splendid peacock thrusts itself into the glow of a large yellow moon, while its resplendent tail spreads downward to the bottom of the card. Four or more colors are employed in the making of this effect and it assuredly catches the eye. The firm name is printed in black on a gray background and, right above this, a white space is left for the address of the recipient. The card is about 3×6 inches in size.

The Kemble Floral Co., Waterloo, Ia., sends to its customers with their flowers a card about $3 \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The card is entirely in green with the exception of white green-lined space left for the recipient's address. The firm name and address appear in white raised letters and a gold seal about one inch in diameter bears the motto of the firm: "Our business is growing."

All Are Artistic.

A dainty card is used by the Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses, of Minneapolis, Minn. This firm's card is about 3×6 inches in size and is wholly white, with a narrow green border running around it and ending in an artistic scroll effect. The address of the firm and some other information concerning the company's resources are neatly done in green ink.

Koethe's Flowers, of Roxborough, Philadelphia, Pa., sends out a striking card. It is plain and at the same time notably attractive. It is about 3×6 inches in size and is plain white, with the exception of a 1-inch band of grayish green that runs diagonally across, bearing the firm name. In the upper left-hand corner is a conventional basket design in grayish green and lines of the same color are provided for the address of the recipient.

METHOD TO MOVE MUMS.

This is mum time. At this season mums increase so swiftly in quantity that profits rapidly diminish in some localities and the glut, or near-glut, in mums generally effectually succeeds in hurting the profits on roses and other stock.

Under these circumstances he who succeeds in speeding up the sale of mums to the retail trade is not only helping himself, but is also rendering a distinct service to the rest of the trade. And mums can be moved.

Bertermann Bros. Co., of Indianapolis, know how to do it. The firm's method is shown in the advertisement illustrated on this page. This, according to the firm, is proving effective in the mum business. The advertisement is being run in local papers. It holds a lure, and the purchases made at the store of Bertermann Bros. Co. are helping the whole trade. Let's move more mums.

ARMISTICE DAY IDEA.

Armistice day Hoyt Bros. Co., Spokane, Wash., enacted an idea that the firm thinks is worth-while from an advertising point of view, as well as to gain the reputation of doing good. The company secured the names and addresses of all the Gold Star mothers in Spokane and sent each one a nice box of flowers, with the firm's compliments. This struck a responsive chord with the Gold Star mothers and the public as a whole. The next Sunday's paper gave Hoyt Bros. Co. a fine write-up about it—another proof that ideas and action build business.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"It can be done," commented R. E. Loeben, Gloversville, N. Y., referring to the growing of stock formerly imported, in quantities that are steadily increasing, through the stimulus given growers who see a sure reward for their efforts now that the quarantine is firmly laid. The Loeben establishment is a specimen of several plant growers' places, especially in the east, but gradually extending, in spots, from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. Soil, the great essential, is brought from the pine woods in the Adirondacks and it is a tonic to see the thousands of Indian azaleas, metrosideros and ericas. Spikes of the latter, according to Mr. Loeben, bring $1 each at the firm's retail store and none goes to waste. "If a business such as ours can be worked up in a comparatively small town, what are the possibilities in the larger cities by the aid of trade and local publicity?" queries our veteran confrere, who refers with pardonable pride to kinship with Ernst Benary, of Erfurt, and G. Dippe, Quendlinburg, the famous seed grower and horticulturist. R. E. Loeben, Jr., is following in dad's footsteps.

W. W. Hannell, Watervliet, N. Y., made a tour among the plantsmen on Long Island and commented upon the high quality of stock grown by Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, and Anton Schulteis, College Point, acknowledged leaders in ericas, oranges, cyclamens, etc. The demand for these plants has always taken the best stock. This year will be no exception, judging from the orders already booked.

Considerable funeral work has used up much stock and has called for numerous elaborate designs. Several standing crosses and wreaths were noted at the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., some having been ordered through the Pink Part of The Review. Henry Eberhardt, the genial proprietor, is looking for deer in the Adirondacks. Recent advices to his wife, who ably manages the business during his absence, denoted he was on the track of a deer, which he hoped to have for Thanksgiving dinner.

AMERICAN HORTICULTURISTS.

Elect Dr. A. E. Woods President.

Dr. A. E. Woods, president of the Maryland State Agricultural College, will be the president of the new American Horticultural Society, which held its initial election November 14. The officers elected were in every instance those suggested for the position by the nominating committee appointed at the preceding meeting of the organization, and include the following: First vice-president, Louis Hertle, of Gunston Hall, Va.; second vice-president, T. F. Pappe, of the Department of Agriculture; secretary, Professor D. Lumsden, of the federal horticultural board; treasurer, William F. Gude, national representative of the S. A. F.

The board of directors which will guide the destinies of the organization through its first year consists of Charles Moore, Peter Bisset, C. E. F. Gersdorff, of the Department of Agriculture; George Anderson, of Twin Oaks; Robert Pyle, president of the American Rose Society and of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., elected for two years; Dr. Furmin L. Mulford, of the bureau of plant industry; J. Phelps, E. P. Schwartz, Mrs. L. H. Fowler and V. E. Grotlisch, elected for one year.

Coville Opposes Election.

Election of the officers finally named was opposed strenuously by Frederick W. Coville, of the Department of Agriculture, who asserted that professional and commercial men should not be in charge of an organization devoted to the interests of amateurs. Furthermore, he claimed, the president of the organization would be called upon to devote a great deal of time and energy to the work incident to that office, and should, therefore, be a man able to devote the time necessary. As president of the Maryland Agricultural College, Dr. Woods' time was already more than filled and he would be unable to spare the time necessary for the work of the society.

Louis Hertle, amateur rose grower, was nominated by Mr. Coville for the presidency, and Mr. Pappe for secretary. Mr. Hertle's nomination was seconded by Dr. Woods. It was explained by members of the nominating committee that their candidates for office had been carefully selected, with full knowledge of their professional or commercial connections, with a view to securing the best men possible for the various positions.

Upon the nominations being put to a vote, Dr. Woods was elected president over Mr. Hertle by a vote of twenty-five to twenty-one, and Professor Lumsden was elected over Mr. Pappe by a vote of twenty-four to twenty. The secretary was then instructed to cast the ballot of the society for the other nominees selected by the nominating committee. The speaker of the evening was Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., who told of his work with the hardy chrysanthemum, giving also a brief history of the flower from its first mention in history, in the fourth century. Following the meeting the ladies present were presented with pompon chrysanthemums by G. E. Anderson.

The Market.

Market conditions were unchanged. The supply of mums exceeded the demand. The prices range from 75 cents per bunch to $6 per dozen. The supply of carnations about equals the demand, and the price ranges from $4 to $6 per hundred. Roses are plentiful and the quality of the stock is fine. The supply of Easter lilies is fair. Orchids are scarce. Violets are plentiful, but the quality only fair. Some good cyclamen and begonia plants are reaching the market. The supply of snapdragons is increasing each week.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held Monday, November 13. In the absence of the secretary, John J. Perry was appointed by the chair to that office pro tem. The question of preserving our native trees, shrubs and wild flowers was discussed at length. The local representative of the Garden Clubs of America asked that the florists discontinue the sale of laurel, holly and evergreens, and the club voted to aid the society in every way, to discourage the wholesale slaughter of these things; it did not, however, deem it wise to discontinue the sale of these articles at this time.

It was decided to hold the annual banquet of the club the second Monday in January. The question of holding a spring show was discussed, but, on account of the lateness of the hour, the decision had to be left to the next meeting. The president announced the personnel of the committees for the coming year.

Promptly at 9 p. m. all business was dispensed with and W. F. Besley, our state forester, gave the club a most interesting and instructive illustrated talk on "The Preservation of Our State Forests." After Mr. Besley's talk, the meeting adjourned.

Various Notes.

Miss Isabelle Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Johnston, became the wife of Charles Shipley DeMuth November 8, at 6 p. m. The ceremony

The Market.

The condition of the market last week was unchanged. There were considerable quantities of chrysanthemums arriving and of fine quality. The old Bonaffon mum finds a ready sale. The large exhibition varieties move more slowly. There was also a large stock of pompons in all colors in the market and the bronze, pink and yellow shades moved rapidly. White stock, however, moved slowly.

There were plenty of carnations and lilies in the market. Long-stemmed roses were also plentiful, with little demand. Short-stemmed and medium-sized grades, however, moved well. There were some sweet peas and violets arriving, which sold on sight, and some Paper Whites were also making their appearance. These, however, do not move well during the mum season.

There should have been a larger delegation from this vicinity to witness the fine exhibition there.

H. Locker & Sons, of Wauwatosa, Wis., displayed a vase of sweet peas at the Minneapolis flower show and received first prize.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club held a dance at the Calumet Club, Wednesday evening, November 22, and, judging from the advance sale of tickets, there was a large attendance. P.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The report made a week ago will about hold good for the week just past; namely, business has been slow, with the exception of an occasional spurt. Mums have flooded the market and prices have hit the bottom, some mums selling for little or nothing and some stock going to waste. An occasional wedding and some funeral work were the only things which livened up the business.

The weather has continued warm for this time of year, and outdoor stock is still arriving. A change to real winter weather will, no doubt, bring the desired results and stimulate business considerably. From the present outlook, stock for Thanksgiving will be extremely scarce, as the rose crop is off at present and mums will be almost gone by that time, while carnations are not arriving in any large quantity.

Roses, with the exception of Premier and Columbia, have been plentiful, but Yellow has been most abundant, while good pink and bronze have been scarce. Easter and Japanese lilies have been moving slowly, while valley sells only spasmodically. Carnations are still short-stemmed, although a few long-stemmed flowers find their way into the market. Some fairly good Laddie are now arriving, but have been moving slowly. Violets are arriving, but are still scarce. Outdoor calendulas, bachelor's buttons and gaillardias are still arriving, but the demand for these is small.

chrysanthemums was soon exhausted, and in addition 50,000 pounds of flowers were received from San Francisco. There was also a large quantity shipped from Chicago and other points north. Amateur flower growers also did a good business. In all parts of the city were large signs displayed offering chrysanthemums for sale.

The flower store windows have fine displays of chrysanthemums. Scheinuk the Florist, on St. Charles avenue, has an attractive window display, composed of pot chrysanthemums, grown naturally, and cut blooms. A. H. G.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Business seems to be improving in a general way. Some of the florists, however, are complaining. They forget that the volume of business is larger than it was at the same time during last year. The demand for chrysanthemums has been good this season; in fact, at no time has this market been glutted with these flowers. This does not mean that each day the market was cleaned up, but the demand has been regular. American Beauty roses are in short supply, with a fairly good demand. Other roses are in fair demand. The supply, however, seems to be just about enough to take care of the usual run of business. Carnations are plentiful and do not move rapidly, but this is natural when chrysanthemums are in the market. The quality of the carnations is fine. Sweet peas are now to be had in all colors, but the demand is light. The call for valley continues right along. Easter lilies move well. Some fine orchids were in the market last week. Yellow daisies, calendulas and snapdragon were also available, and all moved fairly well.

Various Notes.

John Boeh, of Blairsville, Pa., was a recent visitor in Pittsburgh. He reports that he has just completed his five greenhouses.

J. B. Murdock, a carnation grower, of Canonsburg, Pa., was a visitor in Pittsburgh to attend the W. & J. football game.

stock already are being grown. A retail place will be opened and the nursery grounds are to be developed in attractive fashion.

In the gardens at Spencer many kinds of plants and bulbs are being grown, including Lilium candidum and L. myriophyllum, more than twenty acres in all. About ten acres are being plotted into city lots for sale as an addition to the city of Spencer, and it is expected soon to seek less valuable ground on which to grow bulbs. The work Mr. Barnes has been doing in growing lily bulbs from seeds has attracted wide attention among florists in Indiana and elsewhere, and something of large commercial importance is expected to develop from this enterprise. Several thousand seedling lilies are among the many items of stock which will be sent to the new place in Florida.

TORONTO, ONT.

Florists' Club Meets.

The Retail Florists' Club held its regular meeting at the club rooms, November 13. President G. M. Geraghty occupied the chair. There was a good attendance, especially of the lady florists. Several important matters received attention and the meeting was enthusiastic throughout.

The following committee was appointed to take charge of the decoration of the Florists' Club's booth at the Royal Winter Fair: G. M. Geraghty, chairman; Miss Riggall, H. James, L. Waters and J. A. Neal. Literature will be distributed telling the public how and when to "Say It with Flowers."

Steps will be taken to carry coöperative advertising in the local papers at Christmas, as formerly. J. A. Neal was appointed treasurer of the Christmas advertising fund.

At the conclusion of the business session cards were enjoyed and the evening ended with refreshments supplied by the president.

Various Notes.

Business has been improving steadily and there has been a steady demand for design work.

The mums being received are of fine quality. There is a plentiful supply and a good demand for them.

John H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill, has been at Montreal in attendance at the supreme council of the Ancient and Accepted Order of the Scottish Rite. At this meeting he received the thirty-third degree, the highest of Masonry. The greenhouses, home and downtown Chrysanthemum Show.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society held the most successful chrysanthemum show November 2 and 3 in its history. There was keen competition in all classes, and the quality of the exhibits has not been excelled this fall. There were 273 exhibits on display. The first prize was awarded to Peter Smith, superintendent for Mrs. Percy Chubb, for a group of chrysanthemums. The first prize for a group of foliage and flowering plants was awarded to the superintendent of Mrs. John T. Pratt's estate. First honors for the cup offered for twelve mums, four varieties, went to Thomas Twigg, Fletcher, won the silver cup donated by Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt; William Milstead, superintendent for Mrs. A. C. Bedford, won second honors in the table decoration contest, while James McCarthy, superintendent for Mrs. H. L. Pratt, won third honors, with James Kelly, superintendent for Mrs. J. P. Morgan, winning fourth place.

Other prize-winners exhibiting mums, violets and outdoor flowers were as follows: James McDonald, superintendent for Mrs. George F. Baker; August Stunger, superintendent for Mrs. M. W. Duball; George Ferguson, superintendent for Mrs. P. Whitney; William Carter, superintendent for Mrs. J. W. Hariman.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall Wednesday, November 8. President Milstead opened the meeting and the secretary read two applications for active membership. The president then appointed S. Trepass, J. Nash and J. Michie to judge the exhibits; they awarded J. Boughler first prize for three white, yellow and pink mums.

The assistant gardeners' table decorations were keenly contested and some fine tables were put up. One table of merit was decorated with roses by Ernest Richille, and received the special prize of the society. The chrysanthemum tables were excellent and the prizes of these were won by James Young, first; Herbert Adams, second; Theodore Phillips, third.

The Honorable Trubee Davison was elected to honorary membership. The judges of the show were given a hearty vote of thanks by the society. The annual meeting will be held Wednesday, December 13, and following the meeting, a smoker will be held. The exhibits will be: Twelve mixed roses; fifty vio-

Business has been exceedingly good for the last two weeks. Funerals, weddings and other social functions have been numerous.

The Flower Shop had the decorations for the debutantes' ball at the Gayoso hotel. There was an immense quantity of flowers used for the occasion, for decorating purposes and for bouquets.

The Home Garden Club held a chrysanthemum show recently. There was a large display of outdoor mums which were entered in the prize contest. The show was a good advertisement for the florists, as they had displays of the finer varieties of mums.

W. H. Englehart, of the Idlewild
Greenhouses, was in Nashville, attending the state convention.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Cleveland Johnson, of the Johnson Greenhouses, were in St. Louis attending the flower show and returned by way of Nashville, where they attended the state convention.

Oscar R. Holley, of the Berclair Greenhouses, was in St. Louis at the flower show. Mr. Holley also attended the convention at Nashville on his return.

The weather conditions are all that could be desired throughout New England and contribute to the brisk business in the city and vicinity. Displays are becoming more plentiful in the stores and windows of the retailers, mums being the rage with the buyers. Stock of all kinds sells readily. Boston ferns and pot plants in general are eagerly sought. Carnations are showing much improvement in length of stem and in color. Roses are plentiful and bring low prices for the grower.

A meeting of the agricultural and horticultural interests was held in Worcester a few days ago and it was voted to blooms in the market. There was an increased demand for the mums Saturday, November 18, due to the game between Princeton and Yale, in which the latter was defeated. Cut flower sales and decorating work is increasing in volume, but funeral work continues to be the bulk of the business for the florists.

Various Notes.

James J. Plunkett, Branford place, near Broad street, reports business good at this time.

Mrs. Henry E. Pickenback, of 58 Northfield avenue, West Orange, N. J., was awarded the first prize and honorable mention for a rock fountain and plant garden in the garden contest of the show at Philadelphia. R. B. M.

LINCOLN, NEB.

The Market.

With the coming of cooler weather, stock of all kinds has shown a decided improvement. Mums are in their glory for the Thanksgiving season. Marigold and Halliday seem to be the best of the yellows, while Chieftain and White Chieftain lead in their colors. The two Eatons and two Fricks will be in for Thanksgiving, together with the smaller Godfreys. The pompons seem to have a never-ending demand. They are peas for corsage work, have been plentiful.

Business picked up last week, because of the colder weather. The University of Nebraska has one of its largest games of the football season here on Thanksgiving day, which will help the holiday's business.

Various Notes.

Paul Yule, son of Fred Yule, was married to Marie Hensley this month. They are making their home at Thirty-third and A streets. He is to be connected with his father in the Yule Floral Co.

Miss Lillian Eiche, of the Eiche Floral Co., entertained the Altrusa Club, consisting of business women, at the greenhouses. The group was personally conducted on a tour through the houses by Dr. Fred Eiche. At the end of the tour a supper was served in the offices of the greenhouses. Beautiful bowls of chrysanthemums formed the table decorations.

One of the largest society weddings of the season was held at Wymore, Neb., about fifty miles from Lincoln. Chapin Bros. did the decorating and report that it was one of the most elaborate decorations that they have made for such an occasion. Southern smilax made a canopy over the large rooms and at the end of the long living room was an improvised altar with cathedral candles. The color scheme was orchid and gold, which was seen in all the home decorations, as well as in the bridal bouquets. Many large, single flowers in these colors were used throughout the house. Irwin Frey, of Frey & Frey, was

MONTREAL, QUE.

Business continues dull. Aside from a little funeral work, retailers are having a quiet time. Cut flowers are plentiful, but there is small demand for them.

Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York, called on the trade last week.

Victor A. Lemieux has had the outside of his store repainted and has re-decorated the inside. Mr. Lemieux reports that November has been a good month for him.

Ley & McAllan furnished the decorations for the Elks' banquet which was held in the lodge rooms Friday evening, November 17. The lodge rooms were effectively decorated with palms, ferns, mums and foliage.

McKenna's had an attractive display of large mums in the store window last week.

R. P. Holmes, manager of the Mount Bruno Floral Co., and E. H. Skinner, of the Montreal Floral Exchange, were visitors in Boston last week-end.

Miss Andet, who has been employed for the last six years by Miss Gernaey, is now with McKenna, Ltd. E. H. S.

GROWING PANDANUS VEITCHII.

What cultural directions should be followed to meet with success in growing Pandanus Veitchii?

G. L. C. & S.—Pa.

Pandanus Veitchii and P. utilis are the commercial varieties of pandanus. The young plants are used principally for home decorations, because of their abundant foliage. These plants thrive best with plenty of heat and water, and they must be supplied with an abundance of moisture during the active period of growth, which is from January on. In order to supply this moisture, dampen the benches, paths and under the benches about three times a day on bright days. Any necessary repotting or renewing of compost should be done before the plants have made too great headway.

A good compost to use is fibrous loam, four parts; well decayed manure and leaf-mold, one part each, with enough sand added to give it a porous texture. The pots in which the plants are placed should have good drainage and the compost should be inserted firmly enough to get it well around the roots. As the days become longer, more water will be necessary, because the sun will be more powerful and evaporation quickened. The temperature may be increased from 60 to 65 degrees at night, and in late spring and summer they will need a night temperature of 70 degrees, together with a little shade when the sun gets strong.

As the autumn approaches, diminish the amount of water applied, as the root action becomes less active and any negligence at this time will cause the loss of the plants. Ventilation must also be done carefully at this time. The plants can be increased from suckers on the main stem. A few of the bottom leaves of the cuttings are removed and then they are placed in pots singly, using a mixture of loam, peat and sand in equal parts. These pots are then plunged in a propagating bench, where they can be subjected to a brisk bottom heat. The cuttings should be taken after January.

CULTURE OF ANTHERICUMS.

Kindly give me cultural directions for anthericums. G. L. C. & S.—Pa.

Varieties of anthericum in commerce are A. Liliago, or Saint Bernard's lily, and A. Liliastrum, Saint Bruno's lily, which is more correctly Paradisea Liliastrum. They are useful for lawn vases, for borders that are protected in the winter in the north, for greenhouses and for growing under benches. They are propagated naturally by stolons, by division and from seeds. They are easy of culture, but require a great deal of water when in bloom. A. Liliago bears spikes of white flowers during May and June, while A. Liliastrum grows about two feet high, with narrow, grass-like foliage and long spikes of lily-like flowers in May and June.

CENTURY PLANT CULTURE.
What cultural directions would apply to the successful growing of the century plant? Three years ago we received three striped green and white century plants from Florida. These plants were grown in a compost of one-third each of well rotted manure, soil and sand. A temperature of 60 degrees was applied. From these plants we have propagated nearly fifty fine plants. G. quantities. A good drainage must be provided, and the plants must also be firmly potted. To grow small plants of the large-leaved kinds into good-sized specimens quickly, they should be plunged out in a sunny spot in the spring, taking care that the pots be large enough so that they will not require repotting in the fall. Nearly all of the large-growing kinds are easily increased from suckers, which, when the plants are grown in a potbound condition, are produced readily. They should be taken off the parent plant only when furnished with sufficient roots to give them a start. The botanical name of the century plant is agave.

TULIPS IN COLD FRAMES.

In planting tulips in frames outside, how close should I plant them?
G. M.—Ont.

In order to get all you can from the space occupied, it would be well to plant the tulips four inches apart each way for early sorts and 4x5 inches for Darwins.
C. W.

FALL-FLOWERING ANNUALS.

Will you kindly tell us the most desirable annuals suitable for fall cutting?
A. F. & N. C.—B. C.

If you mean annuals grown outdoors, the following are among the best: Cosmos, asters, marigolds, zinnias, alyssum, all varieties of everlastings, calendulas, scabiosas, Centurea Cyanus, gaillardia and coreopsis. If annuals under glass are wanted in fall or early winter, the following can be safely recommended: Cosmos, in pots or tubs; snapdragons, calendulas, sweet peas, Centurea Cyanus, mignonette. Of course, early sowings are necessary to secure a fall crop under glass. As-

THALICTRUM DIPTEROCARPUM.

I should like to know whether or not Thalictum dipterocarpum is hardy in the eastern states; that is, can it be left in the ground over winter? Of what part of the world is it a native?

H. N.—Cal.

The beautiful Thalictum dipterocarpum is a native of Yunnan, China. It is doubtfully hardy in the eastern states, and needs the protection of a coldframe in the winter. It is a species and not a hybrid.

The Review is able to announce that it is in position to make immediate shipment of

BAILEY'S STANDARD

Cyclopedia of Horticulture

at a new low price. The last printing was sold out at $48.00 the set of 6 volumes—a very reasonable price considering war-time costs of printing. Now a new printing has been made and the publishers authorize The Review to give its readers the benefit of the saving made in recent competitive conditions in the book-making trades in the East. This means a new price of $40.00 per set for the CYCLOPEDIA—a saving of $8.00 per set.

Send Your Orders Now—Delivery by First Express, Prepaid

REMEMBER—BAILEY'S STANDARD CYCLOPEDIA OF HORTICULTURE is in 6 large volumes, over 3,000 pages. It is authority in all matters of plant names and spellings. Besides the purely botanical matter one would expect to find in such a work, there are many hundreds of cultural articles, chapters on insects, diseases, remedies, etc.—a veritable horticultural library, all carefully and completely indexed.

REPORT of the petition in bankruptcy filed against Maurice Fuld, Inc., New York, appears in this issue under the heading, "Business Embarrassments."

THE Schenectady Seed Store, Schenectady, N. Y., has moved to more commodious quarters at 132 Clinton street. Manager Ladne expresses optimism regarding the outlook.

THE L. C. Gunson Seed Co., Rochester, N. Y., sustained a loss of about $40,000 by a fire which swept the plant the night of November 10. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have been the cause of the fire.

C. D. COVENTRY, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, believes, evidently, in good mottoes. The following is seen on the wall of his office, surmounted by a fern leaf: "Smile; it won't hurt much."

ON a forward page of this issue appears an announcement that the American Bulb Co., Chicago, is about to open a New York store with J. J. Karins as general manager and A. Rynveld and J. H. Bockman as members of the staff.

G. KROSSCHELL has arrived here to open an American office for the firm of J. V. Van Zanten & Son, Hillegom, Holland. His headquarters will be at 1754 Kensington road, Toledo, O., and it is the purpose of the firm to sell its bulbs f. o. b. Toledo. Mr. Krosschell intends to remain permanently in this country and was accompanied by his wife and their ten children.

WHEN the Wisconsin Pea Packers' Association convened at Milwaukee last week, a number of seedsmen were present with booths and exhibits. Among them were the Rogers Bros. Seed Co., Chicago; Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; John A. Allen Seed Co., St. Louis; Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and others. The new board of directors of the Wisconsin Pea Packers' Association, elected at the meeting, includes: J. A. Hagemann, Fort Atkinson; F. E. Hulbert, Fall River; W. F. Kelley, Calvary; F. T. Clark, Waupun; G. J. Coxe, Humbird; J. J. Wittenberg, Cedarburg; W. T. Berg, Onalaska, and R. B. Johns, Antigo. The present officers of the association will hold office until a continuation of the meeting of the board of directors to be called November 25.

THE Baltimore Seed Co., Baltimore, Md., has been incorporated. The incorporator is Clifton S. Brown. The capitalization involves fifty shares of common stock, without par value.

THE early arrivals from Holland report that the number of Dutch bulb salesmen to visit America this season probably will be as large as last year, when over 200 travelers were touring America. Most of the travelers are setting out earlier this year than ever before, in spite of the fact that there was a shortage of bulbs of many varieties in Holland this season and that demand for next season promises to be better than this year. Demand is expected to increase in England, and even in Germany, while Scandinavia is using more bulbs each season.

THERE were a little over 13,000 cases of bulbs on the New Amsterdam and developments seem to indicate that the buds in about fifty per cent of the cases, principally narcissi and hyacinths, were destroyed through heating in transit. There are those who believe that another twenty-five per cent will prove, when blooming time comes, to have been damaged. If only 7,000 cases are lost, the loss will aggregate $350,000, the average value being about $50 per case. Most of the shipments were insured against heating, but the insurance companies will not settle at once.

ARRIVAL OF VALLEY PIPS.

The steamer Volendam arrived at New York harbor from Rotterdam November 16, with ninety cases of lily of the valley pips, consigned as follows:

| Consignee | Cases |
|-------------------------------|-------|
| Globe Shipping Co..... | 2 |
| Downing & Co., T. D..... | 7 |
| Lang, R. F..... | 50 |
| American Express Co..... | 20 |
| Van Doorn, W..... | 2 |
| MacNiff Horticultural Co..... | 9 |
| Total | 90 |

These ninety cases, added to the 458 cases previously received, make a grand total of 548 cases of lily of the valley pips received to date.

VEGETABLE SEED PRODUCED.

Close to Average.

The aggregate commercial production of vegetable seeds this year is estimated to be considerably larger than in 1921. In the case of important crops, the production compares favorably with the average of the last five years, according to data obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture. With few exceptions, the yields per acre were satisfactory and on the whole the percentage of the acreage abandoned as total failures was comparatively small.

The outstanding increases in the production over that of last year are as follows: Dwarf snap beans, 120 per cent; garden peas, 75 per cent; sweet corn, 100 per cent; garden beet and lettuce, 150 per cent; cabbage, carrot, kale and parsnip, 50 per cent; watermelon, 60 per cent; parsley, radish and tomato, 100 per cent; onion seed, 25 per cent; onion sets, 10 per cent; cucumber, 15 per cent.

Watermelon seed production exceeds the million-pound mark for the first time in history. The production of alfalfa increased 300 per cent to 14,700 pounds or about one-half the 5-year average, and of spinach, 1,100 per cent to 313,800 pounds or about two-thirds the 5-year average. Marked increases also are noted in the production of mangel beet and Swede turnip, being 101,700 pounds and 45,800 pounds, respectively, compared with a negligible quantity last year.

A few crops, however, show a greatly reduced production from that of last year and of the 5-year average. Among these, and perhaps of greatest importance, is sugar beet seed, the production of which is reported to be only 1,056,000 pounds, compared with 3,575,000 pounds in 1921 and the 5-year average of 5,604,000 pounds.

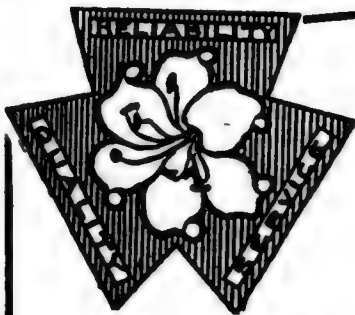

Vine Crops Show Reduction.

Unfavorable growing conditions resulted in a large percentage of the acreage of vine crops in Colorado and Kansas being abandoned, and reduced the average yields on the acreage harvested. Consequently the total production of muskmelon is about 10 per cent less than last year. However, it is still 50 per cent above the 5-year average. Summer squash production shows a reduction of 25 per cent and winter squash 65 per cent. A large percentage of the English turnip seed crop was a failure, and the total production is only 15,100 pounds.

Imports of vegetable seeds during 1921 were equal to the average of the last ten years, and during the first half of 1922 were normal for most items for that period. A study of the figures in the accompanying table, keeping in mind the foregoing comparisons of production and imports, would seem to indicate that the supply of vegetable seeds with but few exceptions is sufficient for the normal commercial requirements. The outstanding exceptions are sugar beet and turnip seed, of which approximately 90 per cent of the requirements will have to be imported.

GLADIOLUS NOVELTIES

Mostly all of our own raising, including our new Gladiolus Maiden's Blush, of which the Florists' Review writes as follows:

Gladiolus Maiden's Blush originated with J. J. Grullemans & Sons of Lisse, Holland, being one of a number of Primulinus hybrids of pronounced early flowering habit. The color of this beautiful variety is of a most attractive shade of light pink and some good judges think Maiden's Blush will become one of the most widely grown and popular varieties, when it is well known. It is said that this variety will force in the greenhouse in seven weeks.

We offer to the trade, as follows:
All $\frac{1}{2}$ to $1\frac{1}{4}$ in.

| | Per 1000 |
|---|----------|
| Prim. Maiden's Blush..... | $20.00 |

FLEXIBLE TARIFF PROVISIONS.

Asked for Some Seeds.

The following explanation of the flexible provisions of the McCumber-Fordney tariff act, under which the president is given authority to change rates for the protection of American industry, has just been issued by William F. Gude, of Washington, for the benefit of those florists who are interested in the matter:

"As national representative of the S. A. F., I have had several inquiries lately as to the operation of the so-called flexible tariff provisions of the new tariff law. Apparently there are many importers and growers who are not familiar with the operation of these provisions, and for the benefit of all persons interested, I desire to make the following statement through the trade press:

"It has come to my knowledge that persons interested in the importation into the United States of foreign merchandise have made applications to the tariff commission asking that an investigation be made, with a view to securing the transfer thereof from the dutiable to the free list in the McCumber-Fordney tariff act. Included among these commodities are said to be onion seed and sorghum seed. Similar applications have been made with respect to certain fruits and vegetables.

chemicals, and, of course, including the commodities named above. The commission is hardly in position yet to take definite action on the applications, because it has not yet mobilized the staff of experts that it needs to prosecute the work.

"As may well be imagined, most of the applications call for a reduction in the existing tariff rates. In fact, the applications covering onion and sorghum seed and, I think, grass seed, asked that those commodities be admitted to the United States free of duty.

"A study of the law shows that it is not within the power of the tariff commission to recommend to the president the issuance of a proclamation permitting the free entry of any commodity now subject to duty. Congress restricted the presidential power to increasing or decreasing rates of duty to not to exceed fifty per cent.

"Grass seeds are dutiable at from 1 cent to 4 cents per pound, and onion seeds carry a rate of 15 cents per pound. In the case of the latter, if the importers can make a case, it might be possible to secure a reduction of not to exceed 7½ cents per pound. The claim has been made that there is need for the importation of foreign-grown onion seed, because of the great decline in domestic production.

"I am informed that in 1919 the production of onion seeds was approximately 2,618,000 pounds and that in 1920 and 1921 production declined sharply to 800,800 and 334,000 pounds, respectively. It cannot be learned how much was imported during these years, because such imports are not separately stated in the government statistics, but are included with 'all other' seeds.

"As far as I can make out, it is going to be a difficult matter for anyone to secure changes in the rates, generally speaking. In the cases of the seeds referred to, it will be incumbent upon the applicants to prove conclusively that like domestic seeds are overprotected by the tariff and that the duties assessed upon imports under the new law are higher than are warranted by the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. The probability is that most of the investigations into cost of production will show rather a

All these varieties are the Winter-Flowering Spencer types and can be grown indoors or outdoors the year around. They will produce more and better flowers outdoors than the old late Spencers, because they bloom 3 to 4 weeks earlier, before the hot weather sets in. Plant after the Chrysanthemum and get a full crop for Easter. Plant in cool frames or outdoors just before the freezing begins and get a full crop in May for Decoration Day. Plant out of doors in the spring and they will bloom early in June.

ALBION, N. Y.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., is preparing to make several extensive improvements. The firm is also getting ready to take care of the large Christmas trade.

THE meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, to be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, January 11 and 12, is expected to be the most important in the organization's history. The "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign will be discussed with a view to its further enlargement.

ACCORDING to announcement, C. A. Stevenson, South Haven, Mich., is in the nursery business. Mr. Stevenson deals in ornamental shrubbery and does landscape gardening work. Some of the stock used by Mr. Stevenson in his work is grown by himself and the remainder he buys from other nurserymen.

THE Kirkman Nurseries Co., Fresno, Cal., has purchased 400 acres of land in the vicinity of Brentwood, Cal., and has also taken over 775 acres of land from the Balfour-Guthrie Co. Two hundred acres of this land was set out in orchard some time ago and the planting showed ninety-seven per cent growth. C. B. Weeks, resident manager, says that seven tractors, with a force of fifteen men, are working night and day preparing 800 additional acres for tree planting. That acreage will be set out to prunes, pears, apricots, figs and some cherries. The firm has now 1,174 acres of land under the supervision of Mr. Weeks, who, with Mrs. Weeks and their three children, have been at Brentwood for some time.

CALIFORNIA ON QUARANTINE.

Statement of Nurserymen's Position.

Under the direction of the executive committee of the California Association of Nurserymen, the secretary of that organization, Chancellor K. Grady, has prepared the following statement to clarify the association's stand on quarantine 37:

"Recently efforts have been made by opponents of quarantine 37 to make it appear that the California Association of Nurserymen is in sympathy with their efforts to destroy that law. In support of this theory, widespread publicity has been given to a letter from the executive committee of that association, dated April 27, 1922, and addressed to the federal horticultural board, in which certain modifications in the application of quarantine 37 were requested.

"Careful reading of this letter is sufficient to prove that such inferences are wholly false and unwarranted. The letter starts with the assertion that 'the California Association of Nurserymen desires to go on record as endorsing the plant quarantine act, but believes that there should be some practical modifications made at this time (April 27, 1922).' Request is then made that a committee of five practical horticulturists, representing different sections, be appointed to advise with the federal horticultural board; that amateurs be allowed to import under the same restrictions as apply to nurserymen; that publicity be given to names of growers and varieties of various nursery stock formerly imported and now being produced in the United States; that it may be advisable that plants be inspected by United States inspectors at point of origin instead of port of entry; that the board consider the advisability of establishing quarantine stations for the examination of certain classes of plants which may be impractical to import without soil on their roots, and concludes with a list of plants and bulbs which it is suggested should be imported for propagation purposes. Special attention is called to the footnote, marked 'N. B.,' of the resolution of April 27, 1922, with reference to the published list of plants and bulbs 'which would be of use for propagating purposes in this particular section of the country.'

"These suggestions were made with the idea that much of the opposition existing might be eliminated, but there was no intention that they were mandatory if the continued support of the association was to be expected. Regardless of the attitude of the federal horticultural board as to these recommendations, the association continues to support the quarantine.

Continues Support.

"June 2, 1922, the California Association of Nurserymen, in convention at Sacramento, unanimously adopted resolutions supporting the quarantine and pledging its aid in every possible manner to the continuance of the policy expressed in that quarantine. There is, therefore, no doubt as to the attitude of that association on this important subject.

"However, as a result of the publication of the letter above referred to and the attempt to make it appear that this letter was an expression against the quarantine, resolutions were unanimously adopted by the executive committee of the association, meeting in Los Angeles October 23, 1922, and were telegraphed to the federal horticultural board. At the same meeting, the work of Roy F. Wilcox, of Montebello, Cal., in supporting the quarantine at the convention of the Society of American Florists last August was warmly endorsed, as correctly representing California horticulturists on this question.

"The foregoing statement, taken in conjunction with the telegram to Dr. Marlatt quoting the latest resolutions on this subject, should clear the situation in such a manner as to leave no doubt in the mind of the reader as to the attitude of the association. This telegram to Dr. Marlatt read as follows:

"Flower boxes in summer are all very well. There is a nice bit of business there. But in summer there are few of the florists' best customers in town. In winter they are all there. Why not sell the window box idea for winter as well—filled with Evergreens? All shades and textures and shapes may be obtained. Are you in the game for all there is in it? If not, why not?"

tion emphasized in resolutions adopted at executive committee meeting in Los Angeles, October 23, as follows:

Whereas, the executive committee of the California Association of Nurserymen passed a resolution on April 27 endorsing the federal plant quarantine act, a copy of which was mailed to the Secretary of Agriculture and the chairman of the federal horticultural board; And whereas, the American Association of Nurserymen has heartily endorsed this plant quarantine act at a recent convention;

And whereas, the Society of American Florists assembled at Kansas City during August, 1922, rejected the report of its tariff and legislation committee, disapproving of the committee's attitude and efforts in opposing plant quarantine 37, thereby expressing the approval of the society of the plant act by a practically unanimous vote;

And whereas, since the adoption of our resolutions of last April it has been found that there have been many advances in the production of several items there mentioned, with the result that several of these items could be eliminated;

And whereas, some few members of the trade are not willing to abide by these decisions in a democratic spirit and accept the vote of the majority;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the California Association of Nurserymen resents any efforts of any individual or committee who attempts to mislead the public concerning the stand of this association, which continues to approve of the efforts of the federal horticultural board and stands ready to cooperate and advise with them at any time.

Officials and nurserymen from the states of Alabama and Louisiana gave every indication of ability to handle without federal aid or quarantine the camphor scale pest that has become established in those states, at a hearing before the federal horticultural board. The opinion has been advanced that the horticultural board will likely permit them to do so, for it was shown conclusively that the state action has been broad and complete.

The testimony presented at the hearing showed that the state officials of Alabama and Louisiana have taken hold of the matter effectively. In Mississippi the pest is well under control. It was pretty clearly established that the camphor scale has been in Alabama and Mississippi for at least ten years and had invaded these and probably other states before that time without gaining any headway.

The camphor scale became established in Alabama and Louisiana in about 1910, when some heavy shipments came to the United States direct from Japan. One consignment was of 200,000 trifoliate oranges to Alabama.

Some time ago the attention of the federal horticultural board was called to the situation. It was found that the scale had established itself in the three states named, and a hearing was sought for the purpose of determining just how effective was the work undertaken by these states to clean up the infested sections and whether there was anything the United States government could do to assist them.

It is said that the camphor scale will attack almost any tree, and so is harmful to ornamentals. Since it first became established in New Orleans it has spread more or less rapidly to many varieties of important plants additional to the ornamentals, including especially citrus fruits, olives, privet, Japanese persimmon, fig, plum and pecan trees.

The states of Alabama and Louisiana, through their representatives at the hearing, expressed the wish to be left alone to fight the pest without federal quarantine, which they declared to be unnecessary. It was shown clearly that the pest had come to the United States in shipments from foreign countries years before it was successful in establishing itself in the states affected. Florida officials declared that a federal quarantine would be helpful in protecting the citrus fruit industry of that state, but the opponents of the federal quarantine declared that everything was being done by the states of Alabama and Louisiana that could be done to eradicate the pest and that federal intervention would be but a handicap.

An explanation was made of the Alabama-Louisiana situation by Professor Quaintance and two of his aides, of the bureau of entomology of the Department of Agriculture. There were a large number of state officials and nurserymen present. They were accompanied by Senator Heflin, of Alabama, and Representative Lazaro, of Louisiana.

varieties. While she specializes in peonies and irises, her gardens also contain many kinds of shrubs and ornamental trees, as well as numerous varieties of flowers.

The business, started by Mrs. Crawford as a hobby more than twenty years ago, has grown to such proportions that she now makes shipments to nearly every state in the Union and to some foreign countries.

Planting on the new tract of land is now under way, but Mrs. Crawford states that it will require two and perhaps three years to complete the transfer from the four city plats. She expects to develop a special show garden on the Door Village land, to be used exclusively for exhibition purposes.

William Boyd Crawford, who graduated from Harvard University this year, has taken an interest in the business and will assist his mother in the expansion planned for the enterprise.

PROGRESS IN GARDENING.

Seen by Professional Adherents.

The bugaboo that the American youth cannot be interested in the profession of gardening, and that it holds no attraction for him as a life work, has been exploded through the publicity given the new course in horticulture introduced by the Massachusetts Agricultural College in coöperation with the National Association of Gardeners, says a bulletin from that institution. Inquiries are being received by the college and the association from young men of moderate circumstances, as well as from some more fortunately blessed, from all parts of the country, desiring to learn what the future offers to those who will take up the vocation of gardening. They are seeking something that will occupy their time in the great outdoors and that will not confine them to the four walls of an office or the hubbub of an industrial plant. As one expressed himself: "Free from the consequences of radical agitators sowing discontent," to which the gardener is not now subjected, nor ever will be.

There has been some criticism from horticulturists that the course is not of horticulture he may desire to pursue, commercial or otherwise. In addition to the private estates, the field is open to him for specializing in public park development, landscape gardening on an extensive scale, or catering to the owners of small country and suburban home grounds, as the increasing suburban population opens up new opportunities. And there still remains the broader field of commercial horticulture, which he may choose to enter.

But twelve years ago, the convention of the Gardeners' Association occupied only two hours time, while those of recent years have been of two days' duration for the business sessions, and two days devoted to instruction and entertainment in visiting points of horticultural interest. By this comparison one can realize what progress the profession is making. Today the proficient gardener is no longer regarded as but little more than a handy man, as was generally so only a few years ago in this country. He is being respected as a member of a profession that is bringing joy to the lives of mankind.

When such prominent men of affairs as J. Ogden Armour, Samuel Untermyer, W. R. Coe, R. T. Crane, Jr., Henry Hunnewell, owners of the most extensive country estates in America, have become so interested in the profession as to invite its members to their estates during their conventions and personally entertain them, the profession is surely coming into its own. And with such interest as is manifested towards it by such well known women as Mrs. Samuel Sloan, Mrs. Francis King, Mrs. Henry Hunnewell, Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., Miss M. R. Case, among others, who are devoted to the future of American horticulture, it rests with the gardener to make more generally known in his respective community what his profession and his association is striving to accomplish. The aim is to create a closer bondship among all engaged in and interested in gardening, to stimulate the advancement of American horticulture through civic planting and the beautifying of home grounds, whether extensive or moderate.

PAINESVILLE, O.

Nurserymen, in general, report heavy fall sales. The weather has been all that could have been asked for, and, with the exception of a day or two, has been excellent for outside work.

There is a heavy demand for perennial stock this fall. Delphinium Belladonna and Bellamosum are leaders. These are becoming more popular every year and have proved themselves money-makers for florists who have forced them.

Thomas J. Murphy began his fall plowing last week. This concern intends to branch out considerably next year.

W. B. Cole, whose nursery has the distinction of being the largest individual-owned nursery in the United States, reports the heaviest fall season in its history.

Claude Reynolds, peony and delphinium specialist, of Mentor, O., has gone on a hunting trip to Michigan.

T. R. Norman & Sons are busy hauling nursery stock to the Cleveland landscape architects.

W. H. Nichols & Son shipped an exceptionally large order of peony roots to a large eastern nursery last week.

The Painesville Garden & Greenhouse Co. recently opened a downtown store, and reports business excellent.

George Martin reports business good and intends to add much more acreage to his nursery next year.

C. T. Waldorf is rapidly progressing in the nursery business, and will branch out considerably the coming season.

Thomas J. Dockery, of the Mentor Nurseries, says that the demand for large specimen evergreens has been unusually heavy. Lake county, the metropolis of the nursery trade, has evidenced this fact more this fall than ever before. At any time of the day one may see huge truck loads of nursery stock whizzing by either en route to its destination or to the freight and express platforms. T. J. M.

Mum Week Proves Popular.

Chrysanthemum week, held instead of the contemplated mum show, was a great success, especially from the standpoint of publicity for the flowers themselves, and for the establishments of the members of the Erie Florists' Club.

Big display advertisements were run in the local Sunday papers. Early Monday morning, November 13, each newspaper office received a large basket of mums, which brought forth an acknowledgment and a boost for Erie florists. Similar baskets of mums were placed in the windows of the Postal and the Western Union telegraph offices, as an F. T. D. suggestion. The most popular vaudeville and picture theater was especially decorated and all week a slide was shown concerning the care, as well as the beauty, of cut chrysanthemums. The spotlight was thrown on a great basket of mums, the main feature of the decoration, as soon as the audience had read from the screen. This publicity in the theater was perhaps the most effective bit of advertising the week received.

One florist addressed the Rotary Club on chrysanthemums. This and several other prominent clubs were sent baskets of mums. There are several Erie firms who receive considerable business from the local florists. A letter was sent to each of these firms. It called attention to the business they had received from the florists and politely suggested that the florists would appreciate business in return. The flower stores were open evenings, and throughout the week tickets bearing consecutive numbers were given to each person who visited the stores. At the end of the week each florist selected a lucky number. The holders of the lucky numbers were each presented with a dozen choice chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

Henry J. Steinfurth II, of Trost & Steinfurth, announces the arrival of Henry James Steinfurth III. But the good news is somewhat counteracted by Mr. Steinfurth's statement that he must replace two of his boilers to conform to the new city smoke regulations.

Harold Laver, of the John V. Laver establishment, made elaborate decorations at the Kahkwa Country Club and the Shenk residence for the Shenk-Divine wedding.

Edwin Selkregg, of F. E. Selkregg, North East, Pa., recently visited several Cleveland stores and greenhouses; also the Wayside Gardens and Carl Hagenburger, at Mentor, O. E. R. S.

Des Moines, Ia.—Twenty-two front feet of the store of the Alpha Floral Co. have been leased to the Grace Darling Candy Shops, Minneapolis, Minn., according to an announcement by J. S. Wilson, manager of the Alpha Floral Co.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

EXPANSION TANK BOILS OVER.

I have mailed you a sketch showing my heating plant and dwelling, together with the greenhouse. The water in the expansion tank boils over, causing waste, which, of course, indicates some defect. The tank is connected at the highest point in the residence flow. The point marked as "x" on the sketch is the highest point in the flow running to the greenhouse. Is it possible that the lack of air valves is causing the trouble?
M. D.—Ind.

The sketch shows two radiators on the first floor and one on the second floor. The expansion tank is connected with the flow pipe which leads to the upper radiator. The greenhouse is heated by two coils, each containing three 2-inch pipes supplied by an overhead 3-inch flow pipe. This flow pipe runs through the cellar on an up-grade and then rises vertically in the greenhouse to a point just below the ridge. This is the "x" referred to in the sketch. Thence the flow pipe runs downhill to the farther end of the house, where it is joined to the coils by means of two 2-inch pipes.

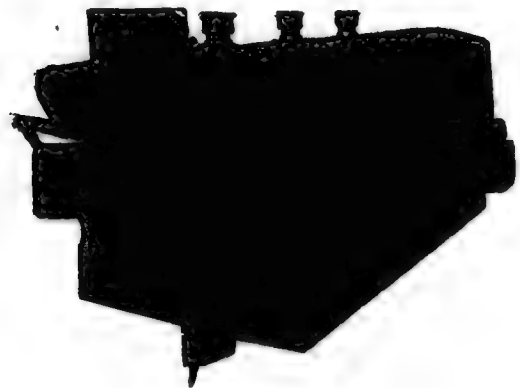

If there are no valves in the system, it is not strange that the water boils over. With the present arrangement of the piping and expansion tank, it will be necessary not only to have an air valve near the top of each radiator, but also at the point "x" in the flow pipe leading to the greenhouse coils. Had we planned the system, we should have connected the expansion tank at the highest point in the greenhouse flow pipe, marked "x" in the sketch, and placed a valve in each radiator. Even now this may be the simplest way out of the difficulty, and if either method is used, it should prevent the water from boiling over, unless the boiler is too large for the amount of radiation, and provided it is kept properly checked.

It is noted that the sketch is marked "greenhouse 30x36," and it is inferred that the greenhouse is 30x36 feet. There is nothing to indicate the amount of glass, if any, in the walls of the greenhouse, but, even if there is no glass, we should not expect to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in a greenhouse more than sixteen feet wide, or 40 degrees in a house with a width of twenty feet, with the amount of radiation shown.

For 50 degrees, in a house thirty feet in width, use twelve 2-inch returns, and supply these with three 2½-inch overhead flow pipes, placing one on each plate and the other three feet under the ridge. For 60 degrees three flows and fifteen returns will be needed.

STEAM OR HOT WATER?

We should like to heat a 7-room house, estimated at 530 feet of hot water radiation, and two greenhouses, each 22x50 feet, the ridges being nine feet above the beds. These houses run east and west. The house on the north side has 7-foot rafters and a 30-inch wall, made of shiplap, covered with a good grade of paper. The south side of this house has 17-foot sashbars. The other house is an even-span structure, with thirty inches of glass in the wall. These houses are separated by a glass partition. The foundation is of concrete, three feet high at the east end, running to the ground level at the west end.

The beds of both houses are solid, with the walks walled with concrete. There are two outside beds three feet wide and two inside beds five feet wide in each house. We aim to place the boiler in the basement of the dwelling, which will be sixty feet from the greenhouses. Is it possible to obtain a good circulation of the water at this distance, or would you advise the use of steam instead of hot water in this particular case? The temperature to be maintained is about 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. There are second-hand high-pressure steam boilers on the market here. Could these not be used to good advantage, and what horsepower is required? How should the pipes be arranged for either steam or hot water? H. C.—Okla.

For a range of the size described, we prefer to use a hot water system, although a steam boiler may be used instead of a regular hot water boiler. A boiler rated at 36-horsepower, with about nine square feet of grate surface, will be large enough for the dwelling and two greenhouses.

If the top of the boiler is two feet below the level of the returns, a good circulation can be secured. Care should be taken to have the flow and return pipes thoroughly insulated. For the north house, use two 2½-inch flow pipes on the purlin posts and four 2-inch returns on each of the side walls. In the other house use two 2½-inch flows and twelve 2-inch returns, or, if return coils can be arranged on the sides of the middle bed, it would be well to use three 2-inch flow pipes and twelve returns, placing four returns on each side wall. If the houses are to be heated by means of steam, run 2-inch flow mains about two feet below the ridge of each house, with seven 1¼-inch return pipes in the north house and ten returns in the south house, placing all of the returns on the side walls.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There has been considerable activity in the local flower market, although there have been few weddings, social functions or large funerals during the last week. There has, however, been a good general demand. The market is practically flooded with pompon chrysanthemums, but as the prices are reasonable, they move with vigor. There is much concern among the dealers as to whether they are going to have a sufficient stock of large mums for Thanksgiving, the warm weather of the last three weeks having forced them forward so rapidly that some of the growers have cut their entire crop.

Corn Borer Quarantine.

Together with parts of the state of Maine, sections of Rhode Island, including Barrington, East Providence, North Providence, Pawtucket and Providence, have been placed under quarantine by orders received last week from the federal horticultural board in an effort to check the spread of the European corn borer.

The imposition of the quarantine means that Rhode Island growers are prohibited until the restriction is removed from forwarding any shipments of chrysanthemums, cut dahlias and gladioli and other plants with stalks in which the corn borer is likely to find a hiding place.

John J. Dunn, secretary of the Rhode Island state board of agriculture, in a statement concerning the quarantine says that while the area infested in the state is comparatively small, the menace is none the less great, and the general assembly, at its session which opens the first Tuesday in January, will be requested to provide an appropriation with which the state may cooperate with federal authorities in fighting the pest. Mr. Dunn said that the United States government has been asked for a fund of no less than $750,000 to combat the spread of the corn borer, of which amount Massachusetts has asserted it will require at least $500,000. The insect first made its appearance in Rhode Island, so far as any manifestations of infestation developed, in the town of East Providence, in the month of September. Almost simultaneously it was discovered in Barrington. According to Mr. Dunn, these are the only two places in which the corn borer has appeared in Rhode Island, and, as far as can be determined, it is restricted in these localities to two small farms.

Nevertheless, in reporting to the federal authorities immediately after the first appearance of the danger, the state board recommended that the surrounding localities of North Providence, Pawtucket and Providence be also quarantined as an extra precaution, although the corn borer has not yet been found in any of these three places.

contemplating a trip abroad about the first of the new year.

The Market.

Last week was dull, although there were the usual number of social events, with the possible exception of weddings. This slowness reflects in the wholesale market, with the result that all the wholesale houses are loaded with stock of all kinds.

Mums are to be had in almost any quantity and are moving slowly at any price obtainable. Small mums are coming in rather heavily, while the larger varieties are still fairly scarce. Pompons have shortened in supply and are clearing each day at good prices. The pink varieties are in great demand and move readily enough, while it takes considerably more effort to get rid of the yellow and white.

Roses are coming into their own more and more each day, with an increasing demand. Fine roses are to be had now any hour of the day in the wholesale houses and the quality is of the finest. Particular mention should be made of Premier, which is showing midseason quality and color and which, for size of bloom, has never been equaled in this market. Although the demand is light, they clear each day at good prices, considering the large number of mums on hand. Columbia, Ophelia, Milady, etc., are close seconds, but move rather more sluggishly.

Carnations are still plentiful. The demand for this stock is light. Laddies are increasing in supply, but it is always possible to move them at fair prices.

Calla lilies are coming along a little more heavily now, but there is no call for them. Easter lilies still are scarce and what few find their way into market are picked up quickly. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities and, as the quality is good, they find ready sale at good prices. The first Paper Whites made their appearance last week, but failed to create any sensation, and moved slowly at unprofitable prices.

Beauties are increasing in quantity, but, as the demand is spasmodic, they do not move out at prices covering their value. Last week the demand was good, due to several large funerals and decorations. Orchids and valley are in supply just about equal to the demand, so that by the end of each day these items are cleared out entirely.

Greens of all kinds have shortened in supply until the last of the week found them back at a price in keeping with the cost of production. Leucothoe

Selecting Glass

REALIZING that your health is largely dependent on your eyesight, you spare no effort or expense in order to obtain the right glasses, ground from quality crystal.

The welfare of your plants should have the same consideration. Greenhouse Glass is the medium through which they receive light and sunshine. If it is uneven or if it has blisters an uneven diet of sunlight, or sunburn is the result. If it is not clear and white there is an insufficiency of light on dark or cloudy days.

American Greenhouse Glass is admittedly superior for Greenhouse Glazing. It has been used on the largest and leading greenhouses in the country and is specified by leading engineers and greenhouse designers.

The elliptical mark on every box of the genuine is put there for your guidance. It is an assurance of the best for greenhouse requirements.

"Masdevallia Veitchiana"

A remarkably beautiful orchid dependent in high degree for growth on its shelter under greenhouse glass of highest quality.

It was first imported from Bolivia, its habitat, in 1846, and has been extensively hybridized.

and coontie leaves are much in demand and large quantities of these greens are being moved by the wholesalers. Fine boxwood is to be had now, both in the tree and dwarf varieties, and appears to have better keeping qualities than in former years.

The entire trade is now laying plans for the Thanksgiving business, which bids fair to be one of the best seasons in several years. A canvass of the larger growers shows that mums will be in much shorter supply than last year, due to the fact that the planting was much lighter and also to inroads made on stock by insects and disease. The larger mums will be scarce and what few reach market will command their own price. Smaller stock will be in supply just about equal to the demand or a little under, so that, all the way through, the market should be well balanced and prices steady. Roses and carnations will be plentiful, with prices a little below average.

The Suzanne Floral Co. had the decorations for the opening of the new Palais Royal, a restaurant run by the successors to Tait's, on Powell street, Tait still retaining two places here. The third floor of the Palais Royal is modeled after a southern plantation, and this was where the partners in the Suzanne shop had most of the work.

The flower store of Julius Eppstein, in the St. Francis hotel, is now finding a good demand for strawflowers, especially from visitors, who look upon them as a novelty. M. M.

ELYRIA, O.

The market conditions in this locality are much improved, and stock of all kinds has been used up readily. The warm weather continues, and most varieties of chrysanthemums are from one to two weeks in advance of previous years.

The monthly meeting of the Lorain County Florists' Club was held November 15 at the greenhouses of the L. C. Hecock Floral Co. There were thirteen members present. The early part of the evening was spent looking over the growing crops. Chrysanthemums held the center of attraction. Several new varieties, including some pompons which Mr. Hecock bought from Elmer D. Smith & Co. and a seedling of his own, were greatly admired. The meeting was called to order by the president, J. E. Tulea, and various subjects were discussed. The entertainment for the evening was furnished by Mr. Heal, who had written a lengthy poem about the different greenhouse owners over the county. A committee was appointed to arrange for a party and dance for the December meeting. Refreshments were served by Mr. Hecock, and the guests departed feeling that the time had been well spent.

Miss Nellie Hecock, who has had charge of the store of the L. C. Hecock Floral Co. at Lorain, has given up this position and is at home for a rest. S. P. Skeleher, who has been with the Klus Flower Shop, at Anderson, Ind., is managing the store.

Word received from Joseph Shaffer, who left us and went to Ludwig's Flower Store, at Columbus, is that he likes his new position and is getting along well. P. W.

FLEXIBLE TARIFF PROVISIONS.

tariff commission has no leeway; it must follow strictly the letter of the law.

"I am informed that students of the tariff declare that if the law had been written so that the investigations would be on the basis of competitive conditions, rather than on the actual cost of production, decreases or increases could be made regardless of differences existing between the cost of production at home and abroad. 'Cost of production' is only one factor in 'competitive conditions.' There are cases where American manufacturers and producers are really entitled to higher protection than is afforded them under the law, but where it cannot be shown because production cost data operate against them.

"Limited to the consideration of the cost of production, without regard to any other factors, the tariff commission may find its hands so badly tied that the flexible tariff provisions of the law will be operative only to a minor degree." T. N. S.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

Carnations have been scarce, with the exception of white, and demand $3 to $4 per hundred. Roses are none too plentiful, but, so long as mums are abundant, the trade is not trying to push roses. Violets are plentiful at 75 cents per hundred. Sweet peas are a little scarce. Stevia is coming in and is inclined to be a little weak. Cyclamen plants are plentiful. Mums are commencing to slow down; about all that are left are Eaton, Chadwick and Golden Wedding.

Ardmore, Okla.—Ninety-six acres of land have been purchased by Woerz Bros., Florists. It is the intention of the firm to erect more greenhouses, and it will devote about twenty acres of the newly purchased land to the growing of pecans. The heavy rains which occurred in that section last week have put the ground in excellent shape for planting, and the firm has a crew of men now at work clearing up and preparing the ground for the planting of 4,000 trees which are en route from the nursery. Members of the firm report a flourishing business.

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is scientifically planned in every detail for one purpose—to destroy plant lice, thrips and similar soft-bodied, sucking insects. It will not harm flowers or plants.

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is a specially treated tobacco powder saturated with 12½% pure nicotine. This percentage is guaranteed.

It lights quickly, burns evenly and will not go out. No waste—every particle is consumed.

It is most economical, in fact it costs but 75 cents to fumigate a 30 by 200 ft. greenhouse.

It retains its strength indefinitely. The air-tight tin takes care of that.

10-lb. tins, $8.50; 2½-lb. tins, $2.50; 1-lb. tins, $1.25.

Buy from your dealer. If he is not supplied send us your order along with his name.

Other Hall products are: Hall's Nicotine Sulphate (40% nicotine guaranteed) for outdoor spraying; Hall's Tobacco Dust (1% nicotine guaranteed) for dusting.

HALL'S FREE NICOTINE

40% nicotine guaranteed. For effective greenhouse spraying or vaporizing—dependable, economical.

CYPRESS BY TEST. SUBSTITUTES BY TALK.

Is there value to you in an endurance test of 50 years in greenhouse sash? It is reported to us that sash made of heart Cypress by a prominent greenhouse contractor in Chicago and placed in position in a greenhouse at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1868, are still doing service.

Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., has Cypress sash that have stood the racket for 30 years and are still on the job. And these are not isolated cases—they represent no more than a fair test of "The Wood Eternal" for greenhouse use.

It will serve you as well and save you the nuisance and expense of repairs and replacements.

The argument backed by such facts cannot be answered by mere talk. Ask the manufacturer or contractor who wants to give you a "substitute" for Cypress to cite you to an endurance test of 30 or 50 years to the credit of the so-called "substitute."

That is no more than a fair precaution on your part—good, ordinary business sense.

If he would meet the Cypress record with more talk, and no test, then there's a "nigger in that wood-pile." You know you would better pass up the "substitute" and stick to the real article, which is Cypress.

"PECKY" CYPRESS. You greenhouse men know how common it looks and how uncommon it lasts. The U. S. Govt. Rept. (Forest Service Bul. 95) says—"That the disease (which produces the 'peck') has been a long time preying upon Cypress timber is apparent from an examination of Cypress logs dug from alluvial deposits many feet below the present level of the Gulf of Mexico. Some of that prehistoric timber is pecky, though it has been buried during a period estimated at no less than 30,000 years. . . . The effect of the disease (known as 'Pecky') . . . is believed to act as a preservative . . . and to hinder decay."

Is 30,000 years' "hindering of decay" long enough for YOUR greenhouse?

There is no known record of rotten "Pecky." Use nothing else for benches and bench standards. It is cheap, too. A postal will do, a letter is better—either brings a booklet or two from the famous CYPRESS Pocket Library (a strictly authoritative reference work). Vol. 3 is all about "GREENHOUSES." It is FREE. Send for it. Also ask for Vol. 2, on "Pecky"—a money saver. Take no hearsay. GET THE FACTS. Then ACT. Vol. 4 is the Barn Book; Vol. 20 is "All Farm Needs Book"; Vol. 36 is the "Carpentry Book," in which a dozen hard jobs of carpentry are made easy, and Vol. 37 is the Big, New Silo Book. All contain plans for building and are profusely illustrated.

CALENDULASTHE BALL CALENDULA.

New crop of seed from other sources cannot be ready until late next August, too late for your early 1923 planting. If you want to be assured of your next season's supply we suggest you buy it at once, direct from the originator.

We have the same lot of seed your first order was filled from. Why take a chance? Your early sown stock should soon be in bloom, convincing you that no orange strain compares with the Ball Calendula.

Trade pkt., $3.00; per oz., $5.00.

CAMPANULAS

CAMPANULAS FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT.
Our forcing grade.

HOW TO FORCE THEM.

As soon as received, pot them and carry the plants after that into a frame; they are better off if they do not freeze, they don't appreciate it. Up to February they want anything but a warm house; leave all the foliage on you can; hold the house as near to 32 deg. as possible and also after that time don't subject them to a high temperature; lift the plants and heel in a coldhouse to be planted out in a solid bed in February, to be slowly forced into bloom for cut-flowers for late April and during May.

Campanula Medium, blue, rose and white;
Campanula Calycanthema, blue, rose, white.
